Here come the parades

Parades are the centerpieces of Saturday's Venetian activities. The Grand Venetian Street Parade begins at noon and travels up Bridge Street from Garfield to Clinton. The reviewing stand is at the corner of Bridge and Clinton. The boat parade is divided into three divisions for classic boats, sailboats under sail and lighted, decorated craft. The boat parades begin at 8 p.m. with sailboats, continue at 9 with classic craft and conclude at 10 with electrified vessels.

By day and by night — it's Charlevoix on parade

Centerpieces of the Venetian Festival each year are Saturday's two parades — one on land, the other on water.

In the past few years, participant interest in the Grand Electrical Boat Parade has been dwindling. But organizers are trying to spawn renewed interest.

The Grand Venetian Street

Parade kicks off at noon Saturday, July 23, and the boat parade begins at 8 p.m.

The street parade promises a full slate of traditional marching performers along with floats, antique cars and — in this election year — some politicians.

Besides introducing Miss Charlevoix 1988 and her court to the crowd along Bridge Street, the parade will have Miss Charlevoix 1987 and a new twosome — the Petunia Prince and Princess.

The grand marshal of the 58th Venetian Festival's parade is Ray Kipke, long-time coach and teacher for whom the Rayders sports teams and Kipke Field athletic stadium are named.

Clowns are being asked to show up for make-up in front of the American Legion Hall between 11 a.m. and noon. No registration is required for clowns of all ages.

The three-division boat parade begins at 8 p.m. with sailboats under sail passing the reviewing stand in East Park.

Next will be classic boats, which will parade at 9 p.m. The classic craft will be parked at the marina for closer inspection from 8 to 9.

The finale, featuring lighted boats, is scheduled for 10 p.m. As of late Tuesday, there were six boats signed up for the event — with eight set by the parade committee as the minimum needed Wednesday to have the lighted parade.

Last year's Venetian queen, Wendy Voison, waves to the crowd in East Park. This year, the pageant returns to the high school.

PRESERVING THE NORTH

NORTH BANK: City lands 300-foot stretch

The city is about to become the owner of a prime piece of land - the 300-foot north bank of the Pine River Channel.

For the dirt-cheap price of $15,000, developer Jon Hisey is selling the city the property he and a partner paid $46,000 for.

"The city of Charlevoix has been very good to me and my family and we thought we'd show our gratitude," says Hisey.

Opening the way for the sale was zoning board of appeals approval of a new parking scheme for Hisey's Edgewater Inn.

Hisey has to complete paved 15 parking spots along the top of the channel-front property - which will become the city's.

He also must fit 16 more spaces into the parking lot at the Edgewater. Originally, there were to be 20 more spaces than the 74 already in the lot, but problems with the foundation of the neighboring Lodge encroaching on the Edgewater property lowered the number possible to 12. There were also supposed to be several off-site.

Hisey told the Courier he will be able to put in the 16 spaces without ripping out greenery or curbing. Paver blocks will be used in overflow spaces, he says.

"I'm sorry the attempt (to work out required parking) ended in so much confusion and controversy," he says.

Both City Manager Mike Wiesner and Hisey say the agreement they arrived at did

NORTH POINT: Drive $100,000 from goal

The dream of preserving the Lake Michigan dunes just north of town is within $100,000 of coming true.

More than $615,000 has been raised in the first seven months of the preservation campaign - with the help of a $400,000 state grant and hundreds of individual donations.

A "substantial anonymous contribution" coupled with a summer renewal of heavy solicitation has swelled the Preserve North Point bank account, says Tom Bailey, executive director of Little Traverse Conservancy.

The conservancy is coordinating the purchase effort, which was launched by the organization at the urging of such Charlevoix area organizations as WATCH Inc. and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

There is a growing awareness that natural resources are as much an economic sector of the community as are such traditional sectors as manufacturing, retail and service industries, Bailey says.

"People are waking up to understand the value of investing in the natural resources sector," he says. "It's not going to take care of itself."

And, in Northwest Michigan, natural resources are a main draw that aids people in those other sectors of the community, he says.

"I can't say enough about the willingness of people in this area - whether its singlehandedly (such as Jon Hisey's low-price sale of channel-front land to Charlevoix) or people putting five bucks or 10 bucks in the pot for North Point - to preserve our natural resources," says Bailey.

To date over 450 individuals and businesses have contributed

Ahead-lines

Art Fair celebrates 30th anniversary

The 30th annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair will kick off with a special anniversary reception.

The one-day art show, which has grown into one of the largest and most prestigious in the Midwest, will be held Saturday, Aug. 13.

The anniversary reception from 4 to 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 12, at the Edgewater Inn will include a display of works by selected art show exhibitors.

These artists include Corrine Workmaster, Alan Reid, Dee Knott, Russ and Sue Bolt, Norman Brumm, Pam Kessler, Pat Eberline, John Byron, Win Crannell, Barbara Godwin, Alan Vigland, Pat Custer Denison and Lou and Linda Rizzolo.

Art fair committee member, Suzie Reis invites the public to the event. Beverages and hors d'oeuvres will be served.

Tickets are available through downtown merchants with $5 donation going to the Charlevoix Public Schools Enrichment Foundation.

Charlevoix's art show got its start in 1959. A committee, led by Fran Martin, convinced other community leaders that an art fair on the terraces of the city park by round Lake would be worthy effort.

The early fairs saw a melange of arts and crafts spread across the grass leading down to the yacht harbor. Art patron Nat Cummings and artist friends of sculptor Walter Mideber, dean of the Detroit Center for Creative Studies, gave the show a boost by bringing works by recognized artists to Charlevoix.

Cummings regularly loaned the fair original works by Matisse, Picasso and Degas from his collection.

For the past 20 years, potters, painters, sculptors, jewelers, etchers and ceramic artists have been admitted to the show on the basis of slides submitted in early spring. Some 900 artists competed for the 125 openings this year.

On art fair day, the artists begin setting up their displays as early as 6 a.m., even though the show does not officially open until 10.

Gallery owners and private collectors will be on the scene by 8, scouting for their annual major acquisitions. By mid-day Charlevoix will be host to over 10,000 visitors.

Odmark concert organizers expect 80 musicians

The stage in East Park will be enlarged - but only for one night.

A benefit concert honoring Clarence Odmark, 29-year Charlevoix school band director, will be held on the stage at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 6.

And to accommodate the 75 to 80 musicians expected for the concert, a temporary stage extension is being made.

Gary Stutzman, one of three co-chairmen of a bandshell replacement committee, will be the main director.

Among the participants Stutzman expects for the concert are members of Odmark's family who are noted musicians, and members of the state and national band directors' associations.

There are about seven former Odmark students, including Stutzman, who became band directors.

Several of them will be called upon to conduct or to tell about their experiences with Odmark, Stutzman says.

The stage extension is being made by Ray Wood and Jack Stebe, Stutzman says. Bandshell committee members hope the event will be the last concert on the stage.

They are trying to raise up to $135,000 to build an Odmark pavilion in the park.

City council has looked at plans for the facility but has not yet given its go-ahead for construction.

The city has about $52,000 to contribute toward construction and the committee has raised more than $15,000 more so far.

Preserve tours follow conservancy meeting

For the first time in its 17 years, the Little Traverse Conservancy will hold its annual meeting outside the Petoskey-Harbor Springs area.

This year's meeting will be held at Edgewater Inn in Charlevoix. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. and end at noon.

Lunch will then be available for those desiring, at $6 a meal. After lunch, tours of some area conservancy sites will be offered to those in attendance and anyone else who wants to go along.

A tour of the North Point area, which the conservancy is raising money to purchase, will begin about 1 p.m. People can meet the tour group in the Edgewater parking lot or at the Mount McSaubia beach area parking lot.

Another tour group will visit the Ransom Nature Preserve and other conservancy locations.

He has yen for truck

Former Honda, Japan, mayor Hiroshi Takeuchi (right) gets the prize as Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's longest-distance ticket buyer. But he's aiming for the top prize. Asked what he'd do with an American pick-up truck, Takeuchi's interpreter said he planned to take the cash prize, instead. Selling Takeuchi his ticket is KCB president Bruce MacArthur.

Primary votes narrow choices

Charlevoix voters will be going to the polls Tuesday, Aug. 2, to cast ballots for local candidates and for county candidates and issues.

They will also vote for state representative nominees and probate judge candidates.

Voters must vote only for candidates of one party on the partisan part of the ballot. City and judge positions are non-partisan.

The Courier requested biographical information and answers to specific questions from candidates with opposition in the primary.

In the city, the mayor's race and the Third

Ward council race have three candidates on the ballot, with the primary reducing that number to two.

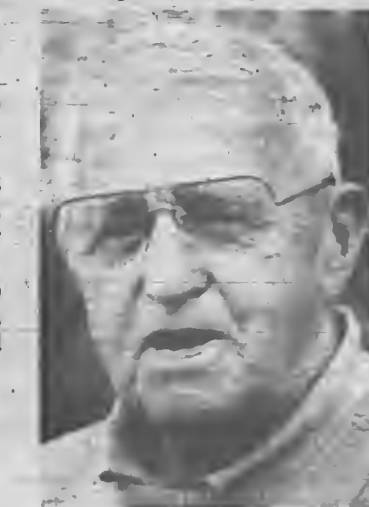

(There is also an announced write-in candidate for mayor, but his name will not be on the ballot.)

In county races, there are two Republicans seeking the nomination for clerk, treasurer, sheriff, drain commissioner and surveyor.

The five candidates for probate judge will be reduced to two in the primary.

The general election is Tuesday, Nov. 8.

City mayor: Trimming field of 3 to 2

Ralph McRae

McRae

Ralph McRae, 304 Nettleton, is seeking his second term as mayor. The retired contractor and retail building supplier will not reveal his age. The former council member and housing commission president has had two years of college. He has three brothers and one sister.

What should the mayor's role be in the operation of city government?

The mayor is the most important member of our city government. He represents equally all the property owners. Our city has many facets and he should be aware of them all. He should encourage and promote job-producing opportunities.

"He should urge all citizens to comply with all ordinances that are good for everyone. He should be concerned how some decisions of other government units will effect our taxpayers such as the county commission, Commission on Aging and the waste management board.

"He should act and speak for the silent majority. He should constantly support the council in their efforts to provide good services for all areas of the town. He should recognize and commend all city employees for performing their duties well. He

She is now owner and operator of Charlevoix Canvas. Besides her council experience, Roloff lists 14 years volunteer work with the Department of Social Services and efforts with the American Cancer Society, Red Cross blood bank and parent-teacher council. She and husband Bill have three sons and two daughters.

What should the mayor's role be in the operation of city government?

"To promote the city and Industrial Park. Provide common sense management of the city's affairs and finances. Be able to conduct a public hearing. Strive to continue the atmosphere of Charlevoix the Beautiful."

"Should the city continue to hire outside engineering services or should it hire an in-house engineer? and why?"

"The mayor should preside over the council meetings according to 'Robert's Rules of Order.' Most important he (she) should generate public interest and participation and serve as ambassador for the city."

Chicago Club house restoration complete

It took seven months for a crew of skilled Charlevoix workmen to restore (not remodel) the May cottage at the historic Chicago Club. They worked long hard hours, including overtime, on this crash project, to the ultimate delight of the owners, Martha and Thomas May.

House Beautiful took pictures after the successful hour tour sponsored by Kappa Sigma Sorority for the benefit of Charlevoix Area Hospital. You'll have to wait 'til spring of '89 to catch up with those of us who were able to go see and enjoy the tour for ourselves. That's probably when the magazine will release the article and photos of this large summer cottage, which was built in 1909 for Robert Stuart — the Quaker Oats family.

I spoke to Jack Stebe, custom carpenter, who made all the kitchen and bathroom cabinets by hand and matched the tongue in groove panelling. And to Bruce Bartlett, who refinished all the original pine, maple and oak floors. The no-rug floors now feel like satin to the touch. And why shouldn't they after being sanded, bleached and pickled! "Fine woodsanding floors is a lost art," according to Bruce.

Recharting Columbus' voyage

In fourteen hundred and ninety-two, Columbus sailed the ocean blue.

Remember that old couplet from your grammar school reader?

I do, but apparently no one else does.

If my grammar school arithmetic is still valid, we should celebrate the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus's arrival in the New World in just four short years.

But unlike other centennial events, no one is talking about it.

The reason, I suspect, is that no one knows what to call a 500th anniversary and the dictionary isn't much help. I can find centennial, sesquicentennial, bicentennial, tricentennial and quadricentennial in the dictionary. But I can't find cinquacentennial or quinquacentennial, which would be the next logical step, or demimillennial, which would do in a pinch.

I am sure that as soon as the movers and shakers decide on a proper term, communities on both American continents — and perhaps Europe as well — will start making their anniversary plans.

Charlevoix, being one of North America's premier waterfront settlements, should be in the vanguard of any celebration by staging a reenactment of Columbus's famous voyage.

I can see it now: A veritable Spanish armada of watercraft led by the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria (read Beaver Islander, the South Shore and the Ironton Ferry), sailing westward off of Charlevoix to prove that beer isn't flat. Or round. Or whatever.

But instead of landing in Wisconsin, the convoy will veer north because of a cache of metal beverage containers next to the compass of the flagship and the doughty adventurers will discover Beaver Island instead.

When the frail vessels churn into Paradise Bay, they will be greeted by throngs of joyous natives anxious to be discovered after so many years alone on their island. I can see dozens of outrigger canoes showing off from the township park to meet the explorers at the harbor entrance.

A fantastic party will ensue with great wheels of pizza (Columbus was Italian, you'll remember) washed down with barrels of sangria (courtesy of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella) and street dancing to a steel band.

The islanders, of course, will want to ply their visitors with generous tankards of their own native elixirs — Strohs, Schlitz, LaBatts and Millers.

Unfortunately, Columbus crossed the Atlantic in late summer and early fall, arriving on Watlings Island in the Bahamas on Oct. 12.

Since the weather on that date is a little iffy in these northern climes, I suggest that the celebration take place on or about the time of Beaver Island's traditional homecoming, the second Sunday of August. This would coincide almost perfectly with the date of Columbus's departure from Spain — not that exact dates carry a great deal of weight when you're planning something this big.

Pleasure boaters of every stripe would be encouraged to tag along with the three bigger boats in order to give everyone an opportunity to participate in such a culturally enlightening expedition.

To date no one else is planning any kind of a celebration to mark the cinquacentennial of Columbus's famous voyage, so I think national press and TV network coverage is practically guaranteed. We could probably get several pages of color pictures in Life magazine if we're lucky.

So there you have it. I don't generally come up with such good ideas, but I think this one is a humdinger and I'm willing to share it gratis.

But the Chamber of Commerce has to get humping. We only have 48 months to get our act together and there's a lot of work to be done.

quarters for the Sutter Home Winery, as well as the home of Arthur Haley, author of "Hotel."

Don Carey, paint contractor, confirms to be that Tom has a great eye. His skill in combining wall colors, furniture, trim and fabrics to complete the total perfect look is a special gift. "It was a pleasure to work for a person like Mrs. May," he adds. "It was a fun job."

Tom flew in again last week especially to do the dramatic flower arrangements for both the house tour and the photo session for House Beautiful. He ordered what he wanted through Greenleaf Gardens, added some shrubs from the grounds, which are landscaped by Thomas Louiselle and, with the designer's inspired whimsical touch, included grapefruit, cantaloupe segments, watermelons and bunches of fresh vegetables in his various floral arrangements.

"Nothing in an old cottage works except the owner," is embroidered on a pillow resting on the living room couch. This was true before the restoration. Windows wouldn't open, doors weren't plumb. Now all that is changed.

And to celebrate this change, the grateful owners gave a beautiful thank-you cocktail party for all the workmen and their spouses, including the painting contractor, Don Carey; the plumbing contractor, John Haggard; and Doug Simpson, the electrical contractor; among others. The Mays were cordial hosts and designer Tom Bartlett acted as jovial bartender to everyone's delight.

It's nice to remember the positive effect that the hundreds of summer cottages, that are part of the associations, have on the local economy in the area. These early resorters, who have been coming north for generations, support the plumbers, electricians, carpenters, painters, landscape artisans and merchants, just as the condo owners do. They even buy fudge and T-shirts! The only business segment that does not benefit from their presence is the Realtors, because they don't make the commissions when homes are bought and sold on the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club.

Fortunately, many people are beginning to appreciate the valuable asset an association has in a community — example, the Bay View Association, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and this year was declared a national historic landmark.

CONCERN

It was concern that led Robert Hoffman to become a foster parent to ten young people, while raising four children of his own as well. It is the same sense of concern-for youth, for the elderly, for the community and for justice - that will make him an excellent Probate Court Judge for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

THE MAYOR'S CORNER

As the Mayor of Charlevoix I have a few favorite projects on the front burner. At the top of this wish list is the following:

Transforming the north side of the Channel into a panorama of brilliant flower and greeneries.

It is now possible, as the city now controls that whole stretch of property from the Weatherlane Restaurant to the shores of Lake Michigan.

A professionally designed landscaping plan could convert the bank slopes into the most outstanding attraction of our beautiful city.

The new walkways on the southside of the Channel would become a popular viewing promenade for our people and visitors. Local and summer boaters would also enjoy this wonderful scenery at close hand.

The price on this proposed project would be high. But this could become another joint venture arrangement between the city and the private sector.

Included would be scores of our regular summer residents and many of our condominium families. If these two groups could become more active in our civic affairs this challenging development could quickly become one of our biggest assets.

Much of the labor could be done by those certain dependable volunteers.

"What do you think the council's role should be in the operation of city government?"

"Setting policy."

"Should the city continue to hire outside engineering services or should it hire an in-house engineer? And why?"

"Continue to hire outside engineering, because I think the cost would be less than hiring an in-house engineer."

"Do you favor establishment of a charter review commission? And, if so, what areas need looking at?"

"No comment."

"What do you think the council's role should be in the operation of city government?"

"The council's role in the operation of city government should be to set policy for the city manager to follow. The council should not be involved with day to day decisions. They should trust the city manager. If the city manager does not follow council policy, they should take appropriate action."

Clerk: GOP nominees

Kimberly Simpson

Simpson

Kimberly R. Simpson, 36, is a graduate, with a degree in English, of Grand Valley State University. She describes her occupation as "self-employed co-owner of computerized desk top publishing business," and her career experience as "21 years accounting and secretarial, 13 years legal secretary, court administration, and county clerk (office)." She lives on Barnard Road with her husband Doug and children Amanda, six, and Michael, five. She is secretary of the board of the Charlevoix Children's House and assistant Sunday School teacher at Barnard Methodist Church.

"What do you think is the biggest attribute of a county clerk?"

"The county clerk must have a combination of skills and qualifications to enable her to effectively run one of the most complicated, complex, and challenging offices in Charlevoix County. The standards of this office should be equivalent or better than those of the other businesses, individuals, and other interests that use it. Therefore, the clerk, who administers this office should be well versed in the skills and techniques of data processing and modern, user-friendly office practices. If the county wants to grow and progress like a viable business, it has to operate like one."

"The county clerk should be available to both county personnel and the public to deliver courteous and professional service to all Charlevoix County residents. It is important to provide proper guidance for the staff and to be continually available personally for questions and problems that arise to both the county employees and the public. What must not be lost is the fact that the county clerk is an elected public official working for the entire county."

Bus tax renewal on ballot

Voters in the primary are being asked to approve a one-quarter of a mill levy for continued operation of the Charlevoix County Transit System.

The proposal covers the years 1989, 1990 and 1991. If passed, the tax will be a continuation of the millage which has been levied since 1983.

On the basis of the present county equalized valuation, revenue from this millage would amount to about $123,000 a year.

It would supplement funds from the state and federal government.

The bus system, which is operated by the County Commission on Aging, operates as a dial-a-ride phone-ahead service throughout the county.

It is also used in conjunction with aging commission activities.

Cousineau

William Cousineau, 41, has served in the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department for 17 years and is now stationed in Boyne Falls as a deputy sheriff. He has had 13 years of formal education plus "many law enforcement classes and schools." Before entering law enforcement, Cousineau spent seven years in the U.S. Army, he and his wife Marilyn and their two daughters and one son live in Boyne Falls, where he has served six years on the school board, two of them as president.

"What does the motto 'Protect and Serve' mean to you?"

"1. To serve the people of all the county as its sheriff and not as a politician. To be available to ALL residents of the county. 2. To protect all the citizens of the county fair and just. To try and work with all agencies within the county police, fire, courts and commissioners. To enforce all laws to the best of my ability."

Lasater

George Thomas Lasater, 51, has been sheriff of Charlevoix County for 12 years, and before that served in other criminal justice capacities in the county for six years. He holds associate's, bachelor's, and master's degrees in law enforcement, which he figures add up to 900 credit hours of study. He lives in Eveline Township.

"What does the motto 'Protect and Serve' mean to you?"

"To Protect and Serve encompasses a great deal beyond the obvious enforcing of the law and is a motto that I have adopted as sheriff of Charlevoix County for the past 12 years."

"For me, to Protect is providing the citizens of Charlevoix County with a professional law enforcement agency that is responsive to the needs of the citizens. It's providing programs that help and protect, such as the Neighborhood Watch and Child Watch; it's providing training for the officers and employees of the sheriff's department to keep them updated and professional."

"Protecting is promoting the apprehension of drunk drivers, allowing the citizens of Charlevoix County the right to drive without risk. It's maintaining an aggressive drug enforcement program so families in Charlevoix County are not confronted with drug related problems. It's establishing substations in Boyne Falls and East Jordan and upgrading the Beaver Island station to bring law enforcement services to areas in the county that have not had adequate coverage previously."

"Finally, protecting is cooperating with all law enforcement agencies to provide the best service possible to the citizens of Charlevoix County."

"Serving is having to advise a family that a member has been killed in an accident and do it in such a way that you provide help, support and care. It's getting up in the middle of the night to defuse crisis situations such as the man who has shot at police and is holding himself armed in a building, hopefully defusing the problem with no deaths or injuries. It's receiving a call from two elderly sisters who have just received $6,000 anonymously and not knowing what to do with it and who have no one to ask but the sheriff. It's spending time with parents who are having problems with their children and giving guidance and assistance. It's holding the hand of a 16-year-old girl trapped in a car so she won't die alone."

"Serving is also giving assistance to organizations and municipalities to help them with their celebrations or projects from the Boyne Falls Polish Festival to the Horton Bay parade, from a bike-a-thon to fund raisers."

"Serving is working with high school seniors who feel as though they want a career in law enforcement and giving them hands-on experience so they can make a better career choice. Serving is providing community rehabilitation for jail inmates so hopefully they will not become involved in the criminal justice system again."

"Serving and Protecting isn't just a motto for the office of sheriff; it's a way of life unique only to law enforcement. It's committing yourself to be available day and night, seven days a week, to serve and respond to all types of needs and emergencies, from shootings, to drugs to holding a hand. It's demanding and frustrating at times, but the personal rewards are many, a hug from a child who has just lost both parents to a letter from a stranded motorist thanking the department for their help. Those rewards can't be bought; they're given out of respect and the responsiveness of a sheriff and his officers-employees."

Surveyor: GOP nominees

Feindt

Mary C. Feindt, 72, has owned Charlevoix Abstract Engineering Co. since 1946 and has served as county surveyor since that time. She holds bachelor's degrees from Albion College and the University of Michigan as well as a master's degree in civil engineering from the University of Michigan. As a licensed land surveyor, she has been active in the Michigan Society of Registered Land Surveyors and is an honorary member of the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping. Feindt lives in Charlevoix with her husband and son, who is a licensed land surveyor.

"What services could be added to those already performed by the county surveyor?"

"The county surveyor could establish a remonumentation program of government corners. Some work has begun on this behalf, but with careful consideration without increasing money allotted for the office of county surveyor and the increasing of taxes. I would not like to see another bureaucracy."

Ranger

Arthur R. Ranger, 29, is a fourth generation Charlevoixan. He is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and holds a bachelor's degree in land surveying from Ferris State College. Since 1985, he has been associated with his father, Al Ranger, in Ranger Engineering Co. Before that, he was employed by an engineering company in St. Joseph as a land surveyor. He and his wife Beth live on Barnard Road.

"I believe the county surveyor should spearhead a county-wide remonumentation program, chairing a committee of local surveyors to make the necessary decisions to regulate said project. Also, I believe the county surveyor should spearhead a county-wide L.I.S. (Land Information Systems) program, the computerization and retrieval of all county land records. These systems are here and in use around the country. It's time to catch Charlevoix County up with the technology."

Yaroch

handle day to day operations within the parameters established by council and set forth in the city charter."

"Should the city continue to hire outside engineering services or should it hire an in-house engineer? And why?"

"It depends on the long range needs of the city. If council and management forecast significant engineering services as a continuing need, then it would seem a prudent decision to invest in the employment of a city engineer, from both a practical and economic standpoint, and I suspect this is the case. If the engineering requirements are such that only a periodic increase in the workload is demanded from time to time, then perhaps city monies are better spent with the occasional employ of an outside firm. However, as Charlevoix continues to experience growth as it has, I really don't see the demand for professional engineering diminishing in the foreseeable future."

"Do you favor establishment of a charter review commission? And, if so, what areas need looking at?"

"I believe the city council should be the governing body which is continuing reviewing the city charter, and proposing modification from time to time as may be deemed appropriate by constituents and city management. This could be done annually, or perhaps biennially as conditions dictate. If we are going to establish yet another layer of bureaucracy in city government, at taxpayers' expense, I suggest a zoning review commission be established so our planning commission and zoning board of appeals have ordinances to work with which more accurately reflect the concerns and desires of the citizens of this community and which complement the city's master plan, which is also in dire need of review and updating by a commission of this nature. This I see as perhaps the most important, immediate need of the city at this time, to enable our units of government already in place, to effectively control orderly growth in a manner acceptable and desirable to city residents and the business community alike."

"What do you think of the

Grandvue tax OK requested

County voters are being asked in the primary to approve a tax of three-quarters of a mill for three years to help pay for operation of the facility.

Grandvue, run by the county, has 73 skilled nursing beds and 27 supervised residential care beds.

The state reimburses the county 80 percent of patient costs says Regina Shafer, administrator.

Minimum state staffing requirements are one nurse or aide for every eight patients on day shift, one per 12 afternoons and one per 15 midnights. Grandvue staffs at one to five days, one to seven afternoon and one to 11 midnights.

Average cost of a patient's care is $65.75 per day. Current reimbursement from Medicaid is $61.34 per patient per day with the state reclaiming $4.19, resulting in a reimbursement of $57.15.

Eighty percent of the patients are covered by Medicaid.

A say in the Supervised Residential Care (SRC) section which is not reimbursed by Medicaid but reimbursed through general assistance or through the patient's own funds, costs $33.66. The average revenue is $22.87. Staffing at SRC is at state minimum.

Eighty-three percent of the costs of operation of the facility is earmarked for employee wages and benefits. The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners put the millage request on the ballot. The tax levy would mean increased taxes of $15 per year on a $40,000 house.

should see to it that all complaints are quickly taken care of.

"Our town is looking and doing better. We are the envy of a very large number of communities. Charlevoix has a very good reputation to uphold and a mayor should be the most ardent of all persons.

"Many of our well-landscaped and well-maintained private projects came from our often criticized developers. Without them, our town would be less appealing.

"The mayor should be a leader in promoting civic pride and encouraging investments in our promising future. The mayor should be the best informed citizen of our city. To be that informed, he must attend scores of meetings both in town and out of town.

"He should always be available and ready to go anywhere at anytime. And so doing, it should be a pleasure and not a boring chore. He should not complain of the time or the hours spent. It is just part of his job. I try to do all the above-mentioned things — plus a little more."

"Should the city continue to hire outside engineering services or should it hire an in-house engineer? And why?"

"The city should have had an engineer years ago. We are now doing catchup on neglected utility systems, streets and sidewalks. With an engineer on board, we would never have been so far behind. Each year delay results in higher costs.

"A man here working forty hours a week and fifty-two weeks a year would be a money-saving asset. It is much more sensible than to hire expensive consulting firms that know nothing about our conditions or needs. We are not an ordinary inland city. We have complex waterfront problems and we own many properties unavailable to cities even larger than Charlevoix.

"An engineer would have more time to make more plans with less errors or misjudgments. Some consulting contracts would be necessary, but less seldom and for a shorter period. The city should be as smart as a successful business corporation. With a city engineer it could save $60,000 a year and get better and quicker results."

"Do you favor establishment of a charter review commission? And, if so, what areas need to be looked at?"

"If voted in by the people the charter revision commission could consider the following:

1. Change from three to four precincts — one alderman only from each precinct — one person elected at large would be the presiding officer, or mayor, voting as the others... who would be the decision making factor in every situation.

"2. Provide that the mayor appoint one council member and four citizens to designated advisory committees. These advisory committees to be fact finding boards that would pass on and present to the council information needed to render sound decisions. This might eliminate the present 'committee of the whole.'"

"3. Make a mandatory review of the existing charter every 10 years by a special committee that would or would not recommend amendments or revisions.

"If a revision commission were established they would probably discover and consider various other possibilities for a better working city government."

"What do you think of the direction the Downtown Development Authority has taken in its plans for the business district?"

"Every year more and more cities are using DDA boards to improve their deteriorating central business districts. The members of our DDA are sincere dedicated persons striving to do the same.

"I would suggest they reduce the number of their prime priorities and do these as quickly as possible so as to partially reduce downtown merchants' tax burdens. And also releasing some of the now retained tax revenues to the school system and county. There should always and forever be a DDA board to continuously upgrade the downtown area.

"The DDA has been discouraged in the lack of progress in the completion of their plans. I can understand this frustration. They should work only on those ideas fully accepted by the council. But the council should be fully aware of the progress or lack of progress on the DDA's proposed projects.

"Never again should there be a repeat of the restroom shootout. The DDA board has not yet fully recovered from that setback.

"The board needs the confidence of every council member. There should be more joint meetings between the two. I fully support and believe in the goals and plans that the DDA wants to complete."

He is a graduate of Boyne City High School, has an associate's certificate in accounting from Northwestern Community College in Traverse City and has owned and operated an accounting tax service for 20 years. In addition, he has 10 years' experience in banking. In his 12 years as county commissioner, Sutliff has become chairman of the County Commission on Aging, as well as chairman of the policy board of the 10-county Area Agency on Aging, chairman of the County Transit System and chairman of District Health Department No. 3. His community service record includes 26 years as a volunteer fireman and service on the Boyne City school board. He and his wife Eleanor live in Boyne City. They have two grown children and one grandson.

"What experience do you have that specifically trained you for the job of treasurer?"

"My 12 years as member of the board of commissioners gives me a good overview of the total county government operations. My background in accounting will be helpful. My desire to be a good public servant and place the general public first."

needs to reevaluate their goals. Charlevoix has lost its small town quaintness that resorters have always traveled miles to enjoy and appreciate. In 1884 Chief Seattle said, 'The white man treats his mother, the earth, and his brother, the sky, as things to be bought, plundered like sheep or bright beads. His appetite will devour the earth and leave behind only a desert.' We need an ordinance to save the remaining shore line of Round Lake from future development immediately."

"The normal engineering load of the city does not justify an in-house engineer."

"Do you favor establishment of a charter review commission? And, if so, what areas need to be looked at?"

"I am not in favor of a charter review commission. At this time, I feel our charter has been working well. 'If it's isn't broke, why fix it!'"

"What do you think of the direction the Downtown Development Authority has taken in its plans for the business district?"

"I approve of the direction the DDA has taken in its plans for the business district."

"What ideas do you have about increasing the efficiency of the Probate Court?"

"1. Mental health. Effective screening of petitions alleging mental illness to insure the proper facts and parties are available to establish a prima facie case before wasting court time and resources. This would be implemented by screening by an available judge and a clerk trained in mental health issues if the judge is not available.

"2. Guardianship. Appointment of a public guardian to avoid any possible questions concerning conflict of interest in the guardianship. This would mean the establishment of an office in the county building so the guardian or other support staff would be available to answer questions and serve as an information center for persons needing information on questions relating to other issues surrounding guardianships, i.e. funding sources and services available to wards.

"3. Adoptions. Insure that proper counseling is available to young mothers who wish to allow their parental rights to be terminated. In addition, proper screening of all parties who wish to adopt children, including psychological evaluations, counseling, and criminal history checks at the cost of the adopting parent.

"4. Trusts and estates. Information services by probate specialist to insure parties appearing before the court with interests in estates understand what the proceedings are and what will be the order of proceeding. In addition, all contested probate matters will be heard at pre-trial conferences to determine facts, issues in contention, and witnesses to be heard so as to save court time and taxpayer dollars, and the promotion of the settlement of contested cases in a non-acrimonious manner."

"What ideas do you have about increasing the efficiency of the Juvenile Court?"

"Pre-trials to be held in all contested cases involving abuse, neglect, and delinquency. This will promote the exploration of stipulation to charges alleged in petitions before the court, or negotiated settlements which review all the facts and issues and name the witnesses who will testify to the alleged facts.

"If trials are to be held, then use of depositions prior to trial, video depositions and conference calls are to be used to save court expenses for expert witness fees, trial time, and to save taxpayer dollars in the use of court support staff and court-appointed attorney fees.

"If trials are to be held, then they need to be started on time, with all expert witnesses reporting at scheduled times and being promptly placed on the witness stand to save court costs on expert witness fees. All other witnesses are to be scheduled in as possible to save their time and inconvenience. All neglect and abuse cases where parents may be requesting appointed attorney should be carefully screened so that the formal trial hearing is not started and then adjourned for another date due to requests for court-appointed attorneys."

being expedient in making decisions."

"What ideas do you have about increasing the efficiency of the Juvenile Court?"

"Setting deadlines for attorneys, expert witnesses, and setting policy to be adhered to; being expedient in making decisions. Working with law enforcement, schools, social services department, and other agencies to form a realm of cooperation to better represent the children and thereby speed up the process of disposition, saving taxpayer dollars by operating the court on a more timely basis, including the time expert witnesses and attorneys will have to spend in the Court."

The 58th annual celebration was chocked full of traditional events, including street and water parades, softball and running competitions, a queen pageant and music in the park.

There were 18 boats in the lighted portion of the boat parade, compared with just three a year ago.

Records were set in the annual foot races and a Cheboygan team emerged victorious in the fastpitch tourney (see sports page).

Lori Maue was crowned Venetian Queen at a pageant that featured an appearance by Miss Michigan.

Mulhauser's public service includes past president of the Emmet County United Way, current Elder of the Petoskey First Presbyterian Church, long-time coach for Little League, flag football, soccer and T-ball, for which he received the Outstanding Coaches' Award from the Institute for the Study of Youth Sports.

"What ideas do you have about increasing the efficiency of the Probate Court?"

"We have a 2-county district with duplicate functions in each county. Many of these separate functions can be combined. Timely use of courtroom time and strict adherence to scheduling will promote not only efficiency but save taxpayer dollars spent on court appointed attorneys. Further, the court should vigorously enforce the financial contributions required from parents who have children in county-supported care.

"By combining court functions between the two counties, by adhering to the timely use of court time and court appointed attorneys, and by requiring parents with children in foster care to pay their fair share, the court will run more efficiently and at the least possible expense."

"What ideas do you have about increasing the efficiency of the Juvenile Court?"

"The key to juvenile court efficiency lies in the early monitoring of the delinquent and protected youth in the court's care. When a young person commits a crime, he or she must learn that an appropriate consequence will follow. The judge must be firm and consistent. By closely following the young delinquent in the early stages of probation, there is an increased likelihood that rehabilitation will be successful.

"With regard to abused or neglected children, early follow-up is again the keystone to working with troubled families. It is vitally important that the juvenile court monitor the family's progress in the early stages of the case by working with school, church and community groups.

"Time is the enemy of successful resolution of juvenile problems. When dealing with juveniles, we have no time to waste. Our community's price for failure is an adult criminal. Our community's benefit from success is a productive citizen."

not amount to Hisey buying a parking variance.

The plan approved by the zoning panel was for two fewer spaces than city planner Gerry Harsch determined the hotel needed with its present configuration of rooms and office-retail spaces.

The $15,000 the city is paying for the property is about what the parking improvements along Pine River Lane are costing him Hisey says.

Landscaping and parking work at the Weather-vane restaurant is at additional cost, he says. And, he says, he still has to buy out the partner in his purchase of the property.

Completion of the Weather-vane work and of Pointes North Inn "makes commercial development of the north channel complete," Hisey says.

Not everyone on the zoning board - or the planning commission - thought the parking variance request was a good idea.

While members of both boards spoke of the value of keeping the north bank free of structures, several did not want to approve another variance for the Edgewater project.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

When I first started in the ministry, I had no idea that God would send lessons from as many different directions as He did. At my first church, a lady stuck her head in my office door one day and asked me something. She said, "Brother Bruce, basically I'm a pessimist about life. I want to know how you can be so optimistic about everything."

Now I'm going to let you in on something I couldn't tell her at the time. I didn't know what an optimist was.

In case you haven't caught on yet, this young fellow straight out of college didn't really know what a pessimist was, either! But this was my first church and being new, you just aren't willing to let folks know you don't know everything in the world. I decided to play it cool and answer her question with a question.

"Tell me something first," in the most pastoral voice I could muster, "what makes you a pessimist about everything?" She said, "I usually expect the worst and if something good happens great! If it doesn't, then I'm not disappointed."

As prepared as I tried to be, I just wasn't prepared for that answer. I had never been brought up that way and, from what I had seen in the Bible, I didn't and still don't think God meant for us to be that way.

The answer I ultimately gave her comes from I Peter 3:15. "But in your hearts set apart Christ as Lord. Always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope you have." Christ is the reason. Christ was her hope. Christ is my hope. He is your reason to be optimistic about whatever you may face.

Why am I such an optimist? Because I know God loves me. And you know what? He loves you too!

Yachting Notes

The Summer Series of the CYC, usually a cluster of light-air races, has already produced its first heavy-weather casualty, as American Blue, an azure Contention 33 skippered by Bruce Hubbell of Boyne City lost its mast on a weather leg in 18-25 knots off Oyster Point.

Roger Sievertson of Kiltiwake, who witnessed the dismasting, noted that Hubbell was fortunate that crew were not in the lee of the mast for the speed with which it came down.

The infamous Fall Series of 1987 still lingers in the minds of most with two boats, Stalworth and Hot Mustard, losing their sticks.

Well, with three races completed, the fleets are still fairly tightly bunched up.

The order, including a throw-out as follows:

Fleet A - Night Moves 3.75, Pygmalion 4, Minty 5.75, Gotcha 6, Babe 8, Sorcerer 8.75, Moisture Missile 11, Tiger 12, Allons-Y 13, Roll-over 15 Mr.

Breeze 16.
Fleet B - Tireless 1.5, Bandit 2.75, Blasen 5, Cygnus 6, Foxy Lady 8, Kiltiwake 9, Nulli-Secundus 11, Mud Duck 11, Sand-She 16.

Fleet C - Cabaret 2.75, Mi-Joy 2.75, Bald Eagle 2.75, Canusa 7, Flash 9.

Fleet D - Maureen 1.5, Sandpiper 4, Apothecary 5, Hot Mustard 6, Stalworth 6.75, Lost Vermonter 8, Cheemaun 13, Sunrise 14.

The CYC welcomes some new (old) boats to the fleets. Mark and Carol Pirie and their Cal-30 Mi-Joy and one of the clubs old salts, Lou Hollow in Bald Eagle, a Catalina 30. How'd you pick that name, Lou?

And poke your head down into the back shed of Irish's and take a look at the yacht that Cliff and Michelle Biddick have been building from scratch. Launch date for Solstice is June 23, 1989.

Till then, watching the western skies....

Irish Cup race has 35 finishers

BUSINESS

Student restaurateur Brad Flowers stands by the entrance to The Mill restaurant.

College students operate restaurant

The Mill is offering something different this year - not so much on the menu as behind the scenes.

The restaurant in a renovated century-old farmhouse is being operated by eight students in the entrepreneur studies program for Food Service Management at Ferris State University, under the direction of Prof. Ed Rogallo.

Early in the summer, the students and Rogallo arrived to open the restaurant which had been closed all winter.

"We went to work on general maintenance, cleaning and yard work," said Brad Flower, one of the students.

"We looked at the equipment and repaired everything that needed it. We ordered the basics for food preparation. We prepared menus."

"We took training in cooking and serving, with students acting as customers. Professor Rogallo pointed out our mistakes and helped us along," said Flower, who is presently serving as restaurant manager.

"From day one it has been a learning experience for us on how to open and operate a restaurant business, and with the help of Professor Rogallo, we are serving good food, giving good service, and doing a good business."

All eight students hope to own their own restaurants some day, according to Flower.

The Mill offers a complete menu of fish, poultry and meat, along with appetizers, soups and salads, and desserts.

The dining room is decorated country style with white cottage curtains, flowered wallpaper and bright accents, both antique and modern.

Cocktail and dinner service begins at 6 p.m. Reservations are not necessary, but are appreciated.

Convenience store added to gas station

The Charlevoix One Stop store-gas station has reopened after completing a major expansion and remodeling.

A 24-by 36-foot addition includes additional cooler space, a refreshment center and fast food items.

Imperial Oil Co., a division of Delta Group-USA, owns and operates the store.

Tom Bailey, executive director of the conservancy, said the group's board decided it was appropriate to hold the meeting outside Petoskey.

"It's good to move it around so people know we're their conservancy, too," Bailey said.

The conservancy serves Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties.

The organization's main project right now is raising $714,000 to preserve the North Point site along Lake Michigan in Charlevoix Township (see story on page 1).

Conservancy chief talks to history group

Tom Bailey, executive director of Little Traverse Conservancy, will speak at the Charlevoix Historical Society museum at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Bailey said he will be talking about the relationship between historical preservation and natural resources preservation.

Over the years, he said, many people have viewed them as two separate things, but there is a lot of overlap.

The North Point area is one example, he said. Besides being home to threatened plantlife and being an unspoiled dunes area, there have been shipwrecks and other historic events there, Bailey said.

And at Colonial Point, another area the conservancy worked to purchase for preservation, Indian artifacts from the 14th and 15th centuries have been found.

The public is invited to attend the program at the Harsha House museum, 102 State St.

The program will begin at 8 p.m., followed by a brief business meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Bridge Park proposal stalls

An attempt to cool a hot potato has been mashed and scraped aside.

A proposed compromise in a dispute over whether a sidewalk should be reconstructed to facilitate renovation of the Burnsides building was taken to city council Monday, Aug. 1.

But discussion among council members, audience participants and the building's owners never reached talk about the proposal.

The new proposal called for a 16-foot sidewalk along the edge of Bridge Park where a narrow sidewalk exists. Originally, the developers wanted a patio effect jutting 20 feet into the park.

Charlevoix Development Co. would pay the city $11,250 to help offset construction costs.

After prolonged arguments over whether the city would be giving away part of its parkland, council decided to ship the dispute off to the parks and recreation commission and Downtown Development Authority.

Before that, though, an attempt to reject any proposal outright was defeated 3-2. Voting for denial were Butch Russell and Earl Muma; voting against were Shirley Roloff, Bill Bellows and Bill Haggard.

The DDA endorsed the original project last fall and recommended spending up to $70,000 on the project. The recreation commission has not seen the proposal.

Dick Georgi and Arch Wright, principals in Charlevoix

Development Co., first took their proposal to the city last September. They appear no closer to having an answer than they were months ago.

Resident Bill Supernaw suggested council members were stalling until after the primary election and asked them not to wait until after the November vote before making a decision.

Georgi says the $275,000 renovation of the building would be a boost for the city, but would not make a lot of business sense.

The building would not be increased in size, he said, and higher rents and higher taxes would result.

"If you don't want us to do it, we won't do it," he said.

Leading objections from the audience were Ken Whitley, Dale Boss and Nanci Burnsides. Supporting the proposal were Traver Wood and Supernaw.

Burnsides urged quick resolution - "you're holding up my life" - while Roberta Whitley said the city should not make a hasty decision.

It's McRae vs. Probert for mayor

The next mayor of Charlevoix will be from the 1st Ward.

That much was clear as incumbent Ralph McRae and political newcomer Gary Probert ran neck-and-neck in Tuesday's primary.

Trailing was Shirley Roloff, 10-year council veteran who gave up a chance for a sixth term to seek the mayor's post.

The final unofficial vote was McRae 342, Probert 339 and Roloff 231. Write-in candidate Hagan Manker picked up 14 votes and there was one cast for Andy Essenberg.

In the 3rd Ward council race for Roloff's seat, James Potter (168 votes) and John Yaroch (78) will square off in November. Janice McKay received 42 votes.

"I'm extremely pleased," said Probert. "I believe the city of Charlevoix is interested in change and that's what I'm supporting."

Both McRae and Roloff were surprised by Probert's strong showing, with McRae saying "I have my work cut out for me."

"I got my socks beat off, didn't I," said Roloff, who promised by seek office again in the future.

Ahead-lines

Hoffmann Park completion approaches

It's beginning to sound like a commercial from a motion picture — "Three years in the making..."

But Hoffmann Park is nearing its premiere. The newest — and most formal — city park is being constructed on property donated by the late Walter Hoffmann.

The site overlooks Pine River Channel and connects by stairways with the new south channel walkway. The park entrance is on Park Avenue between Bridge and State streets.

The park is a mixture of green spaces, stonework and wood.

The centerpiece is a brick and concrete walkway with three circular pods. These areas, two with stone semi-circular seating and the other with wrought iron, will be lit by old-fashioned street lamps.

At the channel end of the park is the third circle, with stone seating and a sidewalk that descends to wooden, irregularly spaced stairs to the channel walkway.

An underground sprinkling system has been installed and plantings are being made. These will be followed by sodding.

Still to come are wrought iron fencing — originally from the property but being restored, lights and additional trees.

Though the park should be pretty much finished before August is over, a dedication ceremony might be delayed until October.

That is because Gov. James Blanchard is expected at the annual meeting of Keep Michigan Beautiful, which will be held in Charlevoix.

Coinciding with the beautification organization's activities, the park dedication could show off the city's newest attraction to a statewide audience.

The Downtown Development Authority is hoping the governor will plant a tree in the park as part of his visit.

Included in the Hoffmann project, but separate from it, is a commercial fishing interpretive display near the Beaver Island Boat Co. docks.

The park is the DDA's grandest project so far, following completion of the Erber parking lot last summer.

Still on its agenda as a No. 1 priority is reconstruction of downtown sidewalks. Enough money should have been collected from tax increases caused by new construction in the bridge area by next year to complete the walks.

N. Ireland teen visits

Visitors are impressed by different things.

For Aina McCrory, it's the people walking at night. Not the number, but that they're there at all.

Aina, 17, is from West Belfast, Northern Ireland — where it's not safe to go out at night. Or often during the day.

On a six-week stay in the Charlevoix area arranged through St. Mary's Catholic Church, Aina is staying with Ken and Carol Bartley and their three daughters.

During her stay, she is attending a Sting concert at the Castle, visiting Mackinac Island and attending an Irish party in her honor on Beaver Island.

Though she has had no personal problems in her hometown, Aina says there is trouble all around.

Aina attends an all-Catholic (all-girl, too) school and goes with her friends to all-Catholic discos and "leisure centers," which have recreational activities.

Aina has found another difference between Northern Michigan and rainy, cold Northern Ireland. So she's working on her tan.

Aina McCrory of Belfast shows off a T-shirt she brought with her from the British Isles. The shirt marks the 1,000th anniversary of the founding of Dublin.

Auction will benefit area council for arts

The Crooked Tree Arts Council will hold an Auction of Aesthetics on Thursday, Aug. 4, at 6 p.m. in the Black Forest Hall festival tent at Quick and Hoyt Roads, Harbor Springs.

There is no admission charge. Boxed suppers, boxed appetizers and an open bar will be available.

Over 90 items have been donated for the auction. Ernest Du Mouchelle, professional art and antique auctioneer from Detroit, will preside.

Walter Midener, internationally honored sculptor and resident of East Jordan since 1979, has donated a terra cotta reclining figure on a mahogany base.

His wife Peggy has donated a fantasy box with a split bamboo screen and four different levels.

Longtime Charlevoix summer resident John E. Simon has donated several items from his home including an 1890 French cast iron coat rack, 3 pairs of chairs, an original signed lithograph by Raphael Soyer and a twin pair of brass and iron antique beds.

Pierre Bittar, who summers in Harbor Springs and winters in Paris, has donated an impressionist style oil of a wood painted on-site in France.

A wood cut relief has been donated by Michael Pfliegerhaer of Petoskey and David Pickett, Bay View summer resident has donated an impressionistic acrylic painting.

Other items available at the auction are services such as a round-trip flight to Mackinac Island and lunch at the Grand Hotel, use of a Grand Cayman Island condominium and a week at a Cable Beach, Bahamas, condominium. A drawing will be held at the end of the auction for a $100 gift certificate from Tapawingo.

Composition honoring Odmark gets 1st playing on bandshell-alumni day

One of the compositions being played for Clarence Odmark during his tribute concert will be a number he's never heard before.

That's because the original work has been written for and dedicated to "Odle," the 29-year Charlevoix school band director.

It will be played for the first time during the 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, concert in East Park.

The concert grew out of plans to replace the never-finished bandshell stage in the park with a structure dedicated to Odmark, who retired in 1975.

A committee raising funds for construction of a bandshell had the composition written by Dr. Ronald Thielman, a top composer of band music, for $1,500.

Thielman is credited with being one of the 25 most performed composers of band music in the world. He is a music professor at New Mexico State University in Las Cruces.

It will be a busy night for some of the 40 or so musicians expected to take part in the event. A smaller group — made up of Charlevoix High alumni — will be playing at a dance after the concert.

The dance, in the high school gym, is in celebration of the school's 100 graduating classes.

All alumni are being invited to attend the dance. There is also an informal family picnic scheduled at Depot Beach on Sunday, Aug. 7.

Underbridge walkway funds get initial OK from state

A state grant to build a walkway under the southern arm of the downtown bascule bridge has gotten initial approval.

The grant — which provides $12,500 to be matched by the city — would come next year if it receives final approval.

Still needed is an OK from the federal Office of Ocean and Coastal Resource Management.

That OK is expected in September.

The city figures the project will cost about $35,000.

When the walkway is completed, pedestrians will be able to travel from the new south channel walkway into the Round Lake Yacht Basin area without crossing Bridge Street.

A similar underbridge walkway exists under the north side of the bridge.

City loses fight over lake pilings

The city cannot force removal of wooden pilings from Lake Charlevoix near the end of Easton Street, a circuit judge has ruled for the second time.

The lawsuit, filed by the city against Lundy-Hick Co., involved two clusters of pilings constructed at Northwest Marine.

The city said the clusters interfered with the city's right of way for Easton Street, which runs to the water's edge even though the road itself does not.

The company said the city had only an easement, not right of way, so it had no riparian rights in the water beyond the end of the street.

The city appealed Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas' ruling in favor of Lundy-Hick to the state appeals court.

The court sent the case back to the circuit court because, it said, Pajtas applied the wrong standard of law to the case.

Winning shirt design

Chris Way (right) was the winner in the annual Venetian Festival T-shirt design contest sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Presenting her prize is Jacquie Merita, executive director of the chamber.

Band boosters raise cash for uniforms

A 50-50 drawing held by the Charlevoix Band Boosters during Venetian Festival raised $448 for the organization.

Winner of the drawing was Martha Skeel.

Proceeds go into a fund for uniforms and band equipment.

This was the group's first involvement in Venetian in 12 years.

OPINIONS

Viewing tower would be unique

Editor,
In support of Dale Boss, and in response to my neighbor and long-time friend, Edith Gilbert, I would like to add my comments regarding the old water tower to theirs. Since I lived adjacent to the tower in question even prior to Edith, I feel qualified to respond to her criticisms of keeping it as a viewing tower.

In 1925 my father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. McMillan, built the house at 219 Park Ave. where they lived with their three children next door to Julius Gilbert's mother and father who lived at 217 Park Ave. with their son. Though I do not know when Edith came to Charlevoix, it seems obvious that my association with the tower is at least as long as hers.

Letters to the editor:

Unlike her memories, however, mine are all pleasant memories of playing beneath it, protected by the old Coast Guard station whose attendants and lookouts guarded the Michigan beach as well as the channel; memories of returning home on vacations from college and having my first sight of Charlevoix by the lights on the tower. I do not remember ever being alarmed because "raindrops were falling on my head." As a matter of fact, since it is no

Two special events in town this weekend

A lot of interesting people will arrive in Charlevoix for the weekend of Aug. 6th. Two landmark events are taking place on Saturday.

First, there will be the gala concert in the park in honor of Clarence Odmark, beloved band director. A special musical selection composed by renowned band composer Dr. Ronald Thielman will be played in "Odle's" honor.

Over 80 musicians, including some former students who are now band directors elsewhere, will gather on the old bandstand.

Many of his fellow musicians will perform his all-time favorite selections, and for the closing number for the concert, Gary Stutzman, co-chairman of the event, invites any and all musicians with instruments to join the band on the stage.

With luck, this time next year, there will be a beautiful new band pavilion in the park, to replace the present unfinished, roofless crumbling platform.

This is something "Odle" has always wanted, and the contributions for the new Clarence A. Odmark Pavilion are coming in daily.

The second important event celebrates the 100 graduating classes of Charlevoix High

EDITH GILBERT

School. It's fortuitous, and not accidental, that these two events were planned to coincide.

Among the many people, who are making this sentimental journey for the reunion is a very interesting couple, Maggie and Ferd Greifenstein.

Maggie, nee Byrnece Margaret Lamphear, formerly of 209 Mason St., graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1934. She is a former hospital administrator, who won many ribbons and prizes for her work in oils and ceramic sculpture, before turning to writing poetry. Her husband, Ferd, has taught pharmacology and anesthesiology. They now live in Little Rock, Ark.

The two recently had published a delightful book of poetry, "At The Bend of Winter," by Wyndham Hall, an off-shoot of the Foundation Press of the University of Notre Dame.

Some of Maggie's poems relate to her early life in Charlevoix. This is an excerpt of "She Hugged Me."

The beach, the ship channel, and me, always teasing Mamma to let me jump in the deep water with Jr. and the older kids, me promising I wouldn't.

The "Manitou" steaming in from Mackinac Island, her orchestra playing "Over the Waves," passengers waving and drinking beer, and me, jumping in behind her, water boiling white, spinning me like a top. Maggie writes me they'll be staying at the Foster Boats Works Inn Aug. 5-12 if any of her classmates want to get in touch.

Freedoms go down tube

Hooray for the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The court on Monday wisely turned thumbs down on a plan by Michigan State Police to establish sobriety checkpoints throughout the state in order to get drunks off the highways.

Don't get me wrong. Drunks have no place behind the wheel of a motor vehicle.

But to stop every motorist in a dragnet for drunks is an abominable violation of the rights of American citizens.

The court said the goal is admirable — but that sobriety checkpoints are an infringement on Fourth Amendment rights. In other words, they are unconstitutional.

The Fourth Amendment, you'll remember, is the one guaranteeing that Americans are "secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures."

The court also said that sobriety checkpoints, which are used by 37 other states, aren't all that effective anyway.

It will be interesting to see what other states do in light of the Michigan Appeals Court decision.

It is unfortunate that Americans have to be eternally on guard to protect their liberties, but the eagerness of folks in authority to apply the thumb screws to the rest of us is beyond belief.

A case in point is Charlevoix's outrageous new police-state ordinance that prohibits us from visiting our parks after midnight.

The last I heard it was the taxpayers of Charlevoix who bought our parklands and developed them. And we continue to pay for their upkeep and improvement.

Yet our esteemed city council, in an effort to muzzle a few rowdies, has elected to remove the parks from public use for one quarter of every day.

I am surprised there hasn't been a howl and cry across the city. But no one apparently gives a damn and we are doomed to watch another freedom go down the tube.

I, for one, would like to see the ordinance struck down in court, if anyone has a few thousand bucks to throw into a worthy cause.

Of course, the council could recind its silly ordinance — but don't hold your breath.

I HESITATE to kick dead horses, but the Detroit Free Press came up with some interesting figures on high-speed police chases in its July 31 edition: "According to Free Press records, at least 21 uninvolved motorists or bystanders have been killed in the Detroit area as the result of police chases since 1982."

The comment was included in a story about a 35-year-old South Rockwood man on his way to work who was struck and killed by a car being chased by the Brownstown Township police. The guy being chased also was killed.

Are police chases really worth so much heartbreak?

Crabgrass thriving in petunia patch

Editor,

Petunias like hot weather but crabgrass likes it more — the hotter the better. Hence, our weeding problem this year in spite of the weed blanket.

Crabgrass thrives in the crack between the weed blanket and the curb and along the edge of the grass on the sidewalk side. Where there is a missing petunia, there's a healthy, happy crabgrass plant being watered daily by the Bosses.

In the worst areas crabgrass will share the hole made for the petunias, its roots becoming entwined with the petunia roots and its two-foot, long branches reaching under the weed blanket — in some cases rooting on top of the weed blanket.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful

welcomes volunteers weeding but when weeding mature crabgrass, gather all branches of crabgrass or it will simply break off, resulting in a pruning action and encouraging growth.

There are several senior citizens who weed their frontage on cool mornings. The best example of property owners caring for their own frontage is the largest frontage within the city.

Ty Conklin, greenskeeper of the Charlevoix Golf Course, and his crew should be recognized for the care they've given the city golf course frontage on U.S. 31. They mow carefully to the edge of the petunia bed and weed regularly before the weeds become visible.

They even weeded a neighbor's weeds before Vene-

Saving water tower exciting idea

Editor,

It is with great excitement and hope that I have been reading in the Courier of the magnificent idea of saving the water tower!

If ever there was and is a man-made structure in your city that deserves to be saved and will return great benefits to young and old because of being saved, it is your 82-year-old friend that has for 10, so many years kept watch over the times of your lives from the high dunes along the south side of the Pine River.

It has marked the longed-for harbor desperately sought by the storm-tossed seaman, it has welcomed hot and tired travelers from the south as they journeyed to your Promised Land, it has become, without being planned to be, a theme tower of Charlevoix, remembered by many people in distant dusty cities "down below," and it has given you cool clear water to drink, both in your homes and from the street corner fountains that used to be found endlessly splashing in Beautiful Downtown Charlevoix.

A friendly, comforting and watchful friend it has been indeed, but it has also been a towering symbol of permanence and strength, roaring its songs of power and defiance in the great "gales of November" that strummed its columns and guyrods, shining in the lightning that it drew to itself in numberless thunderstorms, bathing itself in the rains and snows that blasted or caressed it for all these many years passed.

It has served you well, one and all, and now, after so long a lifetime, has the time come to tear it down from its well-beloved place in your city and its history, and to tear it from the hearts and minds of so many, like myself, for whom it has come to represent that which was written on it long ago — Charlevoix? I say that this should not be done!

Who can think of Egypt without thinking of the Great Pyramids, or London without remembering Big Ben, or of Paris and not see in their minds eye the Eiffel Tower (once considered a blot on the skyline)? Where is there to be found a building that suggests New York City as does the Empire State Building?

These landmark creations have come to be their own reason for being, and your Charlevoix water tower deserves to be saved and put to use, because it is there and it has been there for longer than most residents can remember. Yes, now there is a new water storage tank, but your original water tower is a giant of its kind, and from its great height some of the first and most interesting pictures of your city were taken, long before airplanes were anything but dangerous curiosities.

Mankind has always been fascinated by high objects and structures, and if they didn't exist for the people they were built, and the higher the better, and as they were built higher they became more famous.

There once was a tower on top of Mount McSaubie, and your forefathers climbed the stairway of that tower so they could enjoy the remarkable view from the top. Now, today, you have a tower, ready, willing and waiting for the right people, with the best and most practical ideas and plans to make use of its central location and time-proven construction.

It brought you water for your thirst for many years, and it can bring beauty, excitement and a view of the Lake Michigan islands for the people, for generations to come.

Indeed, as Dale Boss has said, you do have a "jewel" of sorts in the palms of your hands, an unusual opportunity to take a treasured relic of the past, and make it into a profitable and unique "theme tower" which will give those of us who are "earth-bound" a chance to "see forever."

By all means, rally round your water tower, people of Charlevoix, rally once again, for your city is surrounded by some of the most beautiful scenery to be found on "The Gold Coast of Michigan," and the viewing platform which, hopefully, will be built at the top of your faithful old friend will be the very best place to see it all.

Neighbor supports water tower viewing platform

longer a water tower, I fall to see the relevance of that anecdote.

Since I still own the house at 219 Park Ave., my concern for what befalls the tower understandably is great. I would not like to have people tramping over lawns or "pitching trash" on them, but Dale Boss assures us that this would be part of a park. My experience with viewing towers is far different than of people "dropping cigarette packs and cans into flower gardens."

When I go to Niagara, which I do periodically, because it is so startlingly beautiful, I go up in the viewing tower. It used to be that tourists took the trip under the falls, but since that is no longer safe, now we go up and look down at them. It is a happy experience. The approach to the tower is beautifully landscaped, and I don't remember seeing tin cans nor trash.

The same thing is true in St. Louis. From their famous arch you have a magnificent view of a city. Not a view, though, of Lake Michigan with the surrounding sand dunes, peninsulas and islands. In New York you take a ferry boat ride in order to go up in the Statue of Liberty, and in Paris the Eiffel Tower, built for the 1889 Exposition, is one of the most popular attractions in that city.

Why does Charlevoix confine its efforts at pleasing visitors to providing condominiums which only a few may enjoy? A friend of mine, visiting here from Kingston, Ont., remarked, "Why have they completely obscured any view of the harbor? It seems that only rich people can see Lake Michigan in Charlevoix!"

I do not know what is necessary to make this a profitable venture, but I have confidence in the intelligence and wisdom of Charlevoix business people. A viewing tower would be something special, a unique experience in our area. Dale and Marilyn Boss say it will make money for the community, and that it will be a year-round attraction for everybody.

And if Dale Boss says it will be a greater boon to Charlevoix than the petunias, then who can question it!

Cody going back for second bone marrow transplant

Through a series of letters, Susan Louiselle has been updating the community on the condition of her young son, Cody, who has a rare bone disorder.

Dear Charlevoix,

Well, this letter is really going to be a toughie, but I believe that I owe it to all of you who've supported us from the beginning of our battle to let you know how our son, Cody, is doing.

Our battle, as you all know, is against a rare bone disorder called Osteopetrosis. Cody was born with this genetic disorder, and like all children born with this, he is exhibiting the symptoms at a very fast rate. Because of heavily calcified bones, he has sustained fractures in both arms, loss of blood making function, and worst of all, an almost total loss of vision.

The only curative measure known for this disease is a bone marrow transplant, which Cody underwent in February at University of Iowa Hospitals. It was very difficult on him and all of us who watched him go through all the chemotherapy that was involved, but he was a trooper and made it through.

At one point, he was showing signs that the transplant was working. He had good bone marrow growth, and there were osteoclasts present. (Osteoclasts help break down old bone, and are what Cody was born without.) It appeared that the chemotherapy was ineffective in destroying all of Cody's antibodies, and he grew his own bone marrow back instead of the donor's. However, he did pick up the osteoclasts from her marrow, and they were growing like crazy. We were sure we were on our way to a successful graft and a cure for Cody.

Well, as we all know, some battles aren't so easy to win, and after a recent trip to Iowa for a checkup, it seems that we have lost the first round. The antibodies that were hiding from the chemotherapy somewhere in Cody's body appeared out of the blue almost six months later and decided to wipe out all of those hard-working osteoclasts. I believe this is called "back to square one," someplace I've never really cared to be.

But, his bones are growing more and more calcified, and the doctors would like to re-transplant Cody as soon as possible after his first birthday. They want to wait until after his birthday because they want to use total body irradiation this time, and a baby's brain is supposed to do its most serious growing in the first year. They are hoping that the radiation will destroy all the stubborn antibodies that hung around last time!

I often wonder how I'll make it through round two of this awful fight. It must be like giving birth to a second child, because you know what you're in for this time! However, I really feel that we have to do everything humanly possible to save Cody's life, even if it means putting him through a month of misery. At least I know there's a chance he'll survive. The doctor let us know, as we already did, that Cody's chances of surviving this transplant are a lot slimmer than last time, but it's not entirely impossible, either.

Everyone that goes there knows the odds, but they all feel that the risk is worth taking to save their child's life. We've known seven children who've died. Some parents took it hard and some parents were relieved to know their child would suffer no more — but they were all at peace with themselves in knowing that they did everything they could. We feel that we owe it to Cody to try it again, and then if something happens, we can rest knowing that we've done everything possible for him.

Being this close to death makes me realize something — I'm not praying any harder for my child than those 14 parents were who lost their kids. It kind of shows you who really has the final say and no one is exempt. We have to remember that at all times, and always be prepared.

My husband will be the donor this time, and we'll hope that between Cody and his Dad, the Louiselle stubbornness will conquer this thing once and for all!

In the meantime, we live day to day (which is common at our house), and love Cody as much as possible. He really is a happy little guy, and we pray that with the next transplant we have a cure so that he can grow up to be a happy big guy! Thank you for all of your prayers and support and I pray that none of you will ever have to face a challenge like this.

Bandshell alternatives offered

Possible alternatives to construction of a band pavilion in East Park have been brought forth.

A city-community committee has been working for several months on design and financing of a new bandshell.

No decision on a design, a construction schedule or a method of payment for the $135,000 structure has been made by city council.

The committee has raised about $17,000 to go along with $22,000 in city coffers.

Three alternatives to the pavilion were talked about during a Downtown Development Authority meeting.

The discussion was sparked by the reading of a letter to the bandshell committee from Dave Knight after the letter was not brought up at a recent bandshell meeting.

Knight's letter raised questions about size, use, cost vs. usage and design of the proposed structure. He suggested repair of the present stage with installation of a retractable sound projector, such as a canvas back.

The letter also called for a plan to be devised for the entire park before one section of it is re-terraced and the pond is moved. City council took such a stance last winter on the future use of Bridge Park.

If large sums are raised,

Knight said, perhaps the money would be better used toward construction of a year-round, indoor auditorium.

Another alternative, presented by Bruce MacArthur, is a movable barge which would be brought into the marina only for events.

A trial concert, using a barge donated by John McGoff of Star Lines Corp., is in the works for early October with a nationally known big band.

The third alternative briefly noted was a gazebo. Petoskey has three, including one used extensively for concerts in Pennsylvania Park, and Boyne City now has one.

East Jordan hosts arts fair

East Jordan's annual Portside Arts Fair celebrates its 20th year Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 6-7, at Elm Pointe Park.

The two-day art fair is held between Charlevoix and East Jordan on the shores of Lake Charlevoix.

Artists set up displays on the lawn, surrounding the 100-year-old homestead turned summer estate. Strolling musicians and jugglers entertain. Children participate in a hands-on art project organized by local artists and the Lutheran Ladies' sell ice cream and homemade pies through the fair.

Painter Sarkis Sarkisian founded the fair, along with other artists from the Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts. Among Sarkisian's faculty and graduate artists was sculptor, Walter Midener, who succeeded Sarkisian as director of the society. Midener now a permanent area resident, will again use the Portside Art Fair to introduce his newest sculptures.

"I have always waited for the East Jordan fair to debut a new work, because this fair has grown into a beautiful contribution to the region with high-quality exhibitions," Midener says.

"Purchase prizes" and ribbons are awarded in several categories. The "top purchase prize" in each category becomes part of the permanent collection of the Sygred Riley Gallery in the Portside Arts Museum on the estate.

Morris Everett shows off some pieces from his collection of movie memorabilia, probably the largest collection in the country.

Collector wants to share fund-raising techniques

by PEG OHLE

Long-time Charlevoix summer resident Morris Everett Jr. is a collector—but he's also got something he wants to share.

Everett, who has a 1½ million piece movie memorabilia collection, is looking for a way to share his money collection expertise.

The professional fund-raiser from Cleveland, Ohio, has offered to host a free seminar for people wanting to learn how to raise money for a charity or project.

"It's something I want to do because I like Charlevoix and plan to retire here some day," Everett says.

He has spent most summers of his life in a cabin on his family's (Wilson) property between Charlevoix and Horton Bay.

If enough persons express an interest in learning how to raise money for a specific purpose, Everett will be available to conduct a seminar in October.

Everett says he thoroughly enjoys his fund-raising work, but his hobby may be even more fun.

His movie memorabilia hobby began when he was in New York on a spring break from college and found a store that sold film items.

"That's how I found my life's hobby," he says. "Then, in 1963, I bought George Jessel's collection, my first."

"Since then, I've bought collections from all over the world. My most recent one is from Poland."

Everett's collections range from four or five pieces to 100,000 pieces and include stills, lobby cards and posters.

"I probably have a million and a half pieces. I stay away from props and autographs, though, because of the risk of fakes," he says.

His oldest poster—for the movie "Behind Prison Bars"—dates back to 1901.

Pieces of Everett's collection have been used for television documentaries on Hollywood stars such as Natalie Wood and Jackie Gleason, and for about 30 books on movies, most recently for a book on film sequels.

Many of his still pictures have been used by newspapers and magazines.

In order to dispose of excess material, Everett has opened a store in Cleveland called the "Last Moving Picture Company," but he continues to collect.

"I want to have 'a good piece of paper' on every (movie) title. I know I can never do that and I know it can never be finished. But that's why I keep at it."

Flower show produces 14 prize winners

The show, at the home of Tim and Pati Moore, attracted more than 100 visitors.

Team II: Edna Rosenfield, Nancy Fowler, Inge Ledahl, Mary Helen Riggie, Nancy Porter and Marge Dinwiddie.

The sixth grade class at Charlevoix Middle School, Annabelle Webb and Marie Stone received special awards.

Garden club looks at yard, daylilies

The gardens of Dr. and Mrs. James Gibbons at 12937 PaBaShan Lane will be the setting for the 1 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 9, meeting of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

Members will tour the gardens which boast some 700 perennials, as well as a variety of daylilies, and which have become Dr. Gibbons' hobby since his retirement.

A talk on daylilies will be given by Lynne Rosenthal, owner of The Gilded Lily Nursery in Stamford, Conn. which specializes in hybridizing this plant. Rosenthal is a member and judge of the American Hemerocallis Society and a summer resident in the area.

Garden Club members serving as hostesses for the day are Mrs. James Ledahl, Mrs. Clifford Biddick and Mrs. Bruce MacArthur.

Rabbi to speak to Kiwanis Club

Rabbi Samuel E. Karff of Houston will be the guest speaker at an open meeting of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club on Tuesday, Aug. 9.

The rabbi, who formerly lived in Chicago and has a summer home in Charlevoix, has spoken to the Kiwanians many times.

His talk this year will be on "truth and lies," emphasizing the importance of truth and asking when, if ever, it is right to tell a lie.

The public is invited to the dinner meeting at Grey Gables Inn. Social hour begins at 6:30, followed by dinner at 7.

The Barbershoppers Quartet will provide musical entertainment.

World War II veterans warned of phony deal

Charlevoix County Veterans Counselor Ron Geer is advising World War II veterans to stay clear of persons offering a special life insurance dividend.

Their deal is a hoax, according to Geer, who adds:

"This hoax is refuted every few years by the mysterious distribution of 'applications', often poorly reproduced, and sometimes directed to a non-existent 'Capt. Prosser' at the VA Insurance Center in Philadelphia.

The forms claim that dividends are available for the asking and promises World War II veterans a dividend based on their military service, even if they haven't kept their policies in force.

Rededication of the Peace Pole in Veterans Park at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 7, will be part of a service in memory of victims of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic bombings.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association, the outdoor ceremony will be led by the Rev. Philip Schairbaum, pastor of First Congregational Church.

Dow plan gets OK with house off water

A revised plan for a Round Lake house-boathouse has won state agency approval.

With its living quarters moved back over land instead of extending over the water, the Herbert Dow project has gotten a Department of Natural Resources permit.

Approval from the federal Army Corps of Engineers is still pending.

The proposed over-water residence on the north side of Round Lake created considerable controversy when it was proposed.

The city discovered it had no jurisdiction over structures built over the water, but has since amended its zoning ordinance.

The DNR objected to the residence being over the water and initially rejected the proposal. Dredging and dock work permits were needed.

A proposed apartment-over-boathouse for John and June Cross on the south side of Round Lake was also rejected at the same time by the DNR. The Crosses have been appealing the decision through administrative channels.

Weed-pulling session set in petunia patch

A one-hour weed-pulling "party" is being held as Keep Charlevoix Beautiful tries to rid Operation Petunia of crabgrass.

Volunteers will weed the west side of Bridge Street south of downtown starting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 4.

People in East Park at 8 p.m. with a bag of crabgrass will be given a coupon for an ice cream cone.

Members of the family with the most weeds pulled will receive hamburgers.

Dixon, sidewalk construction bids approved by council

The city is ready to begin reconstruction of Dixon Avenue and to build a sidewalk to Captain's Corner shopping center.

Bids for the work have been approved city council. The projects are separate parts of the five-year, four-mill reconstruction of the city's skeletal framework.

The Dixon Avenue work includes storm and sanitary sewer separation, street reconstruction and sidewalk repair on East Dixon from Michigan Avenue to Meech Street.

Doing the work will be H&D of Petoskey, which made the low bid of $256,682. That was about $18,000 below the city's estimate of cost.

There were five bidders for the project.

Construction of a sidewalk along the east side of U.S. 31 from Garfield to M-66 and along M-66 to Stover Road is expected to begin in the fall.

The low bidder was South Boardman Supply of Traverse City, which bid $52,960. There were three bidders.

Originally, the city was going to have property owners along the path pay for the sidewalk through payment of "special assessments," but council later decided the city should pay.

A LOT SEE A YACHT

More than 2,000 people—some waiting in line as much as two hours—toured the former presidential yacht Sequoia during its Charlevoix stop.

The ship will be returned to the administration Nov. 15 following its $3.5 million restoration and endowment-raising, 100-city tour.

The ship was sold by the government in the 1970s and was used for several unsuccessful commercial ventures before it was purchased by a non-profit group for restoration.

At a welcoming ceremony, the ship's captain was given several plaques, a Charlevoix flag—which flew over the vessel for the rest of its stay, and several checks—including a $12,500 pledge from Star Line Corp.'s John McGoff.

Miller-Knoop wedding

Leslie A. Miller and Rodger S. Knoop were married May 23 at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Michael and Susan Miller of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Rodger M. and Jane Knoop of Traer, Iowa.

The double ring rites were read by Father James Gardiner before an altar decorated with baskets of Sonya and bridal white roses, baby's breath, lilies of the valley, statice, greens, and candelabra. The church pews were marked with ivory bows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of ivory satin pean gansya with a sweetheart neckline. The drop basque waist and fitted puffed sleeves displayed a bodice of Alencon lace highlighted with seed pearls.

The full bubbled skirt flowed freely into a cathedral-length train accented with large candy box bows. A matching ivory satin hat completed the ensemble.

Shelly Miller assisted her sister as maid of honor, and Valerie Krueger and Emily Miller, also sisters, and Melinda Morgan and Annette Knoop, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

Mark Miller, uncle of the bride, and Charles Dinsdale, uncle of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Vocalist Leigh Ann Lovell and organist Jeanne Lignell provided music for the ceremony, including "One Hand, One Love," "Wedding Song," and "Ave Maria."

The bride's parents hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall, assisted by Sharon Shanebrook, Amy Spang, Katie Fletcher, and Marcie and Buffy Benton.

Before the reception, the bride and bridegroom, best man,

CHURCH

Assembly celebrates anniversary of church

by PEG OHLE

The congregation of Charlevoix Assembly of God will hold special services Sunday, Aug. 7, to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the dedication of their church building on M-66.

The Rev. Don Schorsch, who was pastor of the church when the building was dedicated, will return to deliver the morning sermon. He now serves a church in Brainerd, Minn.

The evening service will feature music by several members of Steve Stargardt's old band, "New Found Spirit," and vocal and guitar offerings by Oron from Spring Arbor College. Oron will also be part of the morning service and participate in Sunday School activities.

Following the evening service, there will be a fellowship time and cutting of a birthday cake.

The congregation of the Assembly of God dates back to 1948, when it had a membership of 19 people. The congregation grew and in 1950 built a church on East Upright Street, which eventually became too small for church activities.

The present church was then built, with the first service being held in it on April 16, 1978.

The Rev. Lowell Anderson, present pastor, is the 11th minister at Charlevoix Assembly of God. He assumed his duties at Thanksgiving time 1984, coming from Cedaridge, Colo.

The Rev. Lowell Anderson

Anderson's wife Sandy is church secretary. Other staff members are Joe Johnston, youth pastor; Cecil Drost, minister of visitation; Kris Way, bookkeeper; and Lee Kurchinski, custodian.

Singer schedules 2 church concerts

Oreon will appear in concert at Charlevoix Assembly of God on Sunday, Aug. 7, at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

She travels throughout the United States with her program of music and ministry and is coordinator of outreach ministries for Spring Arbor College near Jackson.

to both catch the very first fish of their lives. They did. Dave got a blue gill and Deb a catfish (hers on the very last one of our valiant worms!).

You may be thinking, "what could this possibly have to do with a devotional column?" I'm fixing to tell you. When Jesus first called his disciples, He said, "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men." That call really hasn't changed. Even today, we are supposed to be fishers of men - people who reach other people for Jesus Christ.

Telling others about Christ makes some folks as reluctant as I was about putting worms on the hooks for my kids. Yet once you begin, each time you share the gospel message it gets easier.

The look on my children's faces when they caught and landed their fish was priceless. I'll never forget it. But those looks are nothing compared to what you will see when someone you share with comes to understand God loves them and through Christ forgives them. I guarantee you that you will never forget it.

Come on, let's really go fishing!

REASONS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Into every father's life there comes more than a few reluctant ventures. More often than not, they turn out to be blessings once you take those first steps to see them through. Those statements are written to set the scene for what follows.

Basically, I am not really an outdoors person. I like to hike; ride my bike, play around at playing golf, even sneak in an occasional camping trip. But hunting (I think of Bambi!), skiing (I was raised in Florida), and fishing, well, they just don't speak to me.

Yet every child has Tom Sawyer or Huck Finn type dreams of fishing. Why should mine be excluded? After delaying it as long as I could, we hooked up the family camper. I got my fishing license and Debbie, David, Mom and Dad headed for Wilderness Park, Goose Pond and our box of night crawlers' date with infamy.

Do you remember the first time you ever put a worm on a hook? I discovered something. They don't like to be hooked. But after a while you do get the hang of it. To make a long story short, our goal was for Deb and Dave

Fastpitch team state champs

National event trip contributions sought

Charlevoix Foot Clinic found a way to win the state fastpitch tournament. Now its looking for a way to get to the national finals.

The veteran Foot Clinic team won the state Class C title over the weekend to earn a berth in the Amateur Softball Association National C Tournament.

That event will be played in Kingman, Ariz., on Sept. 2-5.

A bank account for donations to send the team to the finals has been set up. Gifts can be sent to Charlevoix Team to Nationals Fund, care of Roger Crain, 302 West Wood, Charlevoix 49720.

Crain is manager of the team that won five straight games — four by one run and the finale by two — to take the title at Petoskey.

It took a game-ending, bases loaded double-play to get Foot Clinic out of trouble in the championship game.

outfielder. Potter was 3-0 on the mound, and Loper hit .333 with a game-winning homer.

Also turning in strong performances on the mound was Keith Potter. And showing their hitting prowess were Dave Storm and Scott Clancy. Most of the Foot Clinic team members have been together for a number of years. The team has twice before been runner-up in Class C and D state competition.

Barb Evanish, owner of Antrim Dells Golf Course, tries out an Olds Cutlass which will go to the first person to have a hole-in-one on the 13th hole at Charlevoix Area Hospital's golf and dinner benefit. With her are Dr. Tai-Hae Kang (left) planning committee member, and Bob Klooster of Kusina Motors.

the first person with a hole-in-one on the 13th hole. And there are other prizes. Call 547-4024 for information or to register. Cost of the tickets is tax deductible.

Boardsailors at city beach this weekend

Up to 100 boardsailors may be competing in this weekend's 1988 Charlevoix Board Sailing Games (Wayler North Americans) at Ferry Beach.

The event will be held Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 6 and 7. Registration ($10) will be at the regatta site from 9 to 10 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 6.

As in the past eight years, the event will feature fun and recreational races for all abilities and different manufacturers' equipment.

In previous years there have been participants from all over the United States and from Canada and Europe.

The U.S. Olympic coach held a clinic with his top sailors in 1986 and in 1983, sports inventor Jim Drake sailed and gave out awards.

Hole in one shot

Bob Daunter of Charlevoix shot his first-ever hole in one when he aced the 144-yard, fifth hole at Antrim Dells with a five-iron.

He was playing with Bryan Griswold and Ricc Ricciardi. Daunter works for Midwest International.

Trash firm trying to fix bill errors

Computer problems are causing residents to receive large, incorrect bills, according to officials of Waste Management of Northern Michigan.

Even with a second mailing, bills are not reflecting payments made in the past few weeks, according to the company.

Attempts to explain the situation to thousands of confused customers and to correct the situation are being made.

More than 1,500 phone messages have been answered, with hundreds to go, said a company spokesman. The firm has between 6,000 and 7,000 customers in the area.

The problem apparently began when Waste Management switched from the former owner's computer to the company computer in Illinois.

Forms are filled out locally and entered in the computer from Southfield. Somewhere along the line, something was incorrectly coded.

The computer sent out bills with previous balances three times what they should be. Even a second billing is not always correct.

To figure out what they really owe, said the spokesman, most residents should just add $2 to their former monthly charge — making it $9.

Senior citizens are charged $7 a month and part-time residents are charged $15.

Bills are for three months, but can be paid a month at a time, the spokesman said. The computer automatically sends a new bill each month to customers who have not paid in full.

Deli opens at party store

Wharfside Market has added a complete line of delicatessen foods and a catering service for "your home or cottage, your boat, your office, or your club."

Operated by Dave and Gale Phillips, who are no strangers to food service in the area, the new deli features all sorts of plain and fancy soups, sandwiches, salads, dips, muffins, quiche, fish and steaks, desserts, and fresh fruit for take out or delivery.

The Phillips' will also create deli trays, gift baskets, snacks, lunch boxes, hors d'oeuvres, and complete buffets, breakfasts, lunches, or dinners.

The delicatessen and catering service is located in the rear of the market.

Advance phone calls to 547-6541 are asked for larger or unusual orders.

REAL ESTATE

Gregory Smith is the president of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors.

Home improvement — a topic that grows in popularity with each increase in mortgage interest rate — can be deceptive.

In spite of a widely held belief that any improvement adds value to your home, some bring little or no cash return on your investment dollar.

Home improvement — bargain-basement repairs particularly — should pay off in added resale value. But other improvements, such as turning a closet into a sauna, cost a great deal and will not return value equal to the cost.

Some more expensive sure bets in home repair or remodeling include a family room and central air conditioning. Often new kitchen and bathroom fixtures do the same.

Outdoor improvements require more careful thought. A patio may prove helpful in the sale of a home, but it's unlikely to return more than half its original cost.

Before remodeling, make a list of the work that is imperative and work that is merely desirable. Keep in mind that what appears to be a necessary improvement to you may not be worth the extra money to a potential buyer.

Pair serious about recycling, help others find waste centers

by PEG OHLE

Bruce and Charlotte Sanderson of Eveline Township really believe in recycling their waste materials.

They started sorting cans and bottles, papers and plastics when they lived in Ann Arbor and have continued during their years in northern Michigan.

Now, Charlotte has prepared a list of recycling centers in the area, noting what materials each will take.

She prepared the list following participation in a leadership workshop held by the Charlevoix County office of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service at the urging of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

During the conference, she delivered a well-received talk on recycling.

Recycling for Charlotte is a matter of preserving the earth and the air for children and grandchildren.

"People do many things for their children," she says. "They buy them expensive toys and clothing; they give them music and dancing and swimming lessons; they send them to expensive colleges. So why shouldn't they take some time and effort to ensure them a better place to live?"

"Buried waste is recognized as a source for groundwater contamination. Recycling can't solve the problem, but it can reduce it by 25 to 50 percent," Charlotte says in the introduction to her list, adding that while incineration looks like a good idea, it consumes only 70 percent of the waste and puts the rest in the air.

And, since she says recycling will benefit children in the long run, Charlotte suggests they are natural to help with the recycling process.

Among the places where newspapers can be dropped off for recycling is the Kiwanis Club garage next to Winchester Funeral Home on State Street in Charlevoix.

This collection place has been open for three years and has disposed of 150 to 200 tons of newsprint for recycling each year, according to Kiwanian Ken Weller.

Other collection places for newspapers are the Bergmann Center on Martin Road in Charlevoix and Recycle North, in a trailer on the north side of the Giant Food Store in Petoskey.

Tin cans, washed and squashed, may be taken to Fitzpatrick Salvage in Clarion, Park Auto Parts on Heise Road in Charlevoix (Rod Pittman), and to GTP Industries, a general recycling center at 1557 Premier St., Traverse City.

Glass, washed and sorted into green, brown or clear, but no window glass or glass bulbs, may also be taken to GTP Industries.

Used motor oil in sealed containers may be taken to Kmart in Petoskey, to E&M Standard in Boyne City, to GTP, and to several service stations in Petoskey.

Aluminum, including washed foil, eating plates, and aluminum lawn chairs, will be accepted by Warren Solgot Salvage on Bartholomew Road, East Jordan; Boyne Country Plastics on Lakeshore Drive in Advance, across from the big coal pile; and by GTP Industries.

Solgot will also accept cast iron, steel, copper, brass and batteries.

Boyne Country Plastics will accept all types of plastics that are washed, free of metal and separated into type of plastic.

Some items that might not be thought of as being recyclable are egg cartons, milk containers, Styrofoam packing pieces and beads, garbage bags and other thin plastics.

Bandshell design gets nod; city construction OK asked

A Victorian design band pavilion for East Park has received the endorsement of city council.

Next, the council must give formal approval for preliminary work - such as ripping out the deteriorating, old stage - to begin. That approval could come Monday, Aug. 15.

Mayor Ralph McRae is pushing for construction to begin this fall. He says fundraising activities would accelerate if work were begun.

Although some council members would prefer waiting until funding is in place, most seem willing to go along with McRae's suggestion.

The pavilion plans have been put together by a joint city-community committee working with architect Jack Begrow.

The building would be named the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in honor of the long-time Charlevoix Schools band director who is in ill health.

A concert saluting Odmark was held Saturday, Aug. 6, on the old bandshell. Odmark was among those whose efforts led to construction of the current stage.

That stage area was supposed to be a covered bandshell when it was built 30 years ago, but financial problems prevented completion.

City Manager Mike Wiesner, saying the city may be able to get partial state funding for the project, favors a go-slow approach.

But McRae, committee members, residents in the audience and some council members

Defense lawyers to stop work

by PEG OHLE

Five lawyers under contract with Charlevoix County to serve in court as lawyers for indigent offenders say they will not work after Monday, Aug. 15.

Attorney John R. Michael, representing the Criminal Defense Team, has advised the county Board of Commissioners that "numerous meetings have been conducted by the Defense Team within the past several weeks, wherein the taking of such action was unanimously agreed upon."

Michael said the decision reached by Mark Muniak, Gordon Boydston, Edwin Gregory, Kevin Klevorn and himself related to payments they are receiving for services.

He said late last year, the Defense Team, then working for $80,000 a year, indicated they could not continue to work for that amount because of the increased criminal caseload they were confronted with and asked for a 20 percent increase for 1988.

They were told more money was not available but, following meetings with county commissioners and judges, looked forward to some changes in the system.

Early this year, Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman drafted a new compensation agreement for 1988, offering the Defense Team $63,500, which they turned down.

The contract was amended to allow for contract review by both parties by April 1, 1988, and it was signed. According to Michael, the review provision was the only reason the Defense Team signed.

Nothing happened by April 1, he said, and the Defense Team met with county commissioner Don Smith, liaison for the courts, and requested an increase of $10,000 for 1988.

Later this request was modified to $7,500, representing the period from April 1 through Dec. 31, 1988.

Shortly thereafter, the Defense Team was advised they would not receive any increased compensation unless members could prove they expended more than 10 hours in a given case, in which circumstance they would receive $35 an hour for all time expended over 10 hours on the case.

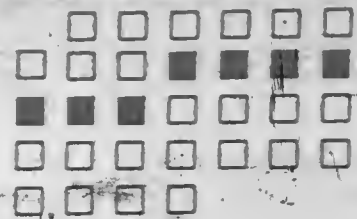

The Defense Team then decided to withhold services for the balance of this year, saying they were compensated "in the area of $20 to $25 an hour, which we decline to continue."

At a committee of the whole meeting last week, the board of commissioners decided not to take any action on the contract at this time, saying they hoped the attorneys would complete cases they are working on.

Discussion about how to supply indigent offenders with court representation in the future ranged from hiring a full-time public defender to paying members of the Defense Team on the basis of number of cases they handle.

Under the present system, each member of the Defense Team receives a monthly check for his share of the contract money, based on the amount of time that member spent in public defense activities.

Use of downtown sidewalks debated

Efforts are underway to come up with a uniform policy on businesses using the sidewalks in front of their stores.

At a merchants' meeting in July, there was little agreement among those present on what, if anything, should be done to limit sidewalk use.

A committee was set up to look into what other communities do to control downtown sidewalk congestion.

See Erber, city zoning administrator, has been checking on other cities' regulations and will report to the merchants' group. No date has been set yet for that meeting.

The committee is hoping to have a recommendation for city council and the Chamber of Commerce in September.

Complicating discussion is the dual-ownership of many sidewalks. While the city is the primary owner of downtown walkways, the property lines of many stores extend into the sidewalk.

City officials have said they doubt whether they can force owners to remove merchandise and tables from their own property.

Erber has also been checking on city ordinances which may apply. There is one section of the sidewalk ordinance which mandates that a six-foot wide stretch "be kept clean and clear for the free passage of pedestrians."

Widths of downtown sidewalks vary, with the widest being about 16 feet.

Some merchants put items for sale on racks, tables or the concrete in front of their stores. Some others have placed tables and chairs there to increase the area where they can serve meals.

Signs — particularly sandwich boards placed on the sidewalk to supplement standard signage — are controlled by a separate ordinance.

At the merchants' meeting, several business operators voluntarily agreed to remove sandwich boards and some other items from the sidewalks.

A large audience watched a tribute concert to former band director Clarence Odmark at the East Park bandshell which may be replaced by a pavilion bearing his name.

AN EVENTFUL WEEKEND

It was a homecoming weekend for possibly hundreds of Charlevoixans as two nostalgic events took place.

A concert in the park honoring 29-year Charlevoix band director Clarence "Odie" Odmark was attended by a large audience.

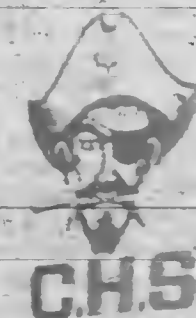

Participating the 50-member band were several band directors from around the state, members of Odmark's family who are professional musicians and many former students. Musicians came from as far away as Texas and Washington state.

One highlight of the concert was a composition written to honor Odmark and played for the first time.

Gary Stutzman, director of the concert and co-chairman of a bandshell replacement committee, said the band appreciated the community's support.

Following the concert, a dance was held in the middle school gym for former students at Charlevoix High. The middle school was the scene of high school days for many of the participants.

More than 300 alumni and guests took part in the dance and get-together organized by the newly reorganized alumni association.

More than 300 alumni and guests gathered in the middle school gym for a dance saluting the 100 graduating classes at Charlevoix High.

Bandshell: Questions unanswered

More like a train without a conductor than an orchestra without one, the bandshell bandwagon is moving too fast and gaining speed.

Voices asking for reason are being drowned out by the call for bulldozers and carpenters. Questions are stifled, hooted down. Options are rejected, left unread.

The bandshell has become as much a cause as a project. It should once again become a question of practicality, not allegiance.

With a haste not often seen, city council is poised to commit to a project that has no final plan, no final price.

There are many questions that need answers. A handful of people are trying to ask them, but are being ignored.

At the almost-certain risk of being ignored, too, we ask some of those questions.

What's the hurry? Council is being pressured for removal of the old bandstand and construction of the lower level this fall — with no final plans, with only half the cash collected. With all the puzzle pieces not in place, why take a chance on ruining East Park, the centerpiece of Charlevoix's many attractions, for the next generation or more?

Are we ruining East Park? We don't know, but we don't want to find out the hard way, either, do we? It has been suggested that a professional design study be done of the park before chopping it up and retracing portions. Council thought that was a sound idea when a proposal was made to alter Bridge Park, which has just a fraction of the appeal and use of East Park.

And what about the view? There was a heavyweight fight over loss of view on Round Lake when Edgewater was built and over loss of view when Park Place was proposed. The planning commission is still trying to formulate "view corridor" requirements residents said were needed along the south shore of Round Lake. So why is everyone so complacent about loss of Round Lake view in the middle of downtown? The proposed structure would be taller than Wharfside and within five or six feet of being as wide — about the same as putting another party store in the park.

Why this structure? First, won't an open-air pavilion have, at most, a three- or four-month season? Second, since there's no way to collect admission fees in the park, won't all paid acts have to be subsidized (no one's said how or by whom)? Third, the Victorian building may fit in with some neighborhoods, but does it fit in with downtown? Fourth, the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation is working toward construction of a year-round, indoor theater — wouldn't coordination of two similar efforts be logical? (If not coordination, at least conversation — but so far there is not even that.)

Are there better alternatives? We don't know because there hasn't been much of an effort to find out. When people have suggested possibilities, they've been ridiculed or ignored. Shouldn't this have been a first step and, truth is, we still haven't had an expert check whether the present bandstand could be rejuvenated, have we?

Where's the money? This is the big one. And part of the answer is: Nobody even knows how much is needed. There is no final materials list, no final design, no final site plan. And only half of what the latest estimate predicts has been collected.

Supporters talk about all the "in-kind" (that means free) help and materials they're going to get. But what if they fall short? Is the city expected to pay the rest of the bill?

The city manager thinks state grant money might be available to partially finance the project, but it will take some time to find out. The mayor and some others don't want to wait, saying items can be left out to trim the cost. Why cut corners when you might not have to if you're patient?

Where's the fiscal responsibility council members constantly talk about if they commit the city to a project that has no price tag? Isn't a real cost projection needed before the city commits even the $52,000 already earmarked from city coffers for the project?

Bandshell promoters keep saying they want to do the project right. But the way it's being handled is reflected in an answer the mayor gave to a question about the proposal.

Asked how the city could determine how much of the view of Round Lake the bandshell would block, he replied: "Put it up and look at it."

Graffiti to live your life by

Sometimes I chuckle at graffiti. Other times it disgusts me.

But there is one inscription, spray painted on the railroad viaduct over U.S. 31 west of Bay Shore that I really like because it gives me a case of the warm-fuzzies every time I see it.

It is located on the northeast portal of the viaduct and reads simply: "We are all together."

The sentiment is so profound it could provide the cornerstone of a new philosophy of life. Perhaps even a new religion.

"We are all together." Beautiful, isn't it?

"We are all together."

It sort of ties into one neat bundle so many aspirations: world peace, friendship, love, interdependence, security, the brotherhood of man and a primordial yearning to share the human experience with others.

Perhaps more than anything else it is a first line of defense against the fear and loneliness that all of us experience from time to time on our journey through life, just as a trip from Petoskey to Charlevoix can be a fearsome and lonely experience on a stormy winter night.

"We are all together."

The meaning of the legend is underscored by the fact that, soon after passing under the viaduct, drivers encounter the broad expanse of Lake Michigan stretching to the misty land of Infinity where water and sky meet.

Surely those of us on shore are "all together" when one considers the vastness of the lake and the emptiness of the sky.

But my concept of all-togetherness doesn't end there. The author doesn't explain just who "we" are, but I like to think he means all of us — men and women, boys and girls, young and old, living and dead — in short every human being who ever inhabited Mother Earth.

"We" certainly are "all together" on this tiny planet, spinning eternally in the void of space, and always will be. No matter what happens, we will always be together.

I am a little discouraged that our beautiful viaduct has been defaced by graffiti so soon after it was sandblasted.

But I would like to shake hands with the spray-can philosopher who came up with the legend "We are all together." I think we should have it engraved in stone.

RALPH HAMILTON is the best storyteller in town.

Saturday night, Ralph and I stood together on Bridge Street listening to the city's nostalgic musical tribute to Clarence Odmark, former director of the Charlevoix High School Band and the Charlevoix City Band.

The occasion reminded Hamilton of another concert he attended many years ago at Interlochen during the early days of the National Music Camp.

Hamilton said he was holding his son Nick in his arms and the youngster soon became restless, as three-year-olds are likely to become in the presence of the fine arts. Nick not only was squirming but was getting heavier by the minute.

Finally an elderly gentleman standing next to Hamilton offered to take the boy in tow and Hamilton gratefully relinquished his wriggling burden.

When the number ended, the conductor turned to the audience and announced that Interlochen was fortunate to have one of the nation's foremost composers in the audience and invited him to come up on stage to conduct the next number.

To Hamilton's surprise, John Philip Sousa — the friendly stranger — handed Nick back to him, mounted the platform and conducted one of his own stirring marches.

Burnside alternatives exist

Editor,
The city council delayed in making a decision on whether or not to allow a sidewalk to be constructed in the East Park expressly for the sole purpose of expanding Dick Georgi's commercial venture.

Last Monday (Aug. 1) the council decided to table the discussion until they received the opinion of the Parks and Recreation Department. What for? Why the stall? Either park land can be used for commercial gain or it can't be. It is as simple as yes or no. Why waste everyone's time — including Parks and Recreation?

The model looks good. But, honestly, are we blinded by good looks and money? Take off the blinders. There are other plans that would also enhance this area with the park remaining a park and the commercial building remaining a commercial building.

For instance, the Burnside building is large enough so that a 6- to 8-foot walkway could be constructed inside the property line, then Italian archways could be added for beautification. Another charming alternative would be to install large display windows with awnings and flower boxes all along the north side.

Letters to the editor:

As for the park, a separate issue altogether, a beautifully landscaped area with trees, flowers, fountains, sculpture and beautiful walkways could be designed. There are many renowned landscape artists who could do wonders with that land as it already is a natural beauty.

To sell Dick Georgi park land for $11,000 so he can increase the value of his building is ludicrous.

I would like to know what kind of ordinance would be issued. Maybe it would read, "If we think your plan will beautify, and bring in more tax money, we will bend the rules — just for you."

Come now, to be a judge, to sit on city council, one must have integrity, a knowledge of right and wrong, and a sense of fairness. Let's face it. This issue is not fair! It does not include everyone.

For if it did then the Parkside would be able to build a big deck — and the Wharfside would be able to build a sidewalk on the north side so they could also develop 4-5 small stores. The fact is, this is not the case; nor would the city ever allow Wharfside or Parkside to expand. Then why Dick Georgi?

Why waste anyone else's time and money. It is not fair, and you know it. Shelve the proposal. Get back to your job. Represent law and justice.

Columnists too liberal for area tastes

Editor,

This is a plea for just a little political balance in the regular features of your community paper. About half (perhaps even more) of the local residents and visitors in and to this area tend to be somewhat conservative as regards politics, law and order and work ethic. Your regular features ignore or insult us.

Bob Clock's recent tirade against the methods used by the county sheriff, and his follow-up article, read more as concern for the violator than for the violated. Charles "cheap shot" Duerr, in this (7-27) issue, uses Amos for yet another cheap shot. (I think this one aimed at the President of the United States but, if so, what does November and "the heave-ho" have to do with Mr. Reagan?) Your paper could get along quite well without the lightning bolt from "Out of the Blue."

Curious why no stories about the drug "busts" (excepting regarding the city attorney) during the past several months? Lots of room for names involved in major crimes (real and alleged) such as zoning violations and fishing without a license, but none for "causal" drug users, possessors and pushers.

Compliments, too... The in-depth articles on the candidates and their views were a great community service as is your ongoing coverage of local events, sports and school activities. Please don't be afraid to be controversial — but try to include the other view.

Animal shelter facilities, operations cause concerns

by PEG OHLE

Concerns are being raised about the adequacy and condition of county-owned facilities used for the care of stray animals.

Several incidents have prompted questions about the animal shelter by members of the county board of commissioners.

In the past two months, the county has received two veterinarian's bills for treating stray dogs that were destroyed a few days later. One bill, for $171, covered removal of porcupine quills imbedded in a dog's mouth; the other for $180, was for removing shotgun pellets from the body of a dog.

A visit to the animal shelter by two county commissioners found the ventilation system was not working properly and the freezer in which animal bodies were stored after euthanasia was not working at all.

Some local veterinarians have expressed concern about the physical aspects of the shelter and its overcrowding.

East Jordan, which has received more and more complaints about dogs running at large within the city, has suggested the county increase the 20 hours a week the animal control officer spends answering complaints and picking up strays.

The Charlevoix County Animal Shelter is operated by the county and is under the supervision of the public safety committee of the board of commissioners.

It is located in Charlevoix adjacent to the county jail, where animal control officer Julie Whitley works under the direction of Sheriff George T. Lasater.

The shelter was built in 1975 in the midst of complaints from nearby homeowners who feared that barking dogs and animal air pollution would be a detriment of the neighborhood.

In light of these complaints, the shelter was constructed without windows and without an outdoor run.

The lack of an outdoor run has been a major concern of veterinarians and others knowledgeable about the proper care of dogs.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society was instrumental in furnishing the shelter and purchased the cab part of the truck the animal control officer uses in her rounds.

The humane society maintains an office in the front of the shelter building. It runs a "lost and found" department, keeps a record of license tags and operates an animal adoption service. For several years it ran a dog obedience school.

The Humane Society employs Pam Korth part time as office manager. She answers telephone and personal inquiries about dogs lost and dogs found, finds suitable animals for adoptive families, provides information on altering and spaying and selects animals which must be euthanized.

County commissioner Don Smith, head of the public safety committee, told the Courier he is trying to arrange a meeting with the Sheriff's Department, veterinarians and Humane Society to determine what can be done.

Supreme Court turns down request to throw out Hayes lawsuit appeal

by PEG OHLE

An attempt to dismiss an appeal of a lawsuit over an Oyster Bay development has been rejected by the state Supreme Court.

Attorneys for Fox and Associates sought dismissal of the appeal by Hayes Township because the issue was made "moot" by a new plan for the site.

The court has also denied motions to add issues and to extend time in the case.

Petoskey attorney Seberon Litzenger told the Courier Fox's attorneys filed the motions because they believed the issues had been settled by the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Denial of the dismissal motion means the case will remain on the Supreme Court docket, to be considered at some future time.

The legal battle between Fox and Associates and Hayes Township dates back to January, 1985, when Fox filed suit in Charlevoix Circuit Court after the township had denied Fox a permit to construct a "planned unit development" on its 338 acres and 2,800 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline.

The suit centered on one portion of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance which limits development of lake front property to one living unit and one boat docking space for each 100 feet of shoreline. Fox maintained that the Rural Township Zoning Act, under which the Hayes Township zoning ordinance was written, does not give a township the right to regulate boat docks and "funnel" development, whereby owners of property back from the lake are given access to the lake through a small adjoining lakefront parcel.

At the request of Charlevoix Circuit Judge Richard M. Patjas, the case was transferred to Cheboygan County, where it was heard by Judge Richard Livo. In January, 1986, Livo found that the Hayes Township zoning ordinance was constitutional because it was rooted in state law and dealt with a matter of public interest.

In May, 1986, Fox and Associates appealed the decision to the Michigan Court of Appeals, which, in September, 1987, reversed the trial court decision and found in favor of Fox, calling illegal those provisions in the Hayes Township zoning ordinance limiting boat dockage and "funnel" development.

Shortly after this decision, Hayes Township asked the Michigan Supreme Court to hear the case, which, on March 22, 1988, it agreed to do. That was the last heard about the case until the recent Order noted above.

When asked if he thought the Supreme Court's decision would be rendered before October of this year, Litzenger said he would "doubt it very much".

Primary: All proposals pass, November races set

All local ballot questions on the western end of the county were approved in the primary election.

And candidates for general election face-offs were determined in city, county and township races.

Here's a rundown of how the voting went:

City of Charlevoix — Mayor Ralph McRae (344 votes) and political newcomer Gary Probert (339) ran neck-and-neck in the first stage of their mayoral contest. Council member Shirley Roloff (231) was eliminated from the race.

In the Third Ward, James Potter (163 votes) and John Yaroch (78) will square off for Roloff's vacated council seat. Roloff says she has not yet decided whether to run a write-in campaign. Eliminated from the running in the primary was Janice McKay (42).

Other general election council encounters will pit incumbent Bill Haggard against Jerry Left in the First Ward and incumbent Bill Bellows against Ken Whitley in the Second Ward.

Charlevoix Township — A two-mill operations tax renewal (184-113) and donation of the former township hall to the senior citizens group (273-27) were approved.

Winning nomination and having no November opposition were all incumbent board members: Superintendent Oscar Stroud, Clerk Carol Martin, Treasurer Thelma Williams and Trustees Nancy Rajewski and Dale Glass. Rajewski (125 votes) and Glass (105) defeated Chuck Center (103) and Linda Porath (84).

Hayes Township — Zoning administrator Ethel Knapp (99 votes) defeated incumbent Clerk Ron Graybiel (74) for the Republican nomination and has no opposition in November.

Wilma Kraft (29) defeated John Kintz III (26) for the Democratic nomination as treasurer. She will face incumbent Shirlene Tripp in the general election.

There were no other contested nominations. In November, Supervisor Paul Hoadley will face Democrat Stan Boris, while trustees Lloyd Kuebler and Leah Green will be challenged by Democrat Fred Parsons.

(66 votes) and Lee Ekstrom (53) defeated incumbent Republican R. Donald Roberts (49). They have no November opposition.

Uncontested candidates Allie Chipman, the incumbent Republican supervisor, and his opponent Robert Schmoldt will square off in November. Republican clerk nominee and Treasurer Larry Bergmann have no November opponents.

Marion Township — Sonja Martin (84 votes) defeated Rosalind McClanathan (65) and Elaine Dvoracek (34) for the GOP treasurer nomination and has no November opponent. GOP incumbents with no opposition in August or November are Supervisor Clyde Cunningham, Clerk Wilson Boss and Trustee Judy Wheat. Democrat trustee candidate Marilyn Marshall also has no opposition.

Norwood Township — A three-year, three-mill road maintenance levy was approved (88-59) and all board positions are unopposed. Facing no opposition in November are GOP candidates Frederick Siegwart, supervisor; Judy Carey, clerk; Nancy Lord, treasurer; and David Parsons. Democratic trustee candidate Randall Williams is also unopposed.

Passed were one-mill, four-year renewals for the island fire department (73-12), sanitary landfill (73-10), street maintenance (71-14) and additional road work (58-24) as well as a three-year, one-mill island library renewal (64-18).

County — Two tax requests were approved and a number of apparent November winners decided. The tax requests were new millage for Grandvue Medical Care Facility (2,766-1,453) and a renewal for Charlevoix Transit bus service (2,247-1,909).

Clerk Jane Brannon (1,958 votes) defeated Republican challenger Kimberly Simpson (1,025) and will face Donna Smith in November. Treasurer Joan Balch (2,103) defeated Oral Sutliff (1,019) for the GOP bid and will face David Manke in the general election.

KCB fund-raiser headliners set

Items in this year's Keep Charlevoix Beautiful auction include trips to Florida, Mackinac Island and Los Angeles.

Proceeds from the Labor Day event help finance the Operation Petunia flower project and other KCB activities.

The auction will be held at the Lepman house at Loeb Farm. Attendance is limited to those holding tickets on a prize pickup truck or those buying a limited number of auction-only tickets.

KCB is about two-thirds to its goal of a $15,000 retail value auction line-up, not including the $3,000-plus value of the prize truck.

The auction is expected to net about $10,000 for the community group. Tom Duke will be the auctioneer.

Besides the big-ticket items, there will also be some for under $1,000. And Bruce MacArthur, KCB president, is hopeful merchants and artists may donate other auctionable items.

Among the items up for auction:

— A cruise on the Star of Charlevoix for 25 couples;

— A week at the home of Frank and Pat (Begrow) Fox in Naples, Fla., for two couples with pool, Jacuzzi and tennis lessons by Sherman Collins;

— A Harbor Springs weekend with golf, cruises, dinner and condominium accommodations for two couples for four days and three nights;

— A Mackinac Island trip, including two nights at the Grand Hotel and other items;

— Overnight for three couples at the Boar's Head Inn and a guided tour of Earl Young buildings and North Point;

— Golfing packages, some with overnight accommodations;

— Two nights in a $500 a day suite at the Marriott Century City hotel in southern California, with dinner and room service breakfast.

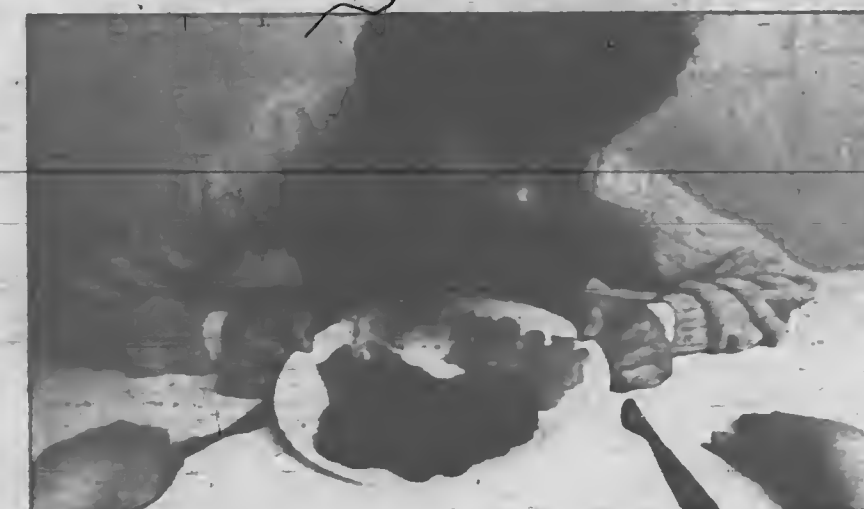

Other packages are still being put together.

Going-away gifts

Karl Walker (center), departing executive director of Chip Counseling Center, was given a surprise going-away party by board members and staff. At the party he received presents from board members, including (from left) Bruce Hamilton, Kaye Beatty, Marian Kohn and David Chulick. Walker is leaving because his son needs medical care better obtained elsewhere.

North Point goal inches closer with gifts from WATCH, others

The board of directors of WATCH, Inc., one of the prime motivators of the Preserve North Point effort, has helped push the campaign to within $90,000 of its goal.

The Little Traverse Conservancy is coordinating the attempt to raise $714,000 to purchase a 28-acre Lake Michigan shoreline dunes area.

With encouragement from groups such as WATCH and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the conservancy began last October to raise the funds needed before a two-year option on the property runs out.

With a $400,000 state grant in hand and $230,000 in local pledges, the conservancy is looking to wrap up the purchase by the end of summer, says Tom Lagerstrom, project coordinator.

"But we still need the support of a lot of people," to reach the goal he says.

The WATCH contribution came from members of the board, not from the general membership, president Jerry Puhl says, as a display of the support the environmental group's leadership has for the project.

"We felt this issue was a very important community effort for the Charlevoix area," Puhl said of the gift by 15 board members.

"We very strongly support it and hope many more organizations will follow through with donations to see this finished this year."

Conservancy starts membership drive

The Little Traverse Conservancy, a non-profit land conservation group dedicated to the preservation of natural land and open space in Northern Michigan, is conducting its annual membership recruitment drive.

Established in 1972, the conservancy has preserved over 2,000 acres of natural land in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties. Membership contributions provide the operating funds which make land protection activities possible.

In 1987, more than 1,300 families and businesses were contributing members of the conservancy.

All of the conservancy's preserves are open to the public. The preserves vary from the Lake Michigan sand dunes and orchids of Thorne Swift to the vistas of the Ransom and Johnston Preserves, to the lake or river access of Round Lake, Andreae, Rocky Point and Loeb Preserves.

Although most of the conservancy's lands have been donated, it has organized the purchase of several natural areas including Colonial Point and North Point.

Colonial Point is a 283-acre preserve that includes a virgin stand of red oaks near Burt Lake. The forest was slated to be cut before the conservancy raised funds for its purchase.

Similarly, North Point had been targeted for development. North Point has 2,800 feet of Lake Michigan frontage and is located a half mile from downtown Charlevoix.

Two city panels are looking at the latest proposal to end a deadlock on requested improvements to Bridge Park.

The Downtown Development Authority met this morning to study the proposal and the recreation commission is set to meet at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 11.

City council requested the two boards look at the proposal, which has been a political hot potato since it was first brought up last September.

The DDA has previously endorsed creation of a decorative walkway along the side of the Burnside building adjacent to the park.

The panel also has talked with the building's owners — Dick Georgi and Arch Wright of Charlevoix Development Co. — about ways of financing the work.

The recreation commission has not yet looked at the original proposal or the latest one.

Georgi and City Manager Mike Wiesner have submitted a scaled down plan that would replace the present sidewalk at that location with a wider one

City boards weighing Bridge Park proposal

Two city panels are looking at the latest proposal to end a deadlock on requested improvements to Bridge Park.

The Downtown Development Authority met this morning to study the proposal and the recreation commission is set to meet at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 11.

City council requested the two boards look at the proposal, which has been a political hot potato since it was first brought up last September.

The DDA has previously endorsed creation of a decorative walkway along the side of the Burnside building adjacent to the park.

The panel also has talked with the building's owners — Dick Georgi and Arch Wright of Charlevoix Development Co. — about ways of financing the work.

The recreation commission has not yet looked at the original proposal or the latest one.

Georgi and City Manager Mike Wiesner have submitted a scaled down plan that would replace the present sidewalk at that location with a wider one and make it level with the first floor of the side of the building.

In exchange, Charlevoix Development would pay the city $11,200 — the estimated cost of constructing the sidewalk.

Georgi and Wright originally wanted a 29-foot patio-type sidewalk with landscaping and permanent benches. They also favored terracing the park.

When the new proposal was taken to council earlier this month, discussion continued on whether any project should proceed. No discussion was held on the new proposal.

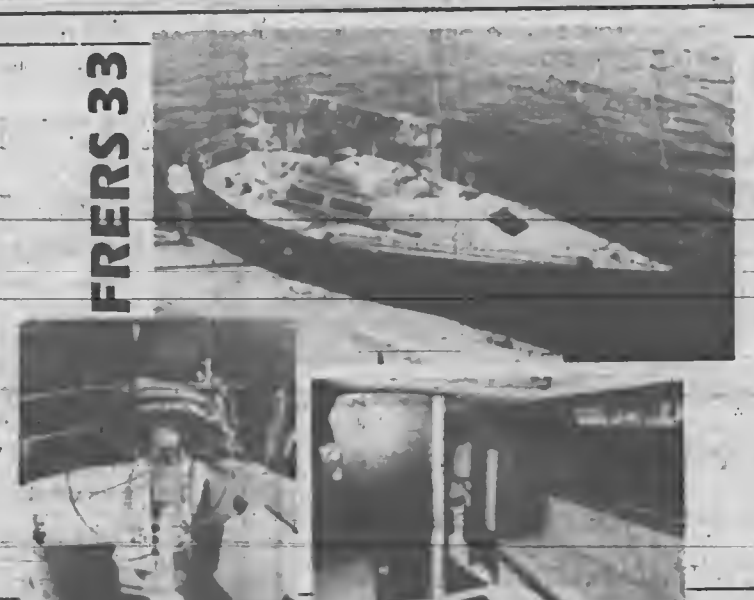

Charlevoix Development says it wants the sidewalk renovation to alter the building so five storefronts can be placed along the north, park side.

This would create a more attractive view for motorists entering the downtown from the north, they say, even though it would not be economically advantageous for them.

With higher rents and smaller stores, Georgi says, Charlevoix Development would not make out as well as it does now with a larger, Bridge Street-facing single store.

Social Security cautions against paying for free services

The Social Security Commission's Petoskey office is warning people about direct mail solicitations asking that they pay $7 to join an organization that says it will provide many services related to Social Security.

There is no need to pay any firm money to obtain any of the services provided by Social Security, says branch manager Gordon Sattelmeyer.

In return for the $7 payment the firm offers to provide a statement of a person's earnings covered by Social Security, a plastic Social Security card and a guide to Social Security, he says.

But to obtain a statement of covered earnings, without paying anybody, call the Petoskey Social Security office and request a statement of earnings form.

Complete the form and mail it; you will receive the statement in a few weeks, he says.

The plastic Social Security card is of no use for Social Security purposes. The card issued by the Social Security Administration is the only official card and should be used whenever a Social Security card is needed, says Sattelmeyer.

And, he says, there are lots of free publications about Social Security at any Social Security office.

Free information and free Social Security cards can be obtained at the Petoskey office at 911 Spring Street or by calling 347-8777.

Yachting Notes

CYC's newest ingot, an East Jordanian named Lost Vermonter of all things, captured its first gun Wednesday, Aug. 3, in winning its Jam fleet in a wisely-shortened race in light air.

This fleet may have found someone to break the stranglehold that Maureen and Sandpiper have held on the blue flag for the past two years.

The spinnaker ingots in fleet B have been drooling at the idea of bringing up these Jammers and creating a full fleet of P-26's, those lead sleds that theoretically should be dead in the water in anything under 8-10 knots, but continually are whipped into speed by their crews that may well contain the more knowledgeable sail-trimmers in the fleet.

Sorcerer in fleet A was the only sloop to complete the course in under one hour. She was followed by Tom Mueller in Gotcha, Miss Piggy, Minty, the Hawkins in Nite Moves and Mr. Breeze.

Bandit, under the helm of Hank Cauthra, managed to find enough williwaws to beat out Paul Hoadley's Foxy Lady, followed by Blazen, SanSueShe, Cygnus, Nulli-Secundus, Kit-tiwake and Tireless.

No, Tireless didn't retire. Rather than throwing in his cards on this race, he crossed the finish line dead last but with his chute full and drawing and deserves a boathorn salute for his persistence.

Fleet C brought home Mi-Joy, Cabaret, Canusa and Bald Eagle.

Fleet D produced Ron Tinney in Vermonter, Maureen, Apothecary, Sandpiper, Hot Mustard, Stalworth and Sunrise.

The J-22 Fleet continues to grow. It now contains six boats and someday they might name them all. Bill Kenifeck took first with a veritable horizon job on Allons-Y, with Bill Bable, Dick Lepman's Babe and Minors all tightly packed together.

Three more races for a summer series that is gaining repute for ensuring light airs. Till then.

Post office restoring lunchtime window hours

Full-time window service at Charlevoix's and other post offices will resume Saturday, Sept. 10.

Window service hours were reduced in February as a temporary measure in response to the cuts in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act.

Postmaster General Anthony

Frank says savings generated by other actions, primarily internal, are sufficient to meet the requirements of the Budget Act.

Service hours were reduced at post offices by an average of one-half day to meet budget requirements. In Charlevoix that amounted to a one-hour shut-down at lunch time.

NRC chief visits Big Rock

Lando W. Zech Jr., chairman of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, inspected Consumers Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear plant and was pleased with what he saw.

The NRC chairman, who has visited 104 nuclear plants across the nation since he took over as head of the commission in 1985, told plant employees following his inspection that "it turns out I saved one of the best for last."

"It is encouraging to me to see plants that operate as well as some of the plants I've visited recently, including Big Rock Point," Zech said.

Noting Big Rock Point has gone almost 11 years without a serious injury to an employee, Zech said, "You have an excellent industrial safety record and I commend you for that. You should all be very proud of that."

Zech is a retired Navy vice admiral and nuclear submarine commander. He was appointed to the NRC by President Reagan in 1984 and was appointed chairman two years later.

Owned and operated by Consumers Power Co., Big Rock Point is the second oldest operating commercial nuclear plant in the company. Operations began in 1962.

Coast Guard revises maritime search, rescue policy

The Coast Guard has refined its maritime search and rescue assistance policy in an effort to provide mariners with a better understanding of the assistance available when a non-emergency response is required.

The changes resulted from 14 public meetings around the country and evaluation of 2,400 written comments from the public.

The refinements provide that:

- In any situation in which the mariner is in immediate distress, an immediate response will be initiated. This response may be provided by the Coast Guard, the Coast Guard Auxiliary, or resources of state, local, commercial or private entities.

- If neither the mariner nor the vessel is in immediate distress, the Coast Guard will defer to an alternate responder which can be on scene within a reasonable period of time, usually one hour or less. The Coast Guard will assist in contacting any specifically requested alternate assistance, such as a commercial provider, marina or friend.

- If contact attempts are unsuccessful, the Coast Guard will offer to initiate a Marine Assistance Request Broadcast. This broadcast is made to determine if someone in the area can come to the assistance of the mariner. It is an invitation for alternate responders such as commercial providers or good samaritans to offer assistance if they desire and can be on the scene within a reasonable period of time, usually one hour or less.

- If no response to the MARB is forthcoming in a reasonable period of time, usually 10 minutes, the Coast Guard may dispatch an auxiliary resource, and if one is not available, then a Coast Guard resource.

- The mariner may decline the assistance offered, and the Coast Guard may make additional MARBs, but if the first assisting resource on scene is a commercial provider, only one additional MARB will be made. If the commercial service is rejected, the Coast Guard may provide a list of telephone numbers of alternate commercial providers upon request, if alternatives are available. The mariner may contact these through the facilities of the marine operator.

- If the Coast Guard or the auxiliary takes a disabled vessel in tow, it normally will tow the vessel to the nearest safe haven where safe mooring is afforded and a telephone is available for the use by the mariner.

- There is no requirement to transfer a tow, once undertaken, but this can be done if it is mutually agreeable and can be accomplished safely. Also, Coast Guard vessels may drop tugs any time they are called away on higher priority missions.

The Coast Guard reminds boaters that the operator of a vessel needing assistance will have to pay for commercial services. As long as a commercial provider is on scene, neither Coast Guard nor auxiliary resources will be dispatched.

The Coast Guard advises mariners to ensure that all safety equipment is on board, the vessel is in good operating condition, sufficient fuel and necessary charts are on board, the radio is operating properly, and someone knows the sailing plan of the operator and will notify the Coast Guard if the vessel fails to return when expected.

ORDINANCE NO. 506

The City of Charlevoix ordains that Section 5.7 (7) designated Height of Buildings be amended to read as follows:

HEIGHT OF BUILDING:
That building height for any structure or portion of a structure (having its ground floor in a single horizontal plane), is the vertical distance measured from the lowest elevation of the finished grade line of the ground around the structure to the highest point of the roof for flat roofs; to the deck line of mansard roofs; and to the mean height level between eaves and ridge for gable, hip and gambrel roofs. Intrusions below finished grade about the building for stair or window wells, courts or yards, designed in basements or cellars, to accommodate the minimum glazing area requirements of the BOCA/National Building Code shall not be considered when calculating building height. Building height for buildings having ground floors in two or more horizontal planes at differing elevations may be calculated as if each ground floor plane area were a separate building.

The latest price estimate is $135,000, although there is talk of trimming items to lower the cost.

Dream grew into success story

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Charlevoix's Waterfront Art Fair was the dream of a handful of Charlevoixians who 30 years ago saw an opportunity to give the city a wonderful summer cultural event that would have a positive effect on the quality of life in the community.

Fran Martin, Sue Lemke and Max Hosmer cornered then-Chamber of Commerce director Tom Symons in April 1959. An art fair would attract visitors to town, bring fine art to Charlevoix, expose area young people to the arts, and be a catalyst for would-be-artists, they proposed.

The first fair — an arts and crafts show — was more or less a trial run. "We had everything from fine art to painted egg cartons," Fran Martin recalled several years ago. "That's when we decided we needed some rules and decisions on what was art."

By the second fair a committee was formed, which included Ralph Gilliam, Clare Brown, Carolyn Rader, Mrs. Clark Coulter, Joyce Hosmer and Clarence Odmark.

In later years they were joined by Virginia Olsen, Edith Gilbert, Eleanor Carson, Eleanor Freedman, June Skelton, Peg Driggett, Bill and Bonnie Staffel, Barbara Bump, Nancy Porter, Marge Martin, Jackie Hayes, Jacquie Merta, Barbara Feldkircher, Diane Jerome and Chris Bentley.

Fran Martin and Edith Gilbert helped promote the art fair with articles placed in local and downstate newspapers.

This year's art fair committee consists of Cissy Bickersteth, Mary Ann Chew, Barbara Evanish, Eilene Heck, Beth McGraw, Sally McNamara, Alicia Mosher, Suzie Ries and Sue VanWieren.

By the second year, 1960, the committee had enlisted University of Michigan director of special projects Mike Church and Dr. Alexander Zacks from Central Michigan University's art department to help judge entries into the fair.

By 1961, such well known artists as Walter and Peggy Midener, Sarkis Sarkisian and Charles Culver from the Detroit Center for Arts and Crafts; now Creative Studios, joined the fair as guest artists.

At the same time the art fair committee persuaded Nate Cummings, Charlevoix summer resident and well known art collector, to loan some of his works to the fair for special exhibition. Cummings loaned, over the next decade, works by Degas, Roualt, Picasso, Signac, Buffet, Kandinsky, Manzu, Campigli, Marini and Renoir.

Charlevoix's art fair was gaining a following and the committee had winnowed the fair into an original "fine arts" only show.

It became said that "the most sophisticated audience west of New York came to the Charlevoix Art Fair," thanks to the fine-tuning the fair had received in its early years.

That fine-tuning has created the special balance which makes Charlevoix's art fair such a success. Because the artists are carefully selected the fair's reputation has grown, both among artists and among art collectors.

Nearly 1,000 artists apply for the some 125 openings each year, and buyers come to Charlevoix knowing they will find high quality art.

As a result, the artists who show at Charlevoix universally say they sell more of their work here than at any other single show.

Early in the winter the committee sends applications to artists. The applications come in throughout the winter and are filed by categories — pottery, painting, jewelry, fabric, sculpture and so on. Application deadline is April 1, when all artists must submit three slides for jurying.

The jurying process involves long hours of viewing by the art fair committee. The slides are shown without the artists' names.

"It's amazing. We almost always agree on yes or no," says committee member Sally McNamara. "Only a few go into the 'maybe' pile."

Once the artists are selected, the committee faces the chore of matching artists with spaces in the park.

Sally McNamara works from a scale drawing, assigning returning artists to their favorite slots, trying to match space requests and making sure that various types of art are evenly spread over the park.

"We definitely don't want to put two watercolorists next to each other, if we can help it," she says.

Early in summer each artist receives a packet of materials explaining the show and showing his or her location.

Art fair day committee members are at the park by 6 a.m., directing and helping the artists set up and preparing for the onslaught of 15,000 visitors.

"It can get hysterical," Sally McNamara says. "It's no easy trick to get every artist into their exact spots and continue to patiently explain why they cannot make last minute changes."

Along with the art fair committee, volunteer Kiwanians and Junior Art Fair Hosts and Hostesses assist artists, run errands, direct visitors and even babysit.

Sue VanWieren works with the city to be sure that everything from traffic to cleanup goes smoothly.

Each year, East Jordan artist Jerry Aydlott sets up a special gazebo he constructed to serve as "office" for the art fair committee.

"Jerry tried to teach us how to set it up ourselves, but after one hilarious effort to teach us he gave up. Now, he does it himself," says Sally McNamara.

"We've had our share of crazy days," she recalls. "When the Flint Art Museum loaned us an original Andrew Wyeth, the decision was made by an assistant to the director, because the director was in Europe. He had a heck of a time explaining why a Wyeth had spent a day in Charlevoix, Mich."

"And the year Henry and Christina Ford arrived by yacht, it was wild. They had come especially to see the Matisse loaned by Nate Cummings."

"Every year there's something different."

Show in park makes merchants happy, too

"Art fair weekend is probably the best weekend of summer and always has been," says gift store owner Jeannine Wallace.

Merchants up and down Bridge Street agree: When the crowds—as many as 15,000 people—come to Charlevoix for the Waterfront Art Fair, they come not only to buy art but to shop and eat in Charlevoix.

Motel rooms are at a premium, if any are available. Restaurants love art fair day. "It's our busiest day of the year," Lori Warner, manager of the Villager Pub says. "Art fair brings in so many out-of-towners."

Sherry Withers, former owner of Village Inn Pizza, agrees. "Art fair is our busiest day."

"Art fair day is the nicest day of the year," echoes Mike Holmes at the Appletree. "There are lots of nice people visiting Charlevoix on art fair day."

The impact of art fair appears across the economy.

"There's no busier day in this community for everybody," says Randy Carey, owner of Cotton Harbor and Carey's Boot Shop. "For us it combines summer and back to school buying." "Art Fair very definitely has a positive impact on the whole economy," says Chamber of Commerce executive director Jacquie Merta, "especially when considering the lodging, restaurant and retail business. And when all those businesses are successful, they in turn spend money in secondary aspects of our economy."

"I am told visitors make their motel reservations at least a year in advance. Art fair is definitely an event people anticipate and plan to return to Charlevoix for."

"And, the people who travel here for the day, from Traverse City, Petoskey, Gaylord and so on, come to shop and eat, too. Most businesses tell me art fair is the best day."

Naturally, Charlevoix's three art galleries love art fair day. "People are coming into town with art on their minds," says Beth McGraw at Signature Gallery. "It's absolutely the best day of our whole season," says Jerry Aydlott of Bridge Street Gallery. "It's dynamite," echoes Chuck Koucky at Koucky Gallery.

Reception honors anniversary

Charlevoix will celebrate the 30th anniversary of the Waterfront Art Fair with a special reception at the Edgewater Inn on Friday, Aug. 12, from 4 to 7 p.m.

The public is invited to join the Waterfront Art Fair Committee for hors d'oeuvres and beverages and to view the works of 15 artists.

A $5 donation is requested. The art fair committee is turning over donations to the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation.

The Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation was established last fall to help bring programs and projects into the schools which could not be funded by tax dollars. Enhancing education in all the arts is among the foundation's goals.

By special arrangement with Dave Cole, two watercolors by his father, the late Fred S. Cole, will be shown at the reception.

Fred Cole studied art at the Art Institute of Chicago and in France and Belgium in 1918 and 1919.

A successful commercial artist, his clients included General Motors, Ford, Dodge-Chrysler, Packard, H.J. Heinz, Campbell Soup Co. and many other major businesses. After his retirement, he returned to painting, but his works have rarely been displayed.

"Fred Cole's watercolors are very painterly with beautiful brushstrokes. His work could be described as stylized realism," says Suzi Reis of the art fair committee, who adds, "We feel we are sharing a wonderful discovery by showing the works of Fred Cole in the mini-show."

The special display will feature works by several prominent Charlevoix artists and guests artists who regularly participate in the show.

The works by Charlevoix artists will include pottery by Barbara Godwin, watercolors by Norman Brumm, watercolors by Russell Bolt and painting and ceramics by Sue Bolt.

Also to be on display at the reception will be works by: Corrine Workmaster, Dayton, Ohio, white on white paper sculptures; Alan Reid, Ann Arbor, pen and ink etchings and engravings; Dee Knott, Flushing, Michigan, watercolors; Pam Kessler, Clarkston, watercolors of flowers and vegetables.

Also Pat Eberline, Midland, American primitive paintings; John Byron, Georgia, blown glass; Winn Crannel, Georgia, graphics; Alan Vigland, Benzon, potter; Pat Caster Denison, Mt. Clemens, ceramic paintings; Lou Rizzolo, Grand Rapids, abstract watercolors; Linda Rizzolo, Grand Rapids, delicate pastel watercolors.

Reception tickets are available at the door and a The Appletree, The Clothing Co., Shop of the Gulls, Burnside's, Signature Gallery, Bridge Street Gallery and Kousky Gallery in Charlevoix.

Art Fair 1959

By the second year, the art fair was beginning to fill the park with artists and visitors. Eventually, artworks and crafts were divided into two shows -- each of which has enjoyed continued success.

For many years, we at First State Bank have enjoyed artwork purchased at Charlevoix's Waterfront Art Fair - including the painting by Phil Collins depicted above.

One of the early exhibitors, Collins is noted for his portrayals of native Americans and depictions of black culture, including the mural of famous black Americans at Kent County Airport in Grand Rapids.

For 30 years, The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair has been one of the finest in the Midwest.

Bandshell design OK'd

A revised Victorian bandshell design for East Park has been formally approved by city council.

Council gave its OK on Monday, Aug. 15, after the roofline was lowered and its two levels were combined into one.

Working on the bandshell project are a city-community committee and architect Jack Begrow.

The next step in replacing the deteriorating bandstand in the park is determining a budget, says Mayor Ralph McRae.

A week earlier McRae asked for council approval to tear out the old bandstand and construct the foundation and lower level of the new facility this fall.

That request did not come up at Monday's meeting.

Acoustical expert Harold P. Geerdes of Grand Rapids told the council "the design is a sound one, a good one and it will work out well."

Council member Butch Russell voted against accepting the design, saying the building would block lake views residents have been fighting to preserve.

McRae estimates the final price tag for the structure will be about $110,000, and committee chairman John Hess says $77,000 has been collected from private and city sources.

The bandshell would occupy about 1,800 square feet of the 58,000 square foot park, Begrow says. The old bandstand takes up 1,400 square feet.

The building will protrude four more feet into the park than the present one, he says, while increasing usable space by 100 percent.

The city recreation plan, former master development plan and current master plan all have called for a roof on the old bandstand, Hess says, so putting a roof on the new facility is in keeping with previous city thinking.

Defense attorneys decide not to withhold services

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County's Criminal Defense Team will continue to represent the county's indigent offenders in court for the time being.

Shortly before their threatened date for stopping work, the five attorneys advised the county board of commissioners they were retracting the resignation letter sent earlier.

The five lawyers — who act as attorneys for indigent defendants and are paid by the county are John Michael, Mark Muniak, Gordon Boydston, Edwin Gregory and Kevin Klevorn.

The threatened resignation of the Defense Team was based on the hourly rate the attorneys are receiving.

According to Michael, they are being compensated "in the area of $20 to $25 an hour, which we decline to continue."

The letter retracting the Defense Team's resignation was written by Klevorn, who pinpointed some of the five's complaints:

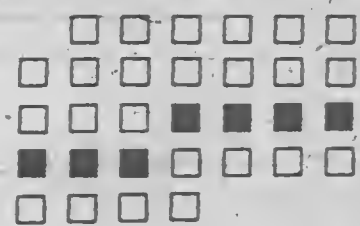

"A check with the court system reveals that the increased caseload is approximately 20 percent higher than last year, and the Grand Jury indictments Continued on page 6

Permanent alcohol limitation in parks

A public hearing on making permanent a night-time alcohol ban at city beaches and parks will be held in September.

The hearing has not yet been officially scheduled, but is likely to be held during the 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 5, city council meeting.

A temporary curb on alcohol consumption was passed by city council in July, following a request by city police for help controlling congregating youths—mostly at Michigan Beach.

Under the temporary ban, which has a 90-day limit, alcohol is prohibited from 9:30 p.m. until 6 a.m. at any city-owned or city-operated park, beach, playground, ballfield or other recreational facility.

There is also a midnight closing at all parks and beaches, except East Park. The parks reopen at 6 a.m.

Police Chief Dennis Halverson says he still favors a 9 p.m. alcohol cut-off. Council compromised on a 9:30 curfew after failing to agree on either 9 or 10 p.m. limits.

Halverson said the 9:30 ban has helped in policing the beaches, but indicated it is getting pretty dark by 9:30 at this time of summer.

Darkness hinders police in their efforts to control alcohol use by minors, Halverson has said.

The chief says he has talked with neighbors of Michigan Beach who say the situation there is better than before the limitation.

Litter has been greatly reduced, too, he says, based on conversations with the park employees who clean up in the morning.

"We're real pleased so far," Halverson said of the improved situation. "These are the results we were hoping for."

Under the proposed permanent ordinance and the current temporary one, alcohol limitations do not apply to privately owned vessels moored at city facilities.

The city manager would be able to exempt specific functions from observing the time limit.

Before the temporary ban went into effect, drinking of alcoholic beverages was allowed at all hours at city parks and beaches, except at the downtown strip of parks along Round Lake.

A state law prohibits consumption of alcohol within 1,000 feet of a U.S. highway.

IT'S ALWAYS FAIR WEATHER

Despite temperatures in the 90s and early morning rains, the 30th anniversary Waterfront Art Fair filled East Park with art and art lovers. The fair is the second oldest in Michigan and has attracted a loyal, national following.

OPINIONS

Charlevoix

Keep water tower as is

Editor,

The old Charlevoix water tower is a masterpiece of structural design and engineering, constructed by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Co. in 1906. The 100,000-gallon tank weighing 416 tons when full of water is supported on 104g, slim, well-braced columns, all in proper proportions of beauty and strength.

Reaching skyward nearly 200 feet above water level, it is a photographer's dream when silhouetted against our magnificent Lake Michigan sunsets. To destroy this famous historic monument by removing the tank and transforming the tower into a commercial enterprise is against all efforts of many to preserve something beautiful and meaningful of old Charlevoix.

We have had so many landmarks taken away from this unique community, let's save at least one of the last for future generations.

We really do not need more "attractions" for this city; as we all know, we have more than we can handle now. Our natural beauty, as long as we retain it, is attraction enough for our many summer visitors.

The proposed observation tower, if designed and renovated in compliance with federal OSHA standards, would require 12 flights of stairs or 185 steps to reach the top viewing deck. Only the young, vigorous and the daring will be able to conquer the "famous" tower.

We should be able to do better than that — give the old tower a new coat of paint, light-up the tank at night for the mariners and let the poor old tower live its life out in peace for the next 50 years.

Take the thousands of dollars you save and use for something both young and old can enjoy — perhaps a badly needed all-purpose band pavilion and East Park improvements. On top of that, save the city council a ton of headaches!

California hotel offers Charlevoix deal

What goes around comes around. I'm talking about John Loeb, who's back in town visiting his father, Tom Loeb.

John Loeb is general manager of the new west coast flagship of the Marriott chain, located on the former Fox Studio property in Century City, Calif.

We're impressed when he tells us that it has 375 guest rooms, marble baths, 24-hour room service, a fitness center and rates ranging from $175 to $1,500 a night!

We're even more impressed when Loeb, who loves Charlevoix, offers any Charlevoix resident a 25 percent discount on the room rate. All you need to do is show your Charlevoix driver's license as identification.

At the recent grand opening of the hotel, Loeb was on stage with Bob Hope, Mary Hart, Rich Little and, of course, Mr. Marriott himself. When John was asked to comment, he blurted out, "I feel like Charlevoix wedged between Petoskey and Traverse City."

Much to his surprise by the end of the evening many people had come up to him to say they knew what he was talking about because they had visited the area.

John, who was named one of the 10 most eligible bachelors in San Fernando Valley, still has fond memories of his youth here — playing shuffleboard in the park, eating pop corn and listening to the Wednesday night band concerts.

John thinks the proposed new Victorian band pavilion would be the best thing for Charlevoix. "It will become a cultural magnet — a focal point which gives any community a sense of pride. I've seen this happen."

"I hope Charlevoix doesn't make the mistake that other communities have made, by spending a fortune building convention or conference centers that sit empty. So often when towns reach out to improve their tax base, they end up with a town that looks like any other town.

"The charm of Charlevoix is very special, and you don't want to lose the natural beauty — the grass, the trees, the water — and end up with one long strip of T-shirt shops."

How did John become a hotel magnate of the first degree? A fellow who gets his hair cut by the same barber as Burt Reynolds? As he tells it, "I spent so much time while growing up in restaurants and bars with my father that I decided I might as well get paid for." Dad nods and smiles.

Sauntering down the quay

In France, they spell it "quai" and pronounce it "kay." In England, they spell it "quay" and pronounce it "key."

In Charlevoix, they spell it "Channel Walkway" and pronounce it "Hey, let's go and see what's out there."

In any language, a quay is wharf or pier, usually of concrete or stone, probably with facilities for loading or unloading ships.

In the Old World, quays or quails are favorite gathering places for pedestrians who visit the waterfront to fish, enjoy the ambience of the maritime activity or just to observe other members of the species enjoying their leisure.

Probably the most famous quay in the world is the Quai d'Orsay on the River Seine in Paris. The French Foreign Office is located on the quay and sometimes the Foreign Office itself is called Quai d'Orsay.

Quays also have been a favorite subject for Old World artists who find something charming in clouds of pretty ladies in organdy strolling along a quay on the arms of a handsome escorts in spats and bowler hats.

Although they aren't many ships loading or unloading on Charlevoix's Channel Walkway, it is not unusual for pleasure boaters to tie up near the Weather-vane Inn while they go inside for cocktails and dinner.

So in many respects, the Channel Walkway qualifies as a bona-fide quay as least insofar as fishermen and evening strollers are concerned.

I haven't seen any artists with easels and brushes in tow, but photographers turn out in droves, particularly in the evening when the western sky gives promise of a spectacular sunset.

A saunter down the pier also seems to be a favorite after-dinner activity of diners at the Weather-vane and Edgewater Inn.

Later in the evening, the walkway is a popular cooling-off place for joggers who complete their daily run by loping to the end of the pier and walking back.

Bicyclists and motorcyclists also visit the pier from time to time although I don't know why. It is far more fun to do the pier on foot.

Has opening of a second walkway on the south side of Pine River Channel reduced traffic on the popular North Pier?

Not at all. It seems there is more traffic than ever now that both walkways are open.

It is hard to remember what the channel banks looked like before the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers started making improvements a decade or so ago. As I recall, the revetments were log pilings, most of which were toppling into the water. The steep banks were so overgrown with bushes and brambles that they were visited only by jack-rabbits and garter snakes. And the North Pier was little more than a rock pile.

No one in his right mind walked the bank or ventured out on the pier.

The corps didn't exactly set out to beautify Charlevoix, but something had to be done to stabilize the channel banks which sustained serious erosion every time an 80-knot norwester roared down the channel.

Our two popular quays are the result.

I SEE BY the papers that hang-gliding has come to my favorite mountain — Fujiyama.

Bill Moyes, a 56-year-old Australian, recently jumped into the clouds from the top of Japan's famed mountain and one hour later landed on the shore of a lake 12,385 feet below.

That must have been quite a trip — and a lot faster than walking.

When I climbed Fujiyama 36 years ago, my buddies and I dawdled too long at the top and didn't begin our descent until late in the afternoon.

Darkness overtook us before we reached the timberline and I spent some of the most terrifying hours of my life feeling my way down the mountain with a walking stick. Never before had I experienced such absolute darkness. One false step could have been our last.

After hours of near panic, we reached the cabin of a park ranger near the bottom of the mountain. The ranger invited us to spend the night stretched out on his tatami floor.

Hang-gliding would have been so much faster — and safer.

Stop greed from ruining city

Editor,

I've sniped at the fast-dollar people in Charlevoix from time to time, but the Chicago Tribune article by Tom Hundley on July 31 said it better.

"...traffic backed up for nearly a mile..." "...hopelessly gridlocked..." "...quick-buck condo developers..." "...congestion, pollution, drugs and crime—previously unknown..."

Your Chamber of Commerce person is quoted, "...development has been well-integrated into the community." If well-integrated means that Mr. Reibel's Castle Farms and greedy developers are now accepted, you who are able to vote have indeed absorbed some undesirable folks into an integrated mess and deserve the consequences.

I'm appalled that Charlevoix is now getting so ritzy that "...people of ordinary means ... may be forced out." The people of ordinary means of Charlevoix have the vote; promoters do not. What's done probably can't be undone, but voters can take steps to see that the trend doesn't continue. It's already gone too far.

Bandshell questions have answers

Editor,

Here are the answers to the editorial in last week's Courier.

What's the hurry? Clarence Odmark has waited 30 years for the bandshell to be completed. Now that it is crumbling and unsafe, a responsible volunteer committee has accepted the challenge to raise funds and present the citizens of Charlevoix with a structure that will provide entertainment downtown for six months of the year.

Are we ruining East Park? Of course not! Over 250 contributors to the project have confidence in the committee of Charlevoix citizens to beautify the park. Up to now, objects in the park have grown like Topsy. A tree planted here, a water fountain there, a memorial here, a fish pond there. With professional advice, a graceful design will be offered for approval.

And what about the view? Picture in your mind, if you can, a cover over the old bandstand. At the three-quarter angle of the base positioned in the park, a lot of view of the water would be lost. The new position of the band pavilion along Wharfside Market will not take up any more view, and possibly less, than if a cover were put on the old bandstand.

Why this structure? 1) The committee envisions a season from May through October. The pavilion may be used before and including Memorial Day right on through the October Apple Festival. 2) True, there is no way to collect admission fees, but there can be voluntary donations, and paid acts may be subsidized in a nominal way as is done in Petoskey. There are many acts that will be glad to use the pavilion as a showcase without charge. 3) Round Lake is surrounded by Victorian cottages on the bluff — the committee sees no problem in reflecting this theme in East Park. 4) Good luck to the Charlevoix School Enrichment Foundation in their goal for a year-round theater.

We can use both, a school auditorium and a band pavilion. But let's not mix apples and oranges. We can have a band pavilion in the park by next summer!

Letters to the editor:

Are there better alternatives? The committee has been meeting for many months, and we don't think so.

Where's the money? With over $70,000 on hand, the checks arriving daily, the committee feels we can begin phase one to demolish the crumbling, unsafe bandstand this fall. Bids can be let out and in-kind contributions pledged to begin construction in spring. The budget allows for leeway on some refinements, such as a sound system, tiling on the floor, landscaping, etc.

Where's the fiscal responsibility council members constantly talk about if they commit the city to a project that has no price tag? The council appointed John Hess, chairman of Parks and Recreation, to head a citizens' committee to build a new bandstand. This committee is being co-chaired by John Hess, Gary Stutzman and myself. It is the responsibility of the committee composed of musicians, architects, builders, bankers, realtors, professionals, business persons, etc., to present the best band pavilion for the money to the community. They have given much of their time and expertise to this project. Over 250 Charlevoix citizens have endorsed the project by their contributions. Let's not torpedo their confidence with negative misgivings. The committee has the answers to your questions, and if not, they will find the answers. That's their job.

Just about complete

With sod in place, work on Hoffmann Park is nearing an end. The Downtown Development Authority project, more than two years in the making, still awaits semi-circular benches, fencing from the old swing bridge and some plantings. At the Pine River Channel end of the park are wooden stairs leading to the south shore walkway.

Lawyers withdraw work stoppage threat

have been at least double what was originally anticipated in December of 1987 when we executed the contract. We uniformly feel we should try to be fair with you even though you are not being fair with us."

Klevorn reported on a survey he made of how court representation is handled in nearby counties:

- "Antrim County started paying $45 per hour to Probate Court in 1985. They, too, have gone to a contract system and for the year 1988, are paying four attorneys $30,000."
- "Osego County in 1987 had a Defender's contract. The system was so disastrous that no one signed up for the criminal contract for 1988. Attorneys still invoice the county at the rate of $40 per hour."
- "Grand Traverse County approaches the situation a little different in that each type of appearance and case is handled on a flat fee basis."

Klevorn also said the overhead of local attorneys is approximately one-half of their hourly rate and the average hourly rate for attorneys in this area is approximately $90.

"So at the very minimum, any payment for any services rendered by court-appointed counsel should approximate $45 an hour to allow them to meet expenses," he added.

Klevorn concluded by asking that the county board meet with the Defense Team as soon as possible to "begin this month to formulate negotiations for the balance of the year as well as 1989."

"If you do not take the opportunity now to begin addressing some of the problems, I feel you will probably see in Charlevoix County the same thing that happened in Osego County, the inability to employ any attorneys for any services."

The five attorneys on the Defense Team were scheduled to meet Tuesday, Aug. 16, to further discuss the problem.

Car wash aids fire truck fund

Fire fighters will be hosing down cars — but with the garden variety, not with high-pressure models — during a fund-raiser.

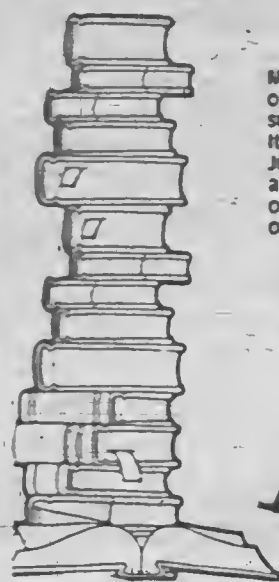

The volunteer fire department is raising money to buy a rescue truck for the city — and is more than one-way to its goal.

For $4, cars will be washed from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 20, at the fire hall. Interior vacuuming is included.

More than $19,000 of the $35,000 needed to buy the truck has been raised. Rescue equipment now kept on several vehicles will be consolidated on the truck.

Swept up by his memories

Mayor returns to '20s workplace for conference

When Charlevoix Mayor Ralph McRae attends the Michigan Mayor's Conference at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island this week, he will be reliving some days of his youth.

McRae worked summers at the Grand Hotel during the 1920's, doing many odd jobs, including sweeping the world's longest porch (aided, he says, by timely winds).

His chores also included waxing the dance floor for foxtrots and cakewalks, setting up bridge tables and being "Johnny on the spot" wherever needed. Anticipating his return visit to the hotel, McRae recently wrote Grand Hotel chairman Dan Musser, recalling some of those memories:

"I enjoyed two summers there, receiving seventy-five dollars a season. The suites on the top floors were also seventy-five dollars a day. They said there was a casino in the penthouse, but I was never invited there. Tips gave me spending money. I do not recall buying fudge."

McRae also admitted "snatching a few cookies and now and then a cup of tea at tea time, but not openly," and "dousing my white jacket with a bottle of hair lotion from the hotel beauty parlor."

McRae is looking forward to reminiscing further about the "olden days" with Musser, who in a return letter said, "I would like to talk with you and hear more of your stories of your summers at Mackinac."

Virginia Roundtree

Hospital Guild picks president

Virginia Roundtree is the new president of Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild. She succeeds Julia Leedy, who died July 4.

Roundtree has been an active member of the guild since 1976 and served as secretary from 1978 to 1984 and vice president 1987-88.

Her volunteer duties include working for the Showcase Gift Shop at the hospital and for the senior citizens Sunday dinner program, which is held in the winter months.

Other Guild officer are Marilyn Izor, vice president; Lorene Goss, treasurer; and Jolyn Hall, secretary.

Two panels back sidewalk at Burnside

Two city boards have taken different paths in endorsing a revised sidewalk proposal in Bridge Park.

The Downtown Development Authority has for the second time recommended construction of a sidewalk to allow renovation of the Burnside building into five shops.

The walkway is reduced in size from the original plan and does not have the plaza look of the earlier proposal.

The parks and recreation commission, hearing the proposal for the first time, recommended construction by the developer of a 16-foot sidewalk for public use and under public ownership.

The request, by Charlevoix Development Co.'s Dick Georgi and Arch Wright, now returns to city council.

The company first proposed last September that the city fund construction of a 29-foot plaza along the edge of the park.

Final say is up to city council, which sent the controversial proposal to the two boards on the night before the primary election.

Nurse scholarships given

Four scholarships totaling $1200 have been awarded to area women by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild.

Three of the women will continue their nursing studies at North Central Michigan College, and one will begin in pharmacy at Ferris State University.

Jill Cary, of Central Lake, is a first year recipient of the $300 award to attend Ferris. Jean McDonough of Charlevoix and Kay Rogers of Ellsworth are both entering their last year of nursing study. Cheryl Drewanz of Charlevoix will be a second-year nursing student.

The scholarships were presented by Loretta Conine, chairperson of the guild's scholarship committee, and Myrtle Fulton, committee member.

The scholarships are awarded annually to recipients who wish to enter any medically related field of study. The guild finances the scholarships by an annual bridge tournament, Showcase Gift Shop, membership dues and other special events.

Petitions seek to halt movie

The increasing controversy over the just-released motion picture, "The Last Temptation of Christ" is not being ignored in the Charlevoix area.

Petitions asking that Universal Studios destroy the film have been circulated through several churches and other organizations.

The first petition distributed says that "Mother Angelica of the Eternal Word Television Network sent two personal representatives to see this picture. They report that it depicts Judas as a strong man, while Jesus is portrayed as a confused, whimpering man who is unsure of his identity, is a homosexual, and a fornicator.

They were appalled at the blasphemy of this film."

The petition then lists the name of a Universal Studios executive and address to which complaints should be addressed.

Petitions have also been addressed to Cinema III Theater in Charlevoix. Bill Supernaw, owner of the theater, could not be reached by the Courier for comment. However, he has been quoted as saying he has not yet made up his mind about showing the film.

Missionaries scheduled to speak at area church

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Take a box of old clothes, dresses, suit coats, shoes, add a batch of young children and watch imagination unfold. They'll dress up and pretend they are all kinds of things. You'll see doctors making house calls, teachers going over spelling, and, of course, there's several mommies and daddies.

My favorite moment, though, is to watch some little guy stomping around in canal boats four or five times bigger than his feet or some little gal pretending she's a princess in great big heels.

Pretending to fill those shoes is the beginning of a lifetime process of learning and growing into our roles as mature adults. Think about the different shoes you've filled over the years.

Your days in school as a student changed you. How about the first job you held? And, oh, what a change in your steps came when you got married. Then, you were a parent. With each new step you took, a new pair of shoes took you toward new adventures in living.

Have you thought about the shoes you fill as a Christian? The path we walk in following God's will and the spirit we share with others ought to be the most important parts of our lives. We may graduate from school. We may change vocations. Our children may move out on their own but we never stop being Christian.

Unlike some shoes that wear out or grow too small, the shoes of our faith are self-renewing. They strengthen to meet the demands of the rough terrain in our lives. They soften to allow rest and room to grow. They fit us perfectly because God is our shoemaker. He knows what we need to make life's every step truly worthwhile.

Jim Trowbridge and Barbara Olstrum in the kitchen at Charlevoix's McDonald's.

McDonald's hiring senior citizens

by PEG OHLE

The notice in the Senior Citizen Bulletin read: "Want senior citizens because they're more dependable. Will work anything out as far as times and schedules."

The notice said Ed at McDonald's was looking for hostesses, cashiers, cooks, salad makers (early morning), biscuit makers and table cleaners.

"That's right," said Ed Drapeau, manager of the Charlevoix McDonald's. "I could use more like the ones we have now."

A Courier reporter went down to Ronald McDonald's local headquarters and talked to two senior citizens who are enjoying new careers there.

Jim Trowbridge of East Jordan retired after working for 30 years at Gulf and Western. He traveled around for a while, to Florida, California, and Alaska, then came back and did some fishing and hunting.

"But I got tired of that," he said, "so I answered an ad, and here I am, cooking hamburgers and French fries and baking pies."

Trowbridge was a cook in the Navy, where he served for several years.

"I've only had three jobs in my life," bragged the senior citizen, "the Navy, Gulf and Western, and now here at McDonald's. I would recommend this job to anybody who wants to work. It is a good place; they treat us well."

Trowbridge works at McDonald's five days a week from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., which gives him evening time to spend with his family. He and his wife have seven children and 13 grandchildren.

When Barbara Olstrum, also of East Jordan, went to work at McDonald's last month, she was surprised to see Jim Trowbridge there. He and her husband worked together at Gulf and Western for many years.

Olstrum's first job as a young person was with the old Grandview Hospital. Then she married, lived on a farm, and raised two boys and a girl.

"This is the first real job I've had since working at Grandview," she said. "I like it here. I'm busy all the time, there's no standing around."

"So far, I've been mostly making salads, but I'm learning other things, like working on the grill."

Olstrum works about the same hours as Trowbridge, averaging 38 hours a week, she says.

She decided to try the job after hearing Drapeau talk at the East Jordan Senior Center.

Governor signs North Point funding PRESERVE

A bill signed into law by the governor guarantees $400,000 from the Natural Resources Trust Fund for the purchase of the North Point area in Charlevoix Township.

Tom Bailey, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy which has been leading the effort to purchase the scenic dunes, thanked area legislators who supported the measure.

"We're grateful to Rep. Ralph Ostling for his support in the House," Bailey said, "and to Sen. Mitch Irwin for everything he did on the Senate side."

Bailey said the recommendation to appropriate the $400,000 came from the Natural Resources Trust Fund Board.

"The board has been very supportive of this project," Bailey said, "and we appreciate the work they did to set the stage for the passage of the appropriation bill."

When combined with monies raised locally to preserve North Point, the state money brings the effort within $80,000 of its $714,000 goal, Bailey said.

Artists contribute to KCB fund-raiser

Several artists with area ties have donated items for the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful auction.

The Labor Day event raises funds for the Operation Petunia flower planting and other KCB activities.

The art pieces will be auctioned separately from several holiday travel packages and other big-ticket items.

The auction will be held at the Lepman house at Loeb Farms on Labor Day. Admission is limited to those holding KCB truck-drawing tickets or a limited number of auction-only tickets.

Artists who have donated items are Gordon Neff, a carved seagull; Barbara Godwin; Cara Hochhalter; Terry Salmonson, a photo of North Point; and Kathleen Chaney Fritz, a painting of the Belvedere Club and Chicago Club boathouse area.

Faraway trips to be auctioned include those to Century City, Calif.; Scottsdale, Ariz.; and Naples, Fla. There are also two Shanty Creek timeshares, which can be used worldwide.

Closer packages include those to Mackinac Island (with stays in the Grand Hotel and Mission Point Resort), Harbor Springs (with a cruise on Dave Irish's Traveler, golf and four days at Windward) and Traverse City.

Local items include a bed and breakfast "Charlevoix reunion" for seven couples, Star of Charlevoix cruise for 25 couples, pig roast for 25 couples, 80 rounds of Captain's Cove Adventure Golf, several golfing packages and a cruise on John Upjohn's Serenity.

Ferry Beach grant rejected

The city's request for state funds to fix up Ferry Beach has been turned down for the second year.

This year, the request was rejected early in the process. Last year, Charlevoix made it to the final cut after being reinserted on the list.

The city has been informed by the state Department of Natural Resources that its Michigan Land Trust Fund Board has whittled 295 proposals down to 30. More cuts are yet to be made, a letter from the DNR said.

The trust fund has about $20 million to fund local projects, and the original list of requests amounted to more than $100 million.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said the city has other approaches it might explore in order to pay for the beach improvements.

One is bonding - borrowing the money and then paying it back.

Another is gradually doing the work and paying for it from collections in the tax increment financing district in the beach area. Taxes obtained from improvements - such as renovation of Foster Boat Works - in a designated area go into a special fund.

A top priority in the beach area for city council members is relocation of Ferry Avenue to enlarge the park and provide additional parking space.

The nearly $500,000 grant - pared back from an earlier $666,000 try - would have helped improve docks, move play areas, install more concession and rest room facilities, and enlarge the beach.

With the help of an earlier state grant, the city purchased a 300-foot waterfront lot adjacent to the present beach to enlarge the facility.

A grant request has been sent to the DNR for permission to put fill dirt in the low-lying, partially wetlands area.

That permit request is separate from the improvements funding request.

This year, the city altered parking regulations, instituted launch fees for out-of-towners and accepted the gift of a fish cleaning station at the beach.

Store items on sidewalks: Should they stay or go?

When you walk down a street in Charlevoix, you may notice items stored on the sidewalks. Some are necessary for business operations, while others are purely cosmetic. The city council is currently considering a resolution to regulate the storage of items on sidewalks. The resolution would require businesses to obtain a permit to store items on the sidewalk. The permit would be issued for a specific period of time and would be subject to renewal. The resolution would also require businesses to remove items from the sidewalk at the end of the permit period. The city council is currently considering the resolution and will make a decision in the near future.

Here's what I think...

- ☐ Let businesses put whatever they want on the sidewalks.
- ☐ Don't let businesses put anything on the sidewalks - public or private.
- ☐ You can't stop people from using their own property, but keep businesses from using public sidewalks.
- ☐ Certain items are OK on sidewalks, but the rest should not be allowed. Specify what should be OK'd: _____

Ahead-lines

Recreation board plans regular meetings

The city parks and recreation board will start meeting on a regular basis and plans to take a more active role.

The advisory board has been meeting only when called together for a specific purpose — and has not always been able to put together a quorum — the legally prescribed minimum number of members needed to conduct business.

The board decided at its last meeting — the first in two months — that a regular schedule should be adhered to.

Because of scheduling problems, though, the time set for meetings is 8 p.m. on the first and third Mondays of each month.

That puts the meetings at the same time as city council sessions, which begin at 7 p.m. Since the mayor is a non-voting member of the rec board and presides over the council meetings, his presence at most rec board meetings is doubtful.

The rec board will meet in whichever City Hall meeting room is free — probably the upstairs conference room since council meets downstairs on those weeks.

Finding a place for its first regular meeting won't be a problem, though, as the commission decided to meet on Labor Day.

Members of the rec board are chairman John Hess, Henry Wagner, Erik Lundelgen and Pat Miller.

Recreation director Ike Boss is also a non-voting member.

Among the board's most pressing items is an update of the city recreation plan. Items in the current eight-year-old plan have been pretty much completed.

A public hearing on areas that should be explored in updating the plan was held in February.

Those attending were commission members, the mayor, the rec director and the city manager.

An initial list of dreams, suggestions and ideas was put together for future consideration as work on the plan got more involved.

No further work has been done on the plan by the commission, however.

The city has more than 125 acres of outdoors recreation areas — ranging from large facilities such as Mount McSaubia, beaches and parks to small ones such as Father Charlevoix Park, the west end of Pine River Lane and public walkways to Lake Michigan.

Deputy mayor's help makes wedding on boat great event

Editor,

Over the past Fourth of July weekend, my wife and I were married on a sailboat on Round Lake. Due to the limited availability of the sailboat, a lot of preparations had to be made in a short period of time.

We felt a little awkward since we did not know anyone in Charlevoix. We started out calling the mayor's office to ask him to perform the services. He declined, but suggested the mayor pro tem, Shirley Roloff. She was very excited about performing the wedding on the boat, which immediately made us feel a bit more relaxed.

We also wanted some accommodations that were somewhat special, considering the occasion. Mrs. Roloff connected us with a developer in the area who was very helpful. He made a few calls for us (saving us numerous long distance calls) and set us up with the Boat's Head Inn. It was perfect.

Letters to the editor:

When we arrived in Charlevoix the day before the wedding, Shirley suggested we meet at one of the establishments downtown to go over some of the details and get to know each other. She made us feel very comfortable and right at home. She made sure we had everything we needed for the big day and filled us in on the area's history, highlights and hotspots.

The wedding went absolutely perfect. After the ceremony, we asked Mrs. Roloff to stay and celebrate with us for a while. She had as much or more fun than all of us did. By the end of the day, we felt like we were very much a part of the community and very welcomed. We want to say thank you to the people of Charlevoix and a very special thank you to Shirley Roloff for a wedding and a weekend we will never forget.

Yacht has all the comforts of home

On a beautiful sunny day, when 300 colorful sailboats raced north toward Mackinac Island, I was at the wheel of an 80-foot "speedboat" heading south.

We were leisurely cruising at 40 miles per hour toward Charlevoix. If we were in a hurry, we could have zipped along at over 50 miles per hour.

I thought of men like Lief Erikson, Christopher Columbus and Captain Cook — men who took command over waves and waters — men who aimed to go faster, to go farther and in more comfort than those who came before them. What would they think about the boat I'm running — a boat that catapults yachts into the 21st century and makes all other boats look obsolete!

The custom-built Haggis II, designed by Denison and built in Dania, Fla., for Chuck and Joan MacGillivray, took two years to build to the day. Made of aluminum, it is painted white and the only wood is the trim railing and the oiled teak deck.

It is completely air-conditioned, powered by twin 2000-horsepower German diesel MWM engines and weighs 6,000 tons. So much for statistics.

The first thing I noticed before getting aboard are the heavy black lines to match the black and white decor topside. A nice touch. The second thing noticed is the black canvas cover over the hot tub. In addition to the jacuzzi, there are washer and dryer conveniently close by. There are five TVs aboard, including a 35 inch biggie on the aft deck.

Adjacent to the outdoor lounge are refrigerator, sink and Jenn-Air stove for casual cooking. Below adjacent to the main salon is a complete kitchen with a full refrigerator, microwave oven, sink and plenty of cabinet space.

Forward is a master cabin and bath, with a full bathtub.

Competition restored — for 30 days

Last Thursday morning I picked up a copy of the Detroit Free Press at a newsstand in downtown Charlevoix, read the headline across the top of Page 1 and did cartwheels all the way home.

"Federal judge temporarily blocks JOA," the headline said, the first glimmer of hope any of us had had that the grand old tradition of competitive journalism might even yet survive in Detroit.

Earlier this month, as one of his last official acts, former Attorney General Edwin Meese approved a so-called joint operating agreement between the two Detroit papers which would have permitted the papers to merge business operations while still publishing under the guise of editorial independence.

Which is nonsense pure and simple.

Even if the papers were able to maintain independent editorial policies, who would believe them?

Furthermore, how would we know when their differences of opinion were real or when one of the papers was simply raising a straw man, to be knocked down by the other — to keep the pot boiling.

The situation would be abominable at best, intolerable at worst.

But now, thanks to U.S. district Judge Joyce Green in Washington, D.C., the joining of the business operations of the two papers was put on hold for 30 days under a temporary restraining order sought by opponents of the merger.

The opponents claim that Meese erred in allowing the merger and Judge Green feels there is a "substantial likelihood" they will win their case. She added that "it will be very difficult to reassemble this egg once it has been scrambled."

Meese's decision to allow the JOA is very puzzling in light of the fact that one of his administrative law judges, Morton Needelman, recommended against the merger last December.

But it must be remembered that Meese's decisions and ethics have come under fire before during his years as attorney general. Many political observers agree that his hasty departure from federal service so close to the general election was a move to benefit GOP presidential candidate George Bush. Bush has enough obstacles to overcome before November without the added burden of Edwin Meese.

The principal question seems to be whether the Free Press is a "failing newspaper" under the definition of the Newspaper Preservation Act. To be sure, the newspaper continues to lose millions of dollars every year, but only because of its trumped up "war" with the Detroit News.

If both newspapers cleaned house at the executive level, Detroit could have two profitable, honest-to-goodness newspapers without any special consideration from the federal government.

The real culprit in the case is the Newspaper Preservation Act itself, which should be stricken from the books.

In fact, given the special adversarial role of the newspaper in American democracy, newspapers should stand alone — unfettered by any ties whatsoever to federal, state or local government.

A Shoe Store Preservation Act, or a Fudge Shop Preservation Act, should make a lot more sense than a Newspaper Preservation Act.

I suppose what bothers me most about the whole JOA mess in Detroit is that the management of both papers have been so ungodly anxious to have it approved. I am sure they all have been schooled in journalism ethics and the integrity of the press. Yet their starry-eyed idealism has been blurred by the prospect of untold riches if they only play footsie with each other.

After 38 years in the business, I find the whole scenario disgusting.

Could both the Free Press and the News be profitable newspapers in their own right? Of course they could.

But they would have to start charging realistic prices for their products and services and take a hard look at labor contracts which have made it well nigh impossible to turn a decent profit for the owners.

Sidewalk Sales parking ban restricted residents' travel

Editor,

How many of our council members took note of the ban on Bridge Street parking over sidewalk sale days?

We assume the DDA requested the barricades. This same DDA opposes any suggestion of parking bans on Bridge Street at all other times.

The DDA disregards the needs of all the citizens of the city to a free and easy access to their town. They disregard the safety of its people and visitors by the congestion of parking on both sides of the street. They disregard the frustrations of travelers who wish only to get through and out of town. They disregard the expediting of southbound traffic by the elimination of only three parking spaces immediately south of the bridge which would help people to bypass the downtown via the Park Avenue-State Street route.

I suggest the Courier conduct a poll of their readers as they have on other issues. The questions could be:

Do you approve of a ban from June 15 to Sept. 30 on parking on the east side of Bridge Street from Antrim to the bridge? Do you approve of a ban on parking on west side of Bridge Street from the bridge to Park Avenue? Do you approve of signs at the bridge informing travelers of the Park Avenue-State Street bypass?

The results will give our council the information they require to act on the citizens' wishes. Better still the state highway department could be influenced to take the actions they did in Dearborn where all parking on U.S. 12 was banned. U.S. 31 in Charlevoix could also be included.

If the state acts there would be no parking. The DDA might feel half a loaf is better than none.

Charles C. Papineau

The request to eliminate parking on both sides of Bridge Street during the sale was made by the Chamber of Commerce and approved by City Manager Mike Wiesner. The DDA played no part in the decision. Wiesner said he has received no other complaints about the closure.

which we all know is a real luxury aboard any boat. The two guest cabins each have a bath and shower. But they all have TV's, telephones and stereo decks to help while the time away while cruising from port to port.

On Sunday, Aug. 14, the Haggis II was christened at an informal gathering at the dock at Water's Edge. The Jelly Roll Blues band played for members of the family and a group of intimate friends.

In spite of the wind, Joan MacGillivray neatly christened the boat with a very special bottle of champagne, covered with checkered red, white and blue braided satin ribbon.

Over 40 years ago, this beribboned bottle of champagne was given to me to christen our custom built Burger, the Pat-E-Jay II. But the bottle was so pretty, I couldn't bear to smash it! So I kept it all these years until now.

"The Haggis II deserves to be christened with this treasured bottle of champagne," I told the MacGillivrays. And so it was with the cheerful approval of all present.

After the christening, guests, band and all cruised down the south arm for a swim to cool off just like any ancient mariner worth his salt.

Beach alcohol, closing signs help, not rights infringement

Editor,

In re Bob Clock's uninformed attack on the new closing signs in the parks: The only thing he had right was that the taxpayers buy and pay the upkeep on the parks.

As to their being an addition to Charlevoix's police state, you can't have a police state without police! The taxpayers haven't had the use of the Lake Michigan beach park for at least 15 years.

Bob's few rowdies are every hood and druggie in northwest

Michigan, each making at least 20 trips a day, sun up to sun up, to make their connections, then come up the hill with their mufflerless cars screeching tires and barreling down Park Avenue.

Traveling about the U.S. you'll find all parks have a closing time, most often at sunset or at least by 10:30 p.m. I believe the signs are not infringing on the rights of the taxpayers, but preserving a privilege.

City band concerts enjoyed

Editor,

A word of thanks to the director and the city band for the fine concerts on Wednesday nights.

We have enjoyed them for many summers and I consider them a highlight of the summer season.

May we continue to have crowds in East Park on Wednesday nights.

Good questions about bandshell

Editor,

I think the questions about the bandshell in the Courier were very valid questions and deserve much consideration.

I do not believe the present bandshell is unsafe. If it is, then there are sure a lot of buildings in this town more than twice as old. I feel the present bandshell is adequate and the money should be spent for something that could be used year around.

Change nickname to 'the Stinky'

Editor,

This week I was a visitor with friends to your beautiful city.

I was appalled at the horrible odor we encountered down near the pier and bridge as we walked in that area. Are the city wastes dumped into Round Lake at that point?

If you plan to keep doing this practice, I would recommend your calling "Charlevoix - the Stinky." Don't you have a Downtown Development Authority that could raise funds to help eliminate this terrible problem?

Mackinac trip lands possible state confab

Ralph McRae took memories to Mackinac Island and came back with an armload of gifts. He also returned with the possibility of Charlevoix hosting a state convention of mayors in two years.

The mayor, who worked at the Grand Hotel on the island during summers in the 1930s, attended 'The Michigan Mayors' Conference' at the hotel.

While there, he chatted with Grand Hotel chairman Don Musser about McRae's days of sweeping the famous "world's longest" front porch, waxing dance floors and setting up bridge tables.

Musser presented McRae with a VIP wine and fruit selection which the mayor says he thought all the mayors were getting until he realized later he was the only one leaving with the gifts.

McRae talked to conference officials about bringing the conference to Charlevoix in 1990 and received favorable response.

One conference leader also came back to Charlevoix with the mayor, who shepherded him around town.

Next year the mayors will be in Grand Rapids.

McRae's visit with the Grand Hotel chairman followed an exchange of letters before the conference.

Panama Canal cruise, golf added to KCB auction line-up

As the Labor Day auction to raise funds for Keep Charlevoix Beautiful approaches, more bidding packages are being put together.

The KCB auction and drawing raise money for the annual Operation Petunia city-wide flower planting and for other KCB activities.

The auction will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. on Labor Day - Monday, Sept. 5 - at the Lepman home on the Loeb Farm grounds.

Attendance is by ticket - either a chance on the pickup truck first prize or an auction-only ticket.

Most recent additions to the list of bid items are a Florida-to-California boat cruise and a 10-course Northern Michigan golfing package.

The cruise is a 14-day jaunt on the Vistafjord, a Cunard Lines vessel, through the Panama Canal.

The ship will leave Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on Saturday, Nov. 26, and land in Los Angeles, Calif., on Dec. 10.

Ten of the top golf courses in the North are included in the golfing package - which provides for four rounds and two carts at each club.

Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix is joined by Schuss Mountain in Mancoske, Antrim Dells near Atwood and two Boyne Mountain courses - Monument and Alpine - in Boyne Falls.

Other courses in the package are Michigawye in Gaylord, Garland East and Garland West in Lewiston, and Boyne Highlands and Harbor Point in Harbor Springs.

Other auction items include trips to Century City, Calif.; Scottsdale, Ariz.; Naples, Fla.; Mackinac Island; Harbor Springs; and Traverse City.

THE MAYOR'S CORNER

Last July 26th on a very warm morning, I and some other 400 persons were on the south lawn of the White House.

At 11 a.m., President Reagan came out to speak. He began with this joke:

"Two men were tramping through a light wooded forest when suddenly they saw a mean black bear running straight for them. One of the men quickly flipped off his heavy hiking boots and even faster slipped into a pair of tennis shoes.

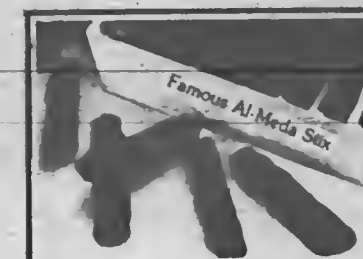

His surprised companion said to him - "you don't expect to outrun that bear do you?" And his good friend with the sneakers replied, "No, I don't expect to outrun the bear - but I do expect to outrun you!"

President Reagan later went on to say - make our country clean and beautiful - Take Pride in America. To his words I added, Take Pride in Michigan and most of all take Pride in Charlevoix.

Our lakes make Charlevoix a very beautiful place - but the best thing about Charlevoix is its people.

Firemen's car wash aids rescue truck fund

More than 125 cars were washed during a one-day fund-raising event for the volunteer fire department.

Firefighters and other volunteers raised $1,226.67 toward the purchase of a fire rescue truck.

They have now collected more than $22,000 of the $35,000 needed.

The truck would be used to store all rescue equipment — such as the Jaws of Life, powerlift airbags, cutting tools, etc. — which are now kept on a variety of trucks.

With the high-speed rescue vehicle, firefighters would be able to start helping victims of accidents faster than they can now, fund drive organizers say.

Doug Bergmann wets down a car in preparation for soaping and scrubbing on the car wash assembly line inside the fire station.

Cars were backed into the street waiting for a wash even though firefighters and their friends were using an assembly line-style system four lanes wide.

Future courthouse?

These proposed plans for a new Charlevoix County Courthouse were prepared by Gove Associates of Kalamazoo. They provide for separate courtrooms and secretarial offices for circuit, district, and probate courts as well as a law library. The structure is proposed for the southeast corner of Garfield and Grant Streets, near the county jail. According to commissioner Don Smith, a member of the county building committee, there are no plans for construction in the near future. When the time comes the county would probably set up a building authority and borrow through bonding.

176 children from area attend annual Bible School

"Come meet Jesus" was the theme for the fifth annual interdenominational Vacation Bible School at Assembly of God.

Under the direction of Jan Boss and committee, this year's Bible school attracted 176 children from pre-school through grade five. Another 71 adults and teens volunteered time.

The school featured memory verses along with arts and crafts that resulted in many handmade articles for children to take home. Each day adults acted out a Bible character.

Peter (the Rev. Thomas Black) illustrated Jesus' forgiving love that Peter experienced after denying Christ three times. Mary and Martha (Theda Williams and Sue Bowense) observed the power of Jesus who resurrected their brother Lazarus, while the woman at the well (Barb Powell) experienced Jesus' forgiving power no matter what one's sin. Jesus (the Rev. Philip Schairbaum) demonstrated unconditional love for all.

Music by Mike Patrick and Steve Stargardt included the theme song "Come Meet Jesus," which Patrick wrote and taught to the children, who sang and signed for the parents Thursday.

A kitchen staff prepared treats and refreshments throughout the week, and a family picnic for parents and children was held Thursday.

The following churches participated: Assembly of God, Christ Episcopal, Community Church of God, Community Reformed, First Baptist, First Congregational, St. Mary's Catholic and United Methodist.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

We just returned from a vacation trip. Instead of driving all the way, we drove to Detroit and then flew on to our final destination.

As a part of the trip, I got my first ride in a jumbo jet in many years. Those things have changed since my college days of being a commuter airline dispatcher.

This particular aircraft had in-flight entertainment available. There was a movie and just about every kind of music you'd care to listen to. But there was another channel that got my attention.

You could listen in on the pilot's in-flight radio transmissions. It was a whole lot of fun for me to follow our progress from clearance delivery to takeoff, through the climbs and turns, on to descent and landing.

It was neat to feel the turns and the latitude changes not just as butterflies in my stomach but as responses to an unseen but clearly heard source of direction. And that, in a phrase that my congregation is familiar with, is where it will preach.

If you ever get butterflies over the unknown or worried or concerned about what lays ahead, do you realize that God through Christ has Someone ready to help guide you through?

You can't see Him like you could another person. But He is a person nonetheless. He has already explored the course of life that lays ahead of you and is more than prepared to show you the best direction to follow.

I hope you realize that I mean the Holy Spirit. In John 14, Jesus shares that He must leave the disciples. The prospect of losing Him, especially to a betrayal, terrifies them. He reminds them that this and all things in His ministry must happen as a part of God's plan. Then, He introduces them to the Holy Spirit and explains His place in their lives.

The Holy Spirit is the Comforter. If you have flown, you know there are those rough trips that you can make through turbulence. A sudden air pocket can just make you feel like you're falling.

Life has a way of doing that, too. The Spirit is with you to cushion and ease the discomfort you face. He is the Teacher. A pilot doesn't just suddenly decide he is going to command a jumbo jet. He has to learn the trade.

You are not going to know everything there is to know about faith in one easy lesson. You need to learn and grow as a Christian. He is the Counselor. Just as the pilot counts on the air traffic controller to confirm his course, you can count on the Holy Spirit to direct you.

Football season may start late

The failure of a millage vote in Mancelona has left the Charlevoix football team without an opening football game.

The Rayders were scheduled to play Mancelona on Friday, Sept. 2, but the third defeat of a tax request killed sports for this year in that district.

The only possible game the Rayders could get for that weekend would be against Ewen-Trout Creek, says assistant principal Dick Swenor.

But the four-hour drive makes that unlikely, he says, unless a site midway could be found.

As it stands now, the Rayders will begin the season at East Jordan at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 9. The first home game will be against Grayling on Sept. 23.

Other fall sports will begin the first week of school, starting with a girls basketball home game against Boyne City at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 6.

The freshman football team plays at Cheboygan at 6:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Sept. 7, and the JVs play at home against East Jordan at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 8.

Golfers begin at Petoskey at 4 p.m. that day and the girls basketball squad plays its second game, with a 6:15 p.m. tip-off in Elk Rapids.

The Rayders' cross country team begins the defense of its 1987 Class C state championship at the Bath Invitational at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 10. Bath was the site of the state finals last fall.

City tournament champs

Coaches OK'd for two high school teams

Two coaches have been appointed by the school board for the coming seasons.

Henry Wagner will coach JV girls' basketball and Ron Cox will coach girls' softball.

Both are faculty members at Charlevoix schools.

They join coaches in a full line-up of sports at the high school.

Courier editor leaving for post in Delaware

The Charlevoix Courier will soon be getting a new editor. Don Dibley, editor since May 1987, is leaving to become coordinating editor of the daily Delaware State News in Dover, Del.

The Sept. 7 issue will be his final one at the Courier.

Since coming to Northern Michigan in 1981, Dibley has worked for all three newspapers serving Charlevoix County—the Petoskey News-Review, the Charlevoix County Press in Boyne City and the Courier.

Prior to that, he was an editor for daily newspapers in Ypsilanti, Flint and Utica and for weeklies in Union Lake.

At both the Petoskey and Charlevoix papers, he was instrumental in restructuring the layout format of the publications.

The search for a new editor will begin immediately, general manager Ken Winter said.

In the interim, reporter Peg Ohle will be assisted by members of the news staff of the News-Review in providing news coverage of the Charlevoix area.

Aging unit services top $163,000

by PEG OHLE

If you live in Charlevoix County and are over 60 years old, you have about 3,600 "friends" in the same age group.

And you and your friends are eligible for about $163,000 worth of services provided yearly by the County Commission on Aging.

These include a hot noon meal served at one of three senior centers in the county (or delivered to homes of those who are handicapped), home health care, assistance in doing housework and outside chores for those unable to do them themselves, health screening clinics, bus transportation, and job training and placement for those still in the job market.

Funds to provide these services come from the federal and state governments, funneled through a 10-county consortium, Northwest Senior Resources Inc., with headquarters in Traverse City.

Charlevoix County is fifth in size among the 10 counties in the consortium, which also includes Grand Traverse, Wexford, Emmet, Manistee, Antrim, Leelanau, Kalkaska, Benzie and Missaukee counties.

As might be expected, last year Charlevoix County was fifth in the number of meals served at senior centers and fifth in the number of homemaker services it provided local senior citizens.

However, in other services it provided, Charlevoix County was behind its fifth place ranking: It was 10th in health care services, eighth in home delivered meals, seventh in home chore services, eighth in health screening, third among the four counties providing transportation services, and ninth in the number of job-seekers placed.

The annual report of Northwest Senior Resources indicates Charlevoix County senior citizens may not be taking full advantage of the services available to them.

Many services call for a donation if the participant can possibly afford it.

A dollar donation is asked for meals, but no one is turned away for not making a donation. Other services call for no set payments, but many contribute what they can.

During 1967, Northwest Senior Resources received a total of $2,331,997 to carry on its work in the 10-county area.

Over half, $1,458,388, came from the federal government, including the Department of Agriculture.

Walk work continues

Reconstruction of sidewalks has spread from near downtown streets to residential areas of the valley. The project is part of the four-mile infrastructure renovation program begun a year ago. The work is being done by Charlevoix County Construction Co.

Fish station lauded for gull, fly control

Installation of a fish cleaning station at Ferry Beach has reduced problems with seagulls and flies, the city recreation director says.

Odor problems anticipated by some residents also have not been a problem, says rec chief Ike Boss.

Henry Wagner, who has helped Boss clean up barrels of discarded fish parts in past years, agrees the situation has improved.

The fish cleaning station was built as a gift to the city by Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament Inc., which puts on an annual fishing event.

The gift did not come without controversy, though, as several residents attended council meetings with fears the facility would generate further problems.

Instead, Boss says, there are now fewer gulls at the beach — which in some past years has been heavily populated by the birds — and there have been hardly any flies.

Only a couple times all summer has there been any odor problem, Boss said, and, even at that, it was probably less than when fishermen threw remains in trash barrels.

The cleaning station is a permanent-style block building with mesh windows and a custom-made stainless steel cleaning table.

Trout tournament committee members and volunteer helpers constructed the facility, which has running water and regular trash pick-up.

The city provided utilities and a spot in the beach parking lot for the building.

Landfill asks new expansion OK

by PEG OHLE

When members of the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Planning Committee meet for their hoped-for "last" meeting Wednesday, Sept. 7, they will have to consider a question not previously posed to them:

Waste Management of North

America Inc., owner of Charlevoix County Landfill, is asking permission to make improvements on the landfill that include digging deeper into the ground and rising higher above ground than has been done in the past.

In a letter to County Planner Larry Sullivan, who has coorminated the work of the committee, William J. McDonough of Waste Management states the company desires to make "environmental improvements... including recompact liner, drainage blanket, and leachate collection system along with an increase in operating capacity. Our intent is to develop the remaining cells somewhat deeper than the existing plans show in order to facilitate draining leachate from the existing landfill and to incorporate one on four side slopes for our final contours."

A representative of Waste Management will appear at the meeting to further explain the company's plans.

Some time ago, the committee turned down a request from Waste Management to expand the size of the landfill from 40 acres to 100 acres.

This request is an alternative to the earlier expansion request.

The meeting starts at 7 p.m. in the County Building Annex.

Readers: Restrict sidewalks

Readers responding to a Courier questionnaire on use of downtown sidewalks by merchants favor restrictions.

The merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce is working with the city to try to formulate a policy on the use of sidewalks.

Right now, some businesses put out sandwich board signs, tables and chairs or merchandise for sale. Many put nothing on the sidewalks.

There is public sidewalk in front of the downtown stores, but several businesses also have a portion of the sidewalk on their private property.

City zoning administrator Sue Erber's report on what other communities do will be discussed during a merchants' meeting at 5 p.m. today at City Hall.

Of the 24 surveys returned by Tuesday, more than three-quarters voted for restrictions.

The vote:

- Five for "Let businesses put whatever they want on the sidewalks."
- Eight for "Don't let businesses put anything on the sidewalks - public or private."
- Eight for "You can't stop people from using their own property, but keep businesses from using public sidewalks."
- Three for "Certain items are OK on sidewalks, but the rest should not be allowed."

Mentioned as being OK in that final category: Tables and chairs, Sidewalk Sales Days.

The beach end of the south pier into Lake Michigan is broken up as work begins on replacement of the crumbling, tilting structure. The Army Corps of Engineers, which has concluded the pier is failing, has contracted to have the pier replaced -- with a U-shaped wave cushion installed. City officials, fishermen, the state Department of Natural Resources and the area's congressman have tried unsuccessfully to get the corps to change the design. Work is expected to take about a year.

Scott Swanson

Charlevoix native named Courier editor

Charlevoix native Scott Swanson has been selected to be the editor of the Charlevoix Courier.

His appointment was announced by Ken Winter, general manager of the Charlevoix Courier Corp.

Swanson will begin his new job immediately. He has been a staff writer at the Petoskey News-Review for the past 1 1/2 years.

He succeeds Don Dibley, who is leaving for an editor's position with the Delaware State News in Dover, Del.

Swanson was born in Charlevoix 23 years ago and grew up in the city and in Charlevoix Township. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1978.

He obtained a Bachelor of Fine and Applied Arts degree in journalism and sociology from Central Michigan University in 1982.

Following graduation, he worked for two years as a dormitory director at Ferris State College.

In 1984 he returned North, beginning a job as staff writer for the Antrim County News in Bellaire.

After 2 1/2 years there, Swanson joined the staff of the Petoskey daily newspaper in December 1986.

Swanson and his wife Kathy, production manager of the Antrim County News, live in Charlevoix.

He says there are advantages and disadvantages to editing a newspaper in his hometown. The advantage, he says, is in having background on issues and concerns. The disadvantage he sums up in Biblical terms, saying: The prophet is never welcome in his homeland.

City seeks bidders to buy, renovate century-old house

People interested in renovating a century-old house on Clinton Street are being sought by the city.

The city owns the building, which it bought with the intention of tearing down for parking.

But the Downtown Development Authority, which initially sought removal, has pushed for retention and upgrading of the building.

City council, which once, too, favored removal, has given the DDA a year to find someone to renovate the building.

With approval of bid specifications and a draft purchase agreement in hand, city staff will now solicit bids for the house at 100 Clinton.

Already, several people have expressed interest in the building — including local business owners, downstaters who brought a restoration architect to look at the structure and a Californian who has called the city planner.

The city is looking for someone who will buy the front half of the lot and restore the exterior of the building to its pre-1900's look.

The back portion of the parcel will be retained by the city for parking. It is adjacent to the Erber lot and Mason Street lot, behind the fire hall.

The city will get about 14 to 18 parking spaces, depending on the final configuration, in the interior of the block while there would still be a building on the street.

A minimum bid of about $37,200 — depending on the exact cost of a land survey and appraisal — will be asked.

It has been estimated by some business owners who have looked at the building that restoration could cost up to $100,000 or more.

Commercial uses of the property are sought; the city says no residential uses will be allowed.

Bidders will have about 30 days to submit their proposals to the city.

The change in attitude about tearing down the building was pushed by DDA member Jeff Porter and city planner Gerry Harsch.

Some city council members still prefer demolition of the structure, which the city bought for $70,000, but voted to try to sell the property.

Restoration of the exterior of this Clinton Street house to its pre-1900's look would be required of the purchaser.

'Big final push' set this fall to wrap up North Point purchase

Little Traverse Conservancy is putting together a "big final push" to reach its goal of purchasing North Point as a recreational area.

The conservancy is conducting a $700,000-plus fund-raising drive to buy the 23-acre Lake Michigan parcel and turn it over to Charlevoix Township.

The 2,800-foot shoreline, backed by dunes and virgin woods, would remain a natural area.

If contributions continue at their anticipated rate, the fund-raising could be concluded in about one year — less than half the time projected.

To date, about $634,000 has been collected — including a $400,000 grant from the state Land Trust Fund.

If the remaining funds can be collected soon enough, about

Overindulgent rich only impressive to columnist

Editor,

I'm sure most of the residents of Charlevoix cried themselves to sleep Wednesday night after they read Edith Gilbert's column. I know I did.

I cried because my 80-foot yacht isn't 80-feet long. It doesn't have a color coordinated black cover over its Jacuzzi and it doesn't have five televisions.

I bawled my eyes out over Edith's valuable bottle of champagne that was lost forever during the touching christening ceremony.

The item I became most distraught over, however, was when she compared herself and her overindulgent companions to Christopher Columbus, Leif Erikson and Captain Cook.

The best explorers were not

Letters to the editor:

the finest because they had enough bucks to buy the best boat. They were the best because there was more to them than their possessions.

They had the strength, courage and vision to see that there could be more to their worlds than their immediate surroundings. I definitely found those characteristics lacking in Edith's enthusiasm for the MacGillivray's big boat.

Edith, Edith, Edith. Maybe I will stop crying when you write something that's concerned with more than just the surface of things. Readers are rarely impressed when they are reminded week after week of how Charlevoix's summer affluent blow their money.

We especially don't like to read about boats that are more luxurious than most of our homes. Remember, Edith, readers who are disappointed week after week will eventually stop reading. It takes more than money to impress us.

City ignoring public interest

Editor,

Attached is my ballot expressing my opinion regarding the use of public sidewalks. Have we reached the point where the "merchants" and "real estate interests" are dominating the policies, politics and administration of this town to the detriment of the public interest? Let's look at the record!

A few months ago the State Highway Department was invited to study Charlevoix's hideous traffic problems. They came up with four or five recommendations including diversion of traffic to State Street; limiting parking in certain areas etc., etc. Every single recommendation was rejected; the principle objections being the downtown merchants. Their attitude seems to be — we came first and to hell with everyone else, including taxpayers, tourists, Charlevoix citizens, resort owners and anybody else who pays taxes in this town.

Now look at the enclosed picture which shows a picture of but one small section of the downtown area where even the streets are cordoned off by "sawhorses". These are the same people who object to "limited" parking on normal business days. Sidewalks are for the use of pedestrians going from point A to B and not a "business adjunct" for a multitude of downtown stores.

Our gutless city commission doesn't even enforce the law which states that a "six-foot" pathway be left open for pedestrian traffic. As a result, on Sidewalk Sales days, our downtown area looks like the "garment area" in New York City!

Further, there is a serious legal problem here. I refer to the law of "Adverse Possession." I believe the city should invoke this law on all property owners who claim "title" to a section of

Should freedom be mandatory?

GOP presidential candidate George Bush has raised a surprise issue for debate before the November election.

He wants teachers to be required to lead their classes in the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag.

Poor George Bush! How could he have lived in this country more than 60 years, served so valiantly during World War II and still have missed the whole point of being an American?

In the United States, we don't require people to love their country or make public protestations of their patriotism.

I think most Americans have very warm feelings toward their country because, thanks to the Constitution, they aren't required to do such things as recite the Pledge, sing the "Star Spangled Banner" or make public spectacles of themselves.

In Michigan, reciting the Pledge is optional, which is as it should be.

Charlevoix's last two mayors have had different approaches to the Pledge. Mayor Hal Hill always opened city council meetings with the Pledge of Allegiance. I can't remember anyone ever refusing to recite it along with him. It was a nice beginning to each council meeting, postponing at least temporarily the agony of getting down to business.

Mayor Ralph McRae, like most of his predecessors, didn't bother with the Pledge during his initial council meetings. But Councilwoman Shirley Roloff said she would like to see the practice continued and McRae now leads the Pledge at regularly scheduled council meetings but not at committee meetings.

I am afraid that George Bush is heading for trouble if he insists of making an issue out of what should be a non-issue.

In 1943, one of the most trying years of World War II, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a student could not be required to recite the Pledge of Allegiance. But even faced with that high court prohibition, 11 states have adopted laws mandating daily recitation of the Pledge in classrooms.

I suspect that such laws are largely ignored because I have never heard of a teacher being cast into prison for failure to lead his or her class in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance. And where such laws are followed, no one apparently has bothered to raise a fuss.

But all that may change now that George Bush has put the question on the national agenda and battle lines are being drawn.

Personally, I like the Pledge and — given the opportunity — I never hesitate to repeat it in a loud clear voice, always hoping I remember to insert President Dwight Eisenhower's "under God" at the right place. Sometimes I get so choked up toward the end that I never finish.

The same goes for singing "The Star Spangled Banner," even though the high notes are out of my range. Sometimes I muddle through by switching keys in midstream, but I notice this has a very unsettling effect on the orchestra so I only do it in emergencies.

I would much prefer having "America the Beautiful" as the national anthem because it is far more singable. But it also is a highly emotional song and if I get beyond the "purple mountains" I am doing well. By the time we get to the "alabaster cities," I am ready to enlist in the Marine Corps or throw myself in front of any enemy tank.

I guess I am an anarchist at heart, because if I were required to recite the Pledge or sing any patriotic song I would clam up like a miser's change purse, defying the powers-that-be to clamp me in irons.

So why is George Bush making an issue over the Pledge? Search me. It boggles the mind that he would raise such a question when so many other areas of government are deserving of his attention, namely U.S. relations with Latin America, defense spending vs. domestic spending, the national deficit, the foreign trade deficit and the growing threat of inflation.

Public interest ignored by city

the sidewalk in front of their stores. I enclose two copies of articles relating to this law.

To my way of thinking, the city should control the use of "public sidewalks" and the only way they can do this is to get legal title to these sidewalk areas in question. Merchants should naturally be "compensated" fairly for conveying title for the relatively small sidewalk area they claim is theirs. This is a ludicrous situation at present and it's about time the city take the only step available to solve this mess.

Further, we now allow the use of East Park for an art fair and other commercial activities. Accordingly allow downtown merchants one or two days use of East Park during late August and let them have their outdoor sales in the park.

Let's start showing consideration for every one and stop fostering inconvenience on local citizens and visitors by cluttering up our sidewalks with a lot of merchandise the proprietors are trying to get rid of.

Editor,

Enclosed is an article from the Greenwich (Connecticut) Time of August 18, 1988 regarding a seasonal pavilion under consideration for our waterfront. Perhaps a similar, more modest, structure would be suitable for Charlevoix.

Riverside, Conn.

Described in the article is a 42-foot high portable bandshell made of Tedlar, a mildew-resistant polyvinyl material. The arts council in the city of Greenwich, Conn., plans to purchase the structure and give it to the city. It would be raised each June and taken down in September. The cost is $250,000.

Golf-home plan advances

Township planners endorse project

by PEG OHLE

A proposed country club development which would cover parts of Charlevoix and Hayes Townships with an 18-hole golf course, club house, single family homes and attached townhouses has received the approval of the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission.

It now awaits approval of the Charlevoix Township Board, Hayes Township Planning Commission and Hayes Township Board.

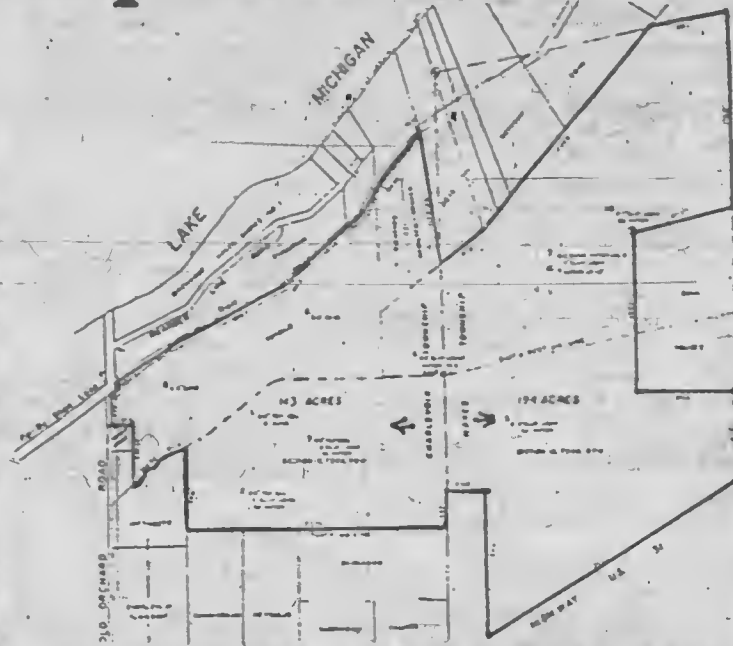

The Charlevoix Township Board once turned down the developer's request for rezoning to accommodate the plan, but the proposed number of housing units has since been decreased from 446 to 276, which is expected to win the Charlevoix Township Board's approval.

Neither the Hayes Township Planning Commission nor the Hayes Township Board has formally considered the revised plans for the Charlevoix Country Club, but the Planning Commission has expressed the opinion that it is the best use of the property, although they may ask for further reductions in density.

The Charlevoix Country Club would encompass 143 acres in Charlevoix Township and 194 acres in Hayes Township.

The preliminary site plan prepared by the Country Club organization in cooperation with Matthews & Associates, golf course architects of Lansing; H. Jack Begrow, architect of Charlevoix; and Vacation Properties Network of Charlevoix, calls for development in three phases:

The first phase, to be built in the first three years, would include the golf course, with seven holes in Charlevoix Township and 11 holes in Hayes Township; the clubhouse and other club facilities, to be built in Charlevoix Township; 83 single family building sites averaging 1,900 square feet each, to be laid out in Charlevoix Township; and 54 single family attached units to be built in Charlevoix Township.

The jagged black line borders the property in Charlevoix and Hayes Townships for which the Charlevoix Country Club is planned.

The second phase, to be built in years four and five, would include another 44 single family attached units, to be built in Charlevoix Township; and 36 single family attached units, to be built in Hayes Township.

The third phase, to be built in years five through 10, would include 43 single family building sites, to be laid out in Hayes Township; and 12 single family attached units, to be built in Hayes Township.

An investment group calling itself Charlevoix Country Club

Inc., headed by Rik Lobenz of Charlevoix, is spearheading the development.

Present owners of involved property in Charlevoix Township include Dr. John Richards, Helmut A. and Leora B. Forbrig, Edward and Phila Shanahan, and Hagen B.G. Manker and Sulane Hamilton.

The state Department of Natural Resources has advised the developers that an inspection of the Charlevoix Township portion of the property did not reveal wetland characteristics, so no Wetlands Permit would be necessary for development.

The soils map of Hayes Township also indicates mostly clay loam and sand.

The developers hope to be able to hook up to the city water and sewer systems.

Hearing set on pier plan

A public hearing will be held on a request to construct a pier at the proposed Pine Lake Club development.

The hearing will be conducted by the state Department of Natural Resources at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 7, at Charlevoix High School.

Pine Lake Club, a 23-unit housing project in Charlevoix Township, is planned on the site where the controversial Water's Edge complex was proposed.

Planned are a floating pier system, a breakwater and riprapping along the shoreline.

The hearing was requested by WATCH Inc., an area environmental group, and by neighbors.

Bandshell material, labor donations sought

Attempts are being made to produce a groundswell of community contributions of materials and labor to build the Clarence Odmark Pavilion.

A community-city committee has been working on design plans and fund-raising to replace the deteriorating bandstand in East Park.

Mayor Ralph McRae, who is a member of the committee, has approached Medusa Cement and Manthei Redi-Mix about donations of materials.

Also, McRae says, Bill Stevens and Sons has pledged to do cement work and Richard Meyers is compiling the list of materials needed so a budget can be determined.

The committee is hoping to bring down the estimated $100,000 to $130,000 cost of the pavilion by soliciting "in-kind" contributions from businesses and tradesmen.

McRae says he will be asking about 40 firms and individuals for similar donations.

A Victorian design pavilion has received initial approval from city council. Architect Jack Begrow worked with the committee to come up with the proposal.

So far, 224 contributors have donated $21,000 to the project. Another $52,000 is in city hands from the Robert Bridge Trust Fund, earlier bandshell fund-raising attempts and money set aside by city council from the sale of city land.

McRae says the largest single contribution so far is $2,000 given by a member of the Odmark family.

The mayor, who is concerned that not enough large donations are being made, says eight professional people and eight downtown merchants have contributed.

He plans to make direct appeals to 47 merchants, professional people, real estate firms, car dealers, banks and summer residents.

The following people have made monetary contributions to the project since an earlier list was published in the Courier on June 29.

Tax-deductible contributions may be sent to Clarence A. Odmark Pavilion, care of Joni Olach, 300 Alice, Charlevoix 49720.

Art show raises $5,000 for school aid foundation

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

The recently formed foundation to assist Charlevoix schools has received a major donation from the Waterfront Art Fair.

The art fair committee donated $5,000 to Charlevoix Public Schools Enrichment Foundation toward realization of the foundation's long-term goals, said Art Fair Committee member Suzi Reis.

The donation was raised during the pre-show reception and preview showing celebrating the art fair's 30th anniversary earlier this month.

"We chose to make this donation to the school foundation in thanks for all the services young people have volunteered in previous years to assist the fair and because both the art fair committee and foundation are committed to enhancing the arts in Charlevoix," said Reis.

"I hope in the future we will see both a swimming pool and theater in Charlevoix which will benefit all the children of this community."

The Charlevoix Schools

Enrichment Foundation was formed last year to assist the schools in areas not covered by tax monies.

During its organizational year, the foundation raised funds to help students study in France for the summer, attend "College for Kids" at North Central Michigan College, attend summer high school programs at Michigan Technological University in Houghton, and help the Charlevoix High School Alumni Association celebrate the school's 100th graduating class.

The foundation is establishing its long-term goals, which may include a theatre for the school, which has neither auditorium nor stage, and a community swimming pool.

In making the donation, Reis thanked school students who have volunteered every year to help the committee during the art fair.

Student volunteers this year were Chris Matye, Andrea Matye, J.H. Heck, Kelly Heck, Emily Heck, Jill Dreyer, Amanda Mettler, Melissa Mosher and Angela Buday.

Mary Lee Campbell (left), President of Charlevoix Public Schools Enrichment Foundation, and Scott Beatty, Treasurer of the foundation, accept a check for $5,000 from J.H. Heck, as students Kelly Heck, Andrea Matye and Emily Heck and Suzi Reis of the Waterfront Art Fair look on.

Sidewalk item restrictions favored

Some comments from readers favoring "Let businesses put anything" out:

"Don't stop parking."

"If you want tourist trade, let them enjoy the park and lake views - it's such a short summer."

"Make shopping in Charlevoix a fun thing."

"The busy season in your town is so short, help the businesses. I am a summer visitor."

"I see no reason the stores shouldn't put out in front of the store whatever they want as long as they don't block the sidewalk. What harm has it ever done over the years?"

From those opposed to anything being on private or public sidewalks:

"For the simple reason of sanitation, health and safety. The volume of our walking summer visitors demands safety."

"Pictures of special items can be on the big windows, surf boards, swim tubes, etc."

"Highway bridge too narrow. Unloading. Wharfside especially unloading not provided."

"Tables and chairs at restaurants that have waiters or waitresses."

"Really too bad. Staley's and Carey's were never a bother."

"There's enough congestion on the sidewalks without this problem."

From readers favoring curbs on public sidewalks, but not private ones:

"Our sidewalks downtown are not wide enough to accommodate pedestrians now. In fact, it is dangerous walking downtown - what with broken sidewalks, bikers, etc., etc. Eating outside on sidewalks is not conducive to keeping Charlevoix beautiful."

"Where to the 25 people listed on the back page ad park? What help does Vacationland Prop. give to solving the problems this size staff creates for shoppers looking for a parking space?"

"Except sidewalk sales days for downtown."

"Two or more days of very limited parking is wrong."

"Nothing should extend over private portion of walk."

"None, only on sidewalk sales."

"Because it makes the sidewalks dirty and sticky - if they bosed down every night?"

"A few months ago a man sold hot dogs on a cart that was not allowed on the street. Let's be fair."

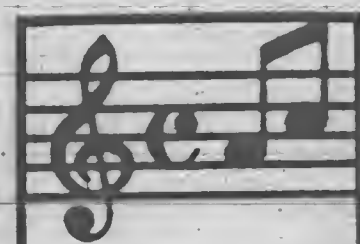

Comments from readers thinking some items are OK:

"Tubes, garbage cans, rakes, T-shirts, and signs, etc., look too funky."

"Tables and chairs for eating add to the 'resort' atmosphere -

If areas are kept clean and picked up. No clothes racks or other merchandise on sidewalks. We need more eating places in downtown Charlevoix."

One reader did not respond directly to the questionnaire, but said several portions of the city ordinances address the question. One area pointed out prohibits fast food restaurants from being in the downtown area.

KCB auction features Bermuda trip, cruises

A week-long stay in a private residence on Bermuda is the latest addition to the items being auctioned off by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

The civic organization - which sponsors the Operation Petunia flower planting each spring - will hold its annual fund-raiser on Labor Day.

The event, at the Lepman house on Loeb Farm, will begin at 7 p.m. Food from Stafford's Hospitality will be served, and music will be provided by Larry Wojcik and his band.

Entry to the event is with a $125 ticket on a prize Chevrolet pick-up truck.

People who would like to bid on an item but will not be attending the auction may call 547-9900 for instructions.

Bidding on most items will open at approximately one-half the retail value.

The week's stay at the McGillivray's Heron's Nest on Bermuda is for two couples. Transportation and meals are not included.

Other long-distance auction items include a round of golf for four at St. Andrews, Scotland, several Caribbean cruises, and stays in Florida, Arizona and California. Closer to home are packages involving lodging, meals and recreation at Mackinac Island, Harbor Springs, Gaylord and Traverse City.

There are also several Charlevoix items, including an Edgewater Inn weekend with brunch on Serenity and dinner at the Weatherlane; a stay at the Boar's Head Inn with sailing on Pygmalion and a tour of Earl Young homes; and a bed and breakfast stay with tour of North Point and Ransom Preserve.

Other local items include a cruise for 50 people on the Star of Charlevoix and a pig roast for 50 couples at the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

A fun auction item is Hagan Manker's bumper sticker-covered van. Stipulation on the sale is that the van must be repainted or removed from the city to "help us Keep Charlevoix Beautiful."

Other auction items include a Shanty Creek timeshare that can be used throughout the world, gourmet dinners by Dr. and Mrs. James Gibbons on Pa-Ba-Shaw Lane and by Beth Strawbridge on Michigan Avenue and a dinner for two in Stuart, Fla.

Golf packages include four rounds at Antrim Dells, Schuss Mountain and Belvedere with accommodations at the Weatherlane Terrace; four rounds at the Bear at Grand Traverse Resort along with brunch in the Trillium; a suite at Water Street Inn in Boyne City and golf at the Monument and Alpine courses at Boyne Mountain; and a stay at a Hidden Valley chalet in Gaylord with golf at Garland and Michaywe.

Cruises on the Vistafjord, departing from Fort Lauderdale, include 14 days through the Panama Canal and 12 days in the Caribbean.

The Florida trip is a week in a Naples, Fla., home on the gulf with tennis lessons included. The California trip is to the Century City Marriott for two nights, with dinner and room service breakfast.

Other trips include four nights at the Scottsdale (Ariz.) Hyatt Regency Gainey Ranch, two nights at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac and two nights at the Mission Point Resort on the island.

There are also a number of city recreation facility memberships, works by Charlevoix artists and other less-expensive items to be bid on.

THE MAYOR'S CORNER

Selling Charlevoix ...

Wherever I go, I always promote my city. I want everybody to know it, too. In Moscow, for example, I passed along a very interesting videotape of our Charlevoix. There can be nothing like our Charlevoix in Russia.

While in Washington D.C. on July 26, I visited the offices of Michigan Senators Levin and Riegle and Congressman Robert Davis. I asked them to think more about Charlevoix and noted they did not have any large wall displays of, or brochures about Charlevoix. They should have and I will see to it that they receive a large aerial view of Charlevoix.

During the mayors convention last week at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island I requested that the 1990 Michigan Mayors Convention be held in Charlevoix. Many agreed they would like to come here and chances are very good that they will be here in 1990.

So, wherever you go - be proud of Charlevoix - tell everyone about our beautiful city.

'Adopt A Stream' project begins

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is initiating a voluntary Adopt A Stream Program to let groups play a role in the preservation and enhancement of area streams.

Groups such as service clubs, school classes or scouts can begin participation by "adopting" a stream or a reach of a stream for enhancement and protection.

Enhancement will begin with a Streambank Cleanup Day. Long-term protection will include monitoring stream and watershed activities on an informal basis.

Adopting groups may also work with the DNR and other agencies on stream restoration and enhancement projects such as the development of erosion control structures.

Interested groups may contact the Adopt A Stream Program, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, P.O. Box 300, Conway, Mich. 49722.

Bus system set to start building office, garage

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Transit System is about to start construction of a $300,000 garage and office facility on M-75 South in Boyne City, near the county road commission headquarters. The building will be paid for by a $237,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Transportation and other state funds which will cover complete cost of construction and furnishings.

Last spring, the county board of commissioners purchased a 4.3-acre piece of property adjacent to the road commission for "one dollar and other considerations."

Plans for the facility were drawn by architect Richard B. White of Walloon Lake and construction will be handled by Seals & Roberts of Boyne City, with whom the county board signed a contract last week. The garage will house the Transit System's fleet of buses and dispatch room and offices, as well as offices of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging (which supplies noon-day meals to senior citizens five days a week).

Art Saworski serves as manager of both agencies, and the county board last week voted to hire an assistant for him.

Both agencies are heavily subsidized by federal and state funds, and the Transit System also receives a one-quarter mill levy from county taxes. Total subsidies often run more than $2 per ride and per meal.

Prototype sidewalk

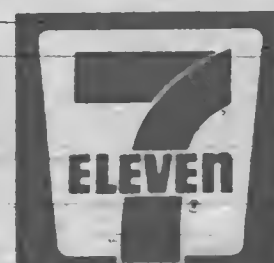

The city has planted nine trees along the new sidewalk on Michigan Avenue between Pine River Lane and West Dixon. The planting is part of an effort to have the area -- with brickwork in the sidewalk and with iron grates and tree guards -- be a prototype of what the downtown will look like when sidewalk replacement is finished. The Downtown Development Authority hopes to complete the sidewalk project next year.

Mayors of 5 cities to discuss concerns

The mayors of the five cities in Charlevoix and Emmet counties will meet to discuss common problems facing their communities.

The meeting, arranged by Charlevoix Mayor Ralph McRae, will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 7, at the Weather-vane Restaurant.

Planning to attend with McRae are Joe Kilborn of Petoskey, Russel Peck of East Jordan, John Kenyon of Harbor Springs and Keith Fitzpatrick of Boyne City.

McRae calls the get-together an exploratory meeting "to see what five cities can do together that they could not do alone."

Subjects such as garbage service, downtown development efforts, group purchasing, engineering services and working with legislators are topics McRae says may be discussed.

Kilborn, 12-year mayor of Petoskey, has been suggested as chairman of the meeting.

Audit shows city books in good order

The city government has gotten a good report card from its auditors.

"This is a pretty good audit report," said Jim Cuzenza of Hill, Woodcock and Schroeder.

The audit report follows specific guidelines spelled out by the state and by the auditors' professional organization.

It shows if the city is following prescribed rules in accounting for its finances.

Six recommendations were made, all of them considered minor in nature by the auditors. They included such things as periodic reviews of some rates, exceptions to a state law on budgeting and disposition of a long-standing group of electrical fund deposits.

Although the audit was not completed until five months after the close of the fiscal year, the auditors said that was an improvement over past years.

City Treasurer Rick Brandt began his job during last year's audit period after the city had been without a full-time treasurer for several months.

The auditors and City Manager Mike Wiesner said they were pleased with Brandt's work and the cooperation other city employees gave.

Sound system tryout set for council chambers

City council may soon have a sound system for its meetings in council chambers.

The system would consist of two parts — a loud speaker and microphone arrangement so meetings could be better heard and a recording machine so more accurate records can be kept.

Now, a cassette tape recorder with a single microphone is used.

Workers transcribing from the recordings for record-keeping and for court cases have sometimes had trouble deciphering the tapes.

The amplification system will consist of five microphones — three on council's desk, one at the staff desk and one on the public's podium — along with a mixer, an amplifier and two speakers.

The decision on a recording system is not complete.

The city hopes to try out a four-channel recording device the county uses in the courtroom to see if that would work best.

TWO SCORE AND FOURTEEN YEARS AGO, HERITAGE BANK WAS CREATED.

The year was 1934. Never was money a more precious commodity. People needed a bank they could trust. That was when we opened our first office at 2959 Biddle Avenue in Wyandotte, with one teller, one window, and total assets of $7,500. Today, Heritage Bank has 48 branch offices statewide, with assets totalling over $975 million. But you can walk into the Biddle Avenue branch today and receive the same friendly, personal service we've given our customers since 1934.

It is the customers who have placed their trust in us that have made Heritage a strong and successful financial institution for 54 years — to all of you, our sincerest thanks.

Mads and Lisa Lillelund

Wiemer-Lillelund wedding

An international flavor pervaded the July 30 wedding of Lisa Wiemer and Mads Lillelund at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix.

The bride, who has been making her home on Long Island, N.Y., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Wiemer of Charlevoix. The bridegroom, who is Danish, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jörn Lillelund of Kuwait.

The double ring rites were read by the Rev. Robert Wilson before approximately 150 guests. Parts of the ceremony were repeated in Danish and German as well as English.

The bride's father gave her in marriage.

For the occasion, she wore a traditional wedding gown fashioned with a bodice of Alençon lace and seed pearls.

Her maid of honor was her sister, Ingrid Noiret, of Chicago, and her bridesmaids were Corinne Ranger of San Jose, Peggy Hosmer of Denver, and Melinda Barnes of San Francisco.

The bridegroom's brother, Jesper Lillelund of Copenhagen, served as best man, and groomsmen were Peter Ulrich and Søren Hoy, also of Copenhagen, and Carl Fiskaaen.

Embroiderers' group forming

A chapter of the Embroiderers' Guild of America Inc. is being organized locally.

Anyone interested in becoming a member may attend an organizational meeting Thursday, Sept. 15, at 7 p.m. in the Petoskey High school library.

For information call Barb Connolly at 526-6219.

Gengle-Ance wedding

Rebecca (Becky) Lee Gengle and James Michael Ance exchanged marriage vows Saturday, Aug. 13, at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey.

Father Andre Schludecker, OFM, officiated at the double ring rites before approximately 250 guests.

For the occasion, the church altar was decorated with arrangements of peach and white gladioli, the communion rail was decorated with peach and white miniature carnations, and the family pews were marked with peach and white satin bows.

The unity candle was decorated with greens, baby's breath, and peach miniature carnations.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Gengle of Petoskey, and the bridegroom, who lives in San Pedro, Calif., is the son of Mrs. Ruth Ance of Charlevoix.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional gown of white satin fashioned with Queen Anne neckline, bodice beaded with sequins, pearls, and European lace, and leg-of-mutton sleeves trimmed with lace cutouts.

A full train fell from the Basque waistline and the hemline was edged with European lace. The back of the gown featured an overlay edged with silk lace. The veil of scalloped nylon illusion was attached to a band of silk flowers and sprays of pearls.

The bride's bouquet was a cascading arrangement of white miniature carnations, Lady Di roses, baby's breath, and ivy.

Mary Lieberman, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor, and Nancy Gilbert, Jan Pahssen, and Teresa Noiret were bridesmaids.

They wore gowns of aqua satin and lace, and each carried a single Lady Di rose accented with baby's breath, greens, and an aqua Dutch gypsophila.

Bethany Lieberman, niece of the bride, as flower girl, wore a white eyelet pinafore over aqua satin and carried a white basket of flowers.

Kyle Lieberman, nephew of the bride, served as ringbearer. Peter Ance assisted his brother as best man, and Bill Bellinger, Jeff Collar and Peter Speak were groomsmen.

Tim and Mark Gengle, brothers of the bride, and Kirk Lieberman, brother-in-law of the bride, were ushers.

Margaret Thomson provided traditional organ music for the ceremony, and Roy Harvey, Don Krusell and Marti Moore offered vocal selections.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at North Central Michigan College. Tim and Donna Gengle were hosts, assisted by Lynn Sweeney and Mary Hickman who cut the wedding cake, and Colleen LaBlance who attended the gift table.

The bridegroom's mother hosted the rehearsal dinner at Stafford's Bay View Inn.

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

The just-completed sidewalk sale days and the crowds in search of bargains prompted me to relate a story that a friend of mine, Wade Jakeway, tells. It concerns an elderly farm couple back in the thirties who drove to the airport one sunny day for their first airplane ride. The frugal gentleman was shocked to learn the ten dollar price and announced that they just weren't going to go.

The pilot was in a generous mood that day and offered them a bargain: "I won't charge you a single cent for the ride," he said, "if you keep from saying a word, regardless of what I do." Overjoyed, the couple accepted.

Up, up into the air they climbed where the pilot immediately sent the plane into a series of sickening loops and terrifying dives earthward. But not a word was heard from the passengers.

By now, in a state of exhaustion himself, the pilot landed the plane, climbed out, and congratulated the folks for their courage: "Why, most people would have screamed bloody murder."

Pulling his body out, the old man replied, "Yes, but there was once that I almost let go and hollered." "When was that?" asked the pilot. The farmer answered, "When the old lady fell out!"

Now there are bargains and then there are bargains. Remember that was just a story but know that this is not just a story.

The greatest bargain you have ever gotten or ever can hope to get is Jesus Christ dying for your sins. None of us should want to pay the price that our sins merit. He wanted to and did so willingly. Too many simply haven't appreciated the full value of that.

Do you value being forgiven? Isn't it great to know that the load has been lifted? Do you value the indwelling presence of God's Spirit? I don't know about you, but there is a lot about life that I am grateful I don't have to face alone. Do you value the tested and proven strength of his word?

It always helps to have the manual when it comes to trying to fix something. The Bible is God's manual for life. Do you value the fellowship of his family? The list could go on and on.

If you value your faith, you know what a bargain it really is.

Football opener set; ticket prices rise

The Rayders will begin their football season this weekend, after all.

A game with Gwinn has been scheduled for 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 2, at the Upper Peninsula school.

The original opening night game, with Mancelona, was cancelled when tax defeats threatened to shut down the Mancy sports program.

Coaches have volunteered to coach without pay but the Mancelona season now will not start until later in September.

The Charlevoix High School

Athletic Department has season tickets for the 88-89 school year on sale at the high school office.

The first home varsity football game will be on Friday, Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m.

Prices have changed this year. Season ticket prices are as follows:

—Students all sports: $20.

—Adult all sports: $40.

—Family all sports: $65.

All of these tickets cover only home scheduled athletic contests. Individual ticket prices at the gate have been raised to $2.50 per person.

Yachting Notes

Well, the CYC summer series closed Wednesday night in 20-knot winds out of the west occasional rain squalls, and a full course sailed in a two-foot chop. It was certainly a pleasant change from the past few weeks of drifters.

Some sloops adapted to the weather change. Mike Carland, in Tireless, brought his "heavy weather crew" by recruiting his wife's third grade class. This mouse has never seen so many little kids on one boat. "And after the race, we had show and tell and snacks," added Carland, who won a red flag finish for his effort.

A nautical expletive was heard from Mi-Joy as she rounded up, accidentally crossed the eye, gybed and then returned to a beam reach completing her 360-degrees in approximately 5 seconds.

Bandit, skippered by the old sage, Hank Cauthra, proved that those little Santanas can sail in heavy air by winning the race and the summer series in the B Fleet. A word of caution, however, Hank to your first mate, Andy, who will answer you in falsetto if he ever again tries to recruit the mouse's foredeckman and son.

In Fleet C, Cabaret took her third consecutive gun and won the fleet in an amazing summer battle with Mi-Joy (whose crew now sails with earmuffs).

The Dow-Mueller combo in Gotcha captured the A Fleet despite a late summer charge by Pygmalion, which fell a point short in second.

The final fleet summaries of the summer series (one throw-out included):

Fleet A: Gotcha 14.5, Pygmalion 15.75, Mint Julip 20.75, Nite Moves 22.75, Sorcer 24.25, Mr. Breeze 35, Tiger 37, Roll Over 39, Traveller 40.

Fleet B: Bandit 9, Blasen 16.75, Tireless 19.25, Cygnus 30, Foxy Lady 30, Mud Duck 42, Kitiwake 44, Nulli-Secundus 45, SanSueShe 53.

Fleet C: Cabaret 9, Mi-Joy 10.25, Bald Eagle 18.75, Canusa 26, Flash 32.

Fleet D: Sandpiper 12.25, Maureen 16.5, Lost Vermonter 19.5, Hot Mustard 27, Apothecary 27, Stalworth 32.75, Cheemaun 48, Sunrise 51.

Fleet E: Sizzle 12, Babe 14.5, Babel 23.75, HS Moisture 24.75, Allons-Y 27, Minors in Possession 29.

Paving grant asked

The city is seeking a $75,000 grant from the state Department of Transportation to pave the roads at the city industrial park. The city has been trying to entice downstate developers to the park through a Detroit area realty firm and use of a professionally made videotape. The park has 10 sites on about 20 acres bounded by Ance, Taylor and Mercer.

Pilot killed in plane crash

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

A plane crashed into Lake Charlevoix Sunday in the midst of the annual Red Sox Regatta yacht race.

Pilot Thomas Pangborn, 39, owner of the Gaslight Gallery, Petoskey, was killed when his Cessna 172 crashed in the middle of the fleet of J-22 sailboats, leading the race at noon, Sunday. Photographer Alden Ho, 23, of Petoskey, was badly injured but escaped the plane before it sank. He remains in "fair" condition at Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals.

According to eye witnesses, the Cessna was flying extremely low to photograph the fleet of small boats. One witness estimated the plane was flying approximately 200 feet above the water. The 8-boat fleet of twenty-two foot long sloops were three-quarters of a mile into their part of the large regatta. They were sailing just off Young

State Park, headed for Charlevoix, when the accident occurred.

Weather conditions were very poor. Winds were strong and gusty and the sky was dark. Apparently the plane stalled as the pilot banked to permit Ho to photograph out an open door. A gust of wind hit the plane forcing it down into the water, according to witnesses on the sail boats.

"At first I thought he was going to hit our boat," Webb Friedly, 16, of Charlevoix, reported. "It was super gusty, we could see a wind line approaching. It just drove him into the water. He went in only 30 yards from Tom Barnes' boat. You could hear it for miles."

Claudia Kenifeck, aboard another J-22, said the fleet of 8 boats turned to help in rescue attempts, but none of the small sloops had motors.

Tom Barnes dove from his boat into the water to assist Ho, who despite serious injuries had managed to climb out of the plane. Barnes helped Ho, but as he turned to find the pilot, the plane sank in some 60 feet of water.

"The plane sank like a rock," said a shaken Bill Babel, who was aboard his own J-22.

Babel turned his boat to the rescue efforts and R.N. Julie Hamilton of his crew, was transferred to a power boat which had pulled Ho from the water with Barnes' assistance.

Rescue efforts were continued by the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department, the United States Coast Guard, the East Jordan Fire Department and the Grand Traverse Sheriff's Department. According to a press release from the agencies, the plane with Pangborn's body was recovered at 8:55 a.m. Monday morning by divers from the East Jordan Fire Department.

A Federal Aviation Agency investigation will follow.

"It was so shocking," said Claudia Kenifeck. "We were so saddened, we were so helpless."

County discusses childcare budget

by PEG OHLE

After the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners dips into the County's reserve fund for over $337,000 to balance the books of Probate Court's Child Care Fund, it should put aside another $500,000 to operate the department next year.

That is what Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell told the Commissioners while presenting his budget.

The budget includes $55,886 which the county would put into the Child Care Fund for Family Foster Care, Institutional Care, and In-Home Care; plus $85,000 which represents one-half of what the State of Michigan charges to take care of State wards from the County.

This total of $130,886 is called the "Anticipated County Expenditures". However, it will take another $300,000 from the County's General Fund to

Ahead-lines

City begins two important projects

Construction work on two of the city's largest street and sidewalk projects of 1988 begins this week. The total cost of the two projects is more than $300,000.

Street work will be done on East Dixon Avenue between Michigan Avenue and Meech Street. An important part of the $250,000 project will be separating the flow from the storm and sanitary sewer systems. Currently, runoff from the two systems flows together, a situation which creates problems particularly during heavy rains.

Other aspects of the project include installing a new sidewalk on the north side of the street and replacing the curb, gutter and pavement along the six blocks encompassed by the work area.

City manager Mike Wiesner said, "There may be some inconvenience in some instances, but we'll try not to disrupt traffic any more than necessary."

Street work is scheduled to be completed by Nov. 15.

The project is of special significance because it is the first major street project funded by four mills levied to pay for the initial five-year plan of the city's infrastructure repair program.

Infrastructure is a term used to refer to a city's framework; things such as the street, sidewalk, sewer and water systems.

Charlevoix, like other Northern Michigan communities, has established a long-term program to renovate and maintain the city's infrastructure.

The sidewalk project will install a sidewalk next to South Bridge Street and M-66 beginning at Garfield Street and concluding at Stover Road. Cost of the project will be $52,000. Funding for the sidewalk will also come from the four mill infrastructure levy.

Currently, there is no sidewalk along that stretch of the city's main street, but there has been enough foot traffic to wear a path down where the sidewalk will be.

The sidewalk will allow safer and more convenient pedestrian access to the Captain's Corner Mall, MacDonalds, Burger King and several other businesses at the south end of town. It is also in close proximity to the high school and football field and will improve safety conditions for students walking to and from school and athletic events.

Wiesner said that without the sidewalk, a dangerous situation exists, particularly in the winter, when pedestrians have to walk next to the busy four-lane road.

"This will make it a more pleasant and safe walk," he noted.

The contractor for the sidewalk work is South Boardman Construction of Traverse City. The work is projected to be completed by Oct. 1.

Solid waste committee plan nears completion

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Solid Waste Management Plan, written by a committee of local residents over the last year and a half, is ready for adoption by the committee at its last scheduled meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the County Building Annex.

County Planner Larry Sullivan, who has been coordinating the work of the committee, explained that a few minor changes may be made during the meeting, but he hopes the plan can be adopted without too many revisions.

One question that will probably ignite some discussion is whether or not owners of the Charlevoix County Landfill in Eveline Township should be permitted to dig waste disposal basins deeper and pile waste higher.

The plan's suggested solid waste disposal system is divided into two sections — short term (five years) and long term (10 years). Each section discusses at length suggestions for resource conservation and reduction. Suggestions include waste separation; material recovery; markets; energy recovery; recycling; volume reduction; and composting.

The portion of the plan that covers sanitary landfills, however, is the one that will interest most people initially.

The Charlevoix County Landfill is designated to be the site where solid waste generated in Charlevoix County will be disposed of for the next five years. However a provision in the plan reads that "should it become necessary to dispose of the waste at some other location, due to the closure of this landfill, for whatever reason, the waste which is generated in Charlevoix County shall be disposed of at a landfill located in Manistee County."

In return, Manistee County waste would be disposed of in the Charlevoix County Landfill if the Manistee County Landfill should close.

The Charlevoix County Solid Waste Plan also provides for the disposal in the Charlevoix County Landfill of solid waste generated in Emmet County, with provisions that "Charlevoix County have access to the Emmet County Transfer Station, and any future landfills that may be located in Emmet County that are open to the general public of Emmet County."

The plan also leaves open the possibility of accepting some waste into the Charlevoix County Landfill from other counties: "If the quantity of waste shipped from Emmet County to Charlevoix County decreases by a volume equal to or exceeding 25 percent or greater than the volume shipped the previous year, waste may be imported from Antrim or Cheboygan Counties in an amount not to exceed the overall reduction in waste being shipped from Emmet County."

In addition, the plan allows for Charlevoix County to develop and license up to two Type II (general household, commercial, and industrial wastes) landfills either by itself or in conjunction with other counties — one on the mainland and the other on Beaver Island.

Two small landfills currently being used in the county are also recognized and their continued use permitted. One is a 40-acre site in Wilson Township, used only for the disposal of incinerator ash, building demolition wastes and other similar waste materials. The second is a Type III (cement blocks, grass clippings, untreated and unpainted wood, trees, stumps, brush, etc.) landfill located in South Arm Township, now used for the disposal of foundry sands generated by the East Jordan Iron Works.

Two other Type III landfills are permitted under the plan—one on Beaver Island and one within six miles of Advance.

The plan also calls for four transfer stations which could be used for transferring waste to other places for treatment or disposal.

To assist with future planning, the committee has projected the number of pounds of solid waste that will be generated in Charlevoix County daily between now and the year 2010, population ranges between now and then, highway and bridge conditions for handling solid waste trucks, and other relevant figures.

Sidewalk controversy a split indecision

Although there's been a great deal of discussion concerning merchandise, tables and signs on sidewalks, at this time there doesn't appear to be any consensus on how best to resolve the issue.

The city council will ultimately decide the issue. The council has indicated that prior to making a decision, they would like some input from local business people affected by the issue.

Business people have held meetings, but opinions have been divided and there has been no consensus and hence no recommendation to the council.

Eleven businesses were represented at a July 12 meeting to discuss items on sidewalks. A straw vote was taken and came out 6 to 5 in favor of banning business items from sidewalks.

Following that meeting, a committee of merchants was assigned to gather additional information and review the matter. A meeting of that committee scheduled for last week was postponed until ..... this week.

Meanwhile, at an Aug. 25 meeting, the chamber of commerce board of directors decided the chamber should not make a recommendation one way or another, but should only serve as a forum for discussion on the issue.

"We're not a law enforcement agency. We are not the people who make the laws," chamber of commerce executive director Jacquie Merta said during an interview with the Courier last week.

She noted that the issue has been discussed for years and opinions have always been split. She also said that at this time the chamber hasn't surveyed all of its members to find out how they all feel.

City zoning administrator Sue

Erber has worked with the merchants committee and gathered information about how other towns handle items on sidewalks. (See related story.)

Erber said she thinks merchants are going to have to make a decision on what they want. She said she feels it would be better, not only downtown, but throughout the city, if there was some type of ordinance governing merchandise, signs, tables etc. on sidewalks.

Erber noted that the matter could come before the council later this month.

The council will be deciding the matter either through action by ordinance or action through inaction. Action by ordinance would require adopting an ordinance addressing items on sidewalks. Inaction would continue to allow items on sidewalks.

How other towns handle items on sidewalks

Twelve other Michigan communities vary in the way they address the issue of business items on sidewalks.

City zoning administrator Sue Erber gathered information from other communities in the hopes that it might provide some insight to Charlevoix businessmen and elected officials attempting to address the matter.

What Erber found is that policies vary from community to community.

Harbor Springs, St. Joseph and Sagatuck have ordinances prohibiting business items on sidewalks.

Bozette City, Mackinaw City, Mackinaw Island and Spring Lake haven't had a problem with items on sidewalks and also have no ordinance forbidding them.

Cheboygan, Grand Haven, Petoskey and South Haven have ordinances allowing only certain items on sidewalks.

Cheboygan allows tables, chairs and benches in front of ice cream stores with no set allowable distance from the building.

In Grand Haven, one merchant has been allowed by the council to place tables and chairs out into the right of way.

Benches for public use and plant containers can be placed in front of Petoskey businesses, but the items may not extend more than 30 inches into the right of way.

South Haven allows any items to extend 3 feet into the right of way, provided the sidewalk at that point is a minimum of 10 feet wide.

Childcare continued...

cover: Probate Court salaries and benefits (including that of the In-Home Care Worker); other office expenses; capital outlay; professional contract services such as counseling; transcripts; witness fees; court-appointed attorneys; travel for employees; and transportation of Court Wards.

All of this adds up to $430,886, from which is deducted $10,000 in anticipated Probate and Victim's Rights revenues, for an anticipated cost to the County of $420,886.

As for the remainder of the $500,000, Campbell explains, "We never know what's going to walk in our door. We need the extra $80,000 to cover possible situations. If a family of five kids had to be put in institutional care, it would cost thousands of dollars."

Campbell also responded to criticism from some County Board members and others about the high cost of counseling and similar services.

"If we want to keep kids out of foster care, we have to provide alternatives," he said.

Edgewater transfer reconsidered

The city council reversed an earlier decision Tuesday night, voting to allow a liquor license transfer at the Edgewater Cafe.

At an Aug. 15 meeting, the council denied a liquor license transfer from the Edgewater Cafe to Rudolf Enterprises. The council indicated the denial was because the Edgewater Inn, which the cafe is part of, does not meet city zoning parking requirements.

Tuesday evening, Edgewater Inn owner Jon Hisey and attorney David Campbell asked the council to reconsider.

Campbell said Edgewater never received notice the matter was going to be discussed at the Aug. 15 meeting.

Regarding parking, Campbell said construction is not complete and although the Inn currently lacks six or seven spaces called for in the zoning ordinance, there are plans to add the spaces.

City manager Mike Wiesner has reviewed Edgewater's plans and said he feels they can meet parking space requirements.

City attorney Jeff VanTreese advised that the city has means, other than denial of the liquor license transfer, to use in making sure Edgewater builds the parking spaces.

Council approved the license transfer with Shirley Roloff, Bill Haggard and Bill Bellows voting in favor, Butch Russell and Norm Probert opposed and Earl Muma abstaining.

Tomato worms: the ugly truth

Ernie the tomato worm was familiar with all the terrible ways gardeners kill tomato worms. Yet that was not why he arrived more than a month late to his assigned garden.

He had a tough trip from the convention. Traffic was bad. He'd gotten lost. One day a hungry bird tried to eat him and he had to hide. It had just been a bad trip all around. By the time Ernie reached the garden, it was the first week of September.

Scientists don't completely understand why, but every year, early in the summer, all the tomato worms of the world get together for a big convention. This year's convention took place in Covington, Kentucky.

All matters important to tomato worms are discussed at the convention: prospects for this year's crop; the taste of red tomato plant leaves as opposed to yellow tomato plant leaves; any new pesticides on the market.

The big event of the tomato worm convention, the moment each and every tomato worm awaits with breathless anticipation, is when the king tomato worm assigns gardens.

Ignore anything you might have heard about moths and eggs and larval stages. Tomato worms are too ugly to be involved with any process so natural and democratic. Tomato worms are assigned to gardens throughout the world by an evil dictator.

The earth is good. Properly tilled and tended, it brings four fragile infant tomato plants. They are but babes in a world that can be so harsh. Looking at a tiny, young tomato plant it's almost impossible to believe that in just a few short months, it will offer up bright red fruits which are the foundation of spaghetti sauce, chili and pizza sauce to carry us through the long and bitter winter.

Enter evil; creeping, green, camouflaged evil on a thousand clinging legs. Shaped like a balloon, about four to six inches long, this evil isn't filled with air, but rather with green goo, the partially digested remains of what was once a fine, living tomato plant.

Just as the tomato plants are asserting themselves and becoming something significant a gardener will see the tell-tale signs of tomato worms. Missing leaves and little black droppings are dead give aways.

Gardeners respond in different ways. Some courageous gardeners scout out tomato worms and crush them barehanded. Other gardeners arm themselves, first using sticks to knock the tomato worms to the ground, then using stones to spatter their guts. Still other gardeners go straight to chemical warfare.

But Ernie was late in arriving at his assigned garden. The luster of tomato plants beginning to flourish had worn away for LuLu Belle Stanner, gardener extraordinaire.

Before leaving the convention, Ernie had talked to Oliver, one of the tomato worms assigned to LuLu Belle's garden last summer.

"LuLu's a tough one," Oliver told Ernie. "Last year in mid summer, she went on daily patrols. Many a tomato worm died trying to gobble up LuLu's little tomato plants."

With Ernie's late arrival, most of the tomatoes were already ripe. There seemed to be a million ripe tomatoes. It was like Ernie had entered a sea of tomato plants.

Ernie had just nicely gotten started eating his first tomato plant when he heard footsteps. It was LuLu Belle on patrol. Expecting the worst, Ernie froze and tried to look like a tomato plant vine.

But LuLu Belle's sharp eyes quickly spotted him. Instinctively, LuLu Belle scouted around for a stick. As she looked around, LuLu Belle suddenly saw her tomato plants in a new light. Row after row, plant after plant, bushel after bushel of ripe tomatoes. She thought of all the hours ahead of her canning in a hot kitchen.

LuLu Belle picked up a stick, but instead of poking Ernie with it, she shook it at him.

"You eat well little fellow, and when you finish with that plant, don't hesitate to move on to the next."

Old-Detroit didn't shine

Sometimes employees in various trades rise to such lofty levels of responsibility that they no longer are paid to do what they do best.

We probably all have known excellent teachers who, in their search for bigger paychecks, have scratched and clawed their way into the ranks of school administration, even though administration is not their long suit.

So instead of having a fine teacher in the classroom we have a so-so administrator in the front office.

In business, such promotions often are made on the basis of seniority. Old Joe has been around a long time and knows the ropes, so Old Joe deserves a place in management — even though he is most effective in production.

Sometimes we forget that Old Joe was one helluva tool and die maker before he took an office job.

I think this has happened to a very fine Detroit Free Press reporter by the name of Neal Shine, senior managing editor and columnist.

I don't know what kind of a managing editor Shine is, but I do know that as a columnist his stock in trade is scanty at best — nostalgia about the Detroit he remembers from his boyhood. The columns are universally warm and fuzzy, fairly oozing with Mom's apple pie, golden school days, comfortable old middle-class neighborhoods, warm-hearted old friends, and the quaint folkways of yesterday — all seen through the eyes of a 12-year-old.

The truth is that in the old days Detroit was a rotten place to live if you took a good look around you.

Racial intolerance was rampant. Neighborhoods were segregated. Schools were segregated. Stores, restaurants and theaters were segregated. We were bigoted beyond belief and didn't even know it.

Furthermore, the city was dirty. Can you imagine waking up every morning of your life from September through April with the taste of coal dust in your mouth? If you lived in Detroit in the 1930s, the recollection will be very strong.

Or can you imagine living in a city of more than a million people which dumped raw sewage into its only waterway — the Detroit River?

Or can you imagine a city with so much horse manure in the streets that houseflies were not only a nuisance but a health hazard. I remember one time the flies became so bad that the city health department captured several of them, daubed them with gold paint and let them go. Anyone who killed a gold-daubed fly was entitled to a $5 bounty.

The idea was to get everyone to kill flies. But the scheme worked only until someone found out how easy it is to daub a dead fly with gold paint.

Memory, however, is tricky. It tends to dwell on the pleasant experiences, while ignoring those that are not so pleasant. This is why Neal Shine continues to serve us — week after week — rose-tinted pictures of Old Detroit that are inaccurate in that they fail to tell the whole story.

Recently, however, Shine made a pilgrimage back to Ireland, the birthplace of his parents, and slipped into his old role as a news reporter in detailing in human terms the "Troubles" that continue to draw blood in Northern Ireland.

His report, which appeared in the Detroit Free Press Sunday, Sept. 4, was nothing short of a masterpiece. The package consisted of a main story and two sidebars, all accompanied by dramatic photos by Free Press photographer David Turnley.

I have read about Northern Ireland's "Troubles" most of my adult life, but it wasn't until I read — and re-read — Shine's articles that I experienced the frustration that Protestants and Catholics share over their senseless warfare.

And I wonder why the Free Press is coddling Shine with titles and positions, when he should be back on a beat covering present-day Detroit's own "Troubles."

If I were his boss, I'd double his salary and kick him downstairs.

Letters to the editor:

Edith defended

Editor: —
Oh come on now... I think that Michelle P. Batterbee has a bit too much envy in her to slight Edith Gilbert for a very interesting account of life aboard the state of the very wealthy.

I was very interested to read of the golings-on and trappings of a yacht that I shall never own; of a life that I shall never lead. The same interest I have in visiting the largest private home ever built in this country (Biltmore House, Asheville, N.C.). Here in St. Louis, the August A. Busch Jr. family lives in baronial splendor in a turreted castle amid the sprawling acreage of his Grant's Farm estate. I am not envious. I rejoice for those that can live like kings, and enjoy all the worldly goods that they want; and it is writers like Edith Gilbert that make an inaccessible way of life available to us all.

Defended again

Regarding Michelle Batterbee's letter of Aug. 31, 1968.

Speak for yourself Michelle, I happen to love reading Edith's column. Just because we can't afford all the extravagant things in life is no reason why we can't read about them and look at them. I don't think Edith is trying to flaunt things at us, I think she is just sharing unusual things with us.

I think her column is very entertaining. Keep it up Edith.

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

"Aboy, Mrs. Gilbert," writes a friendly voice from the past.

Captain C.S. Webster, better known as Bud, shares a trip down memory lane during the '50s. Those were happy days when he skipped the Henri Meis boat, the HA-HE III, and helped Captain Loren Johnson take our "delightful 54" Burger" down to Detroit in the fall.

"I have not been in Charlevoix since 1958," writes Bud, "but my reason to write now is to express a deep appreciation of your 'Edith' column in the Courier." He says it helps "Those of us who are so far away and still feel a sense of 'home' about Charlevoix to stay well informed. And shocked. And unbelieving."

"In addition to the Courier, I also get a delightful and most thorough update in the winter season in Palm Beach, when I spend an afternoon with Frank Rothschild (Little Adolph), who has an oceanfront condo only about 20 minutes worth from where I keep my vessel at the Delray Beach Yacht Club. Yes, I still drive yachts."

"Thanks again for your column. You see? Many of us read.

And a good bunch remember." A graduate of Charlevoix High School, class of '43, Captain Webster now lives with his wife Sue in Middleburg Florida.

And from another corner of the world — Monaco — comes a gorgeous sunset picture postcard from a former summer resident, Joanne Cummings. She writes, "I know the sunset on this card, which I see every night, can't hold a candle to those in Charlevoix, but it will have to do until the real thing comes along."

Isn't it interesting how this little place gets under ones' skin?

In line with the current political jockeying, I propose that those of us who are lucky enough to enjoy living here, or returning here during the summer year after year, should be required to take a pledge of allegiance to preserve to the best of our ability, the pines and birches, the trout streams and the lakes, the beaches and the wooded trails, the wetlands and the wild flowers, the green grass in the parks and public views of gorgeous sunsets. Now that's a platform worth running on!

Mayors convene in Charlevoix

Four mayors and one councilman from five area cities met in Charlevoix this past Friday evening to discuss common concerns and methods of handling them.

Charlevoix mayor Ralph McRae was joined by Petoskey mayor Joe Kilborn, Harbor Springs mayor John Kenyon III, East Jordan mayor Russ Peck and Boyne City councilman Bill Grimm.

Dinner was provided for the city officials by the Weather-vane Restaurant. The Star of Charlevoix presented each of the visiting officials with two complimentary tickets.

Following dinner and a brief meeting, the officials took a tour of Charlevoix in a van provided Village Car Care, a local Chrysler dealer.

McRae said that several months ago, he and former East Jo-dan mayor Pat Sweet discussed holding a meeting of officials from area communities. McRae later ran the idea past Kilborn, who was also interested.

The dinner and meeting were informal and intended to just provide an opportunity to sit down and talk and find out what each community is doing.

"We want to get people together and if we have common problems in the north, we can approach our legislators with a little more clout," McRae explained.

The officials found they had no shortage of things to talk about. McRae said discussions of the cities each official represented easily filled the approximately two and a-half hours the officials were together.

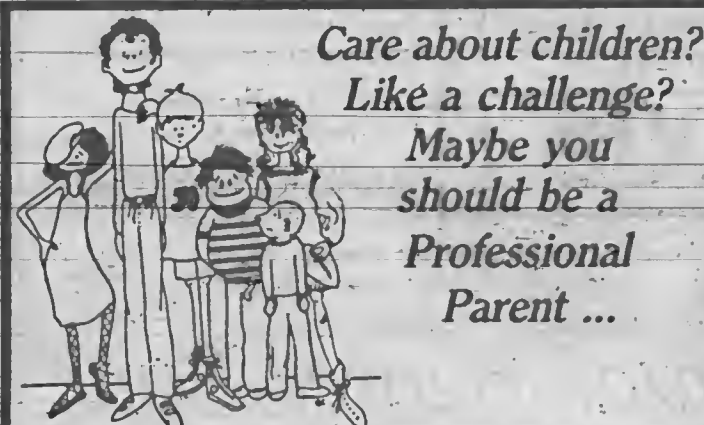

"I was very pleased with it," McRae said of the meeting.

KCB auction benefits Operation Petunia

Despite cold and dreary weather Monday evening, several people attended the annual Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) auction at the Lepman house on Loeb Farm.

KCB officials were still tallying up receipts at press time, but did have figures on the highest amount bid for items. Proceeds from the annual fund raising event benefit Operation Petunia and other KCB projects.

A one-week stay at a private home in Bermuda sold for $3,900 and brought in the most revenue of any single item. The trip was purchased by Tom Duke and Bill Pace.

A second big-ticket item was a silver fox fur which brought $750.

Janet and Reed Friedinger held the winning ticket drawn for a choice of a new pick-up truck or $3,000. They chose the money. KCB officials said they are very pleased with the auction and noted that this year's fundraiser brought in even more money than last years.

CHURCH

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Have you ever noticed something about getting up in the morning? When that alarm clock goes off, or your wake up call comes, or when the sun sneaks through a crack in the curtains and catches you in the eye, you know it's time to get out of bed. You know you have to get out of bed. But all of a sudden, have you ever noticed just how good that bed feels?

I'll grant you that not everyone may feel that way, but enough people do that it is a big reason why they don't make it to church on Sunday. Of course, there are many other reasons too. They don't believe in God. They don't believe in an organized church. They don't like the people at such and such a church. There are all kinds of reasons. I imagine you could think of a few too.

What I want you to think about for a few moments is why you go. Remember that we are commissioned to bring others to the family of God. If you can't give a decent spiritual answer to that question, then the church will never even have a hope of growing much less receiving all the blessings and love that God has promised.

I go to church to worship. Coming to worship should be something that everyone looks forward to and enjoys. There should be a sense of anticipation about the refreshment and revival God brings to our lives through the corporate experience of praising and thanking God.

Attitude has a lot to do with how worship goes. Come with the wrong frame of mind and chances are you'll have wasted your time and God's. But come prepared to give your all to God and know that the life-changing power of His Holy Spirit can take even the hardest, darkest emotion or problem you can imagine, bathe it in His love, and have you leaving with an unmistakable difference on your face and in your heart. That is worship and that's just one reason why I go to church.

I go to church to vote. We often speak of getting what you pay for. In many ways that applies to the life of the church. You get out of it as much or as little as you put into it. Think about that.

Part of coming to church is encouraging others and being encouraged by them. Your actions are your vote. A Sunday School teacher has a lot easier time teaching a class that studies the lesson than one that doesn't. Singing that is shared, thrills the soul much more than just a few scattered voices. The Bible doesn't say a thing about being able to carry a tune. It says "make a joyful noise." Your response is your vote.

I could give you a lot more reasons on why you should go to church than space permits. The most important reason of all is the support you'll find in following Jesus and living out your faith. If you haven't gone to church in a long while, this would be a great Sunday to start going again. There isn't a single pastor in Charlevoix that wouldn't extend to you and your family the warmest of welcomes.

School open to parents too

On the first day of school, Charlevoix Middle School students received a button encouraging them to take pride in themselves and their school.

Middle school principal Dennis Van Guilder says the buttons are part of an effort by middle school administrators, staff and students to give the middle school a stronger identity. A handout students received with the button talked about Rayder pride.

Students were told that "Rayder pride is your attitude toward your school, your classmates and yourself."

The handout advised middle school students to "do your very best in each and every class; study, complete your homework regularly, listen and contribute, come to class on time and be prepared... Steve, set goals, be the best that you can be."

Parents are invited to come and see the middle school between 6:30 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. Sept. 12. The school will host a mini session allowing parents to go through a shortened version of their son or daughter's class schedule and meet all of the teachers.

The elementary school will host parent back to school nights Sept. 13 and 20. Parents of kindergartners are scheduled for 7 to 8 p.m., Sept. 13. Parents of first graders and scheduled for 6 to 7 p.m. Sept. 13.

Parents of second and third graders are scheduled for 7 to 7:30 p.m. Sept. 20. Parents of fourth and fifth graders are scheduled for 6:30 to 7 p.m. Sept. 20.

Senior citizens beware of fraud

Senior citizens who are contacted by strangers selling stocks and bonds or other securities should contact the local office of the Commission on Aging before doing business.

The Corporation Securities Bureau of the State Department of Commerce, in conjunction with the Office of Services to the Aging, has set up a network of contact points, including the Commission on Aging, for seniors seeking information to evaluate investment offerings.

The program was developed because seniors are disproportionately victimized by investment fraud. The program is intended to provide seniors with tools to reduce the incidence of fraud and alert the Bureau to the existence of questionable offerings.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is located in Boyne City, phone 582-7301. Art Saworski is the contact person.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Clouse of Petoskey are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Leslie J. Clouse, to Fred W. Mielke. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mielke of Norwood.

The intended bride graduated from Petoskey High School in 1978 and is employed by Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey.

Her fiancé graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1983 and from Michigan State University in 1987 with a degree in criminal justice. He is presently employed by Michigan Officeways in Charlevoix.

The wedding is planned for Dec. 17 at the United Methodist Church in Petoskey.

SPORTS

Football team comes up just shy in opener

A last gasp drive fizzled inside the ten-yard line and the Charlevoix football team came away on the short end of a 19-14 score in the team's season opener against Gwinn.

The visiting Rayders led for most of the game against the Upper Peninsula team.

"We just couldn't get that last score, or stop them from the last score," Rayder coach Roger Gowell remarked after the game.

Gwinn opened the scoring early in the first quarter on a 4-yard run, but missed the extra point.

Charlevoix promptly answered that score with a touchdown of their own.

Quarterback Greg Lewis capped Charlevoix's first scoring drive of the season with a 1-yard run. Charlevoix converted the extra point and led 7-6 at the end of the first quarter.

In the second quarter, Charlevoix's Jason Corwin provided one of the game's most exciting plays as he intercepted a Gwinn pass and returned it 75 yards for a touchdown. Following the extra point, the Rayders led 14-7.

Just before the half ended, Gwinn scored a second touchdown and kicked the extra point. Charlevoix took a 14-13 lead to the locker room and strong defense allowed that lead to hold up through much of the second half.

However, with 2:27 left in the game, disaster struck in the form of a 42-yard touchdown run by a Gwinn back. The extra point attempt failed.

With just over two minutes left, Charlevoix's offense had time for one last shot. They reached Gwinn's 7 yard line on a drive highlighted by a 60-yard pass from Lewis to Shawn Putman.

The drive died and the game was decided when Gwinn intercepted a pass with less than a minute left.

Gowell said the game could have gone either way. He noted that Gwinn was a big and strong team. Charlevoix originally was scheduled to open the season against Mancelona, but Mancelona's athletic program was on-again, off-again due to millage problems and Charlevoix picked up class B Gwinn as a replacement game.

Of his team's season-opening effort, Gowell said, "Defensively, we were sound, but we had trouble stopping their fullback up the middle. The kids never quit. They gave a lot of effort on defense."

"Offensively, we were not able to move the ball on the ground, but did move it fairly well through the air at times."

Charlevoix's offense picked up only 50 yards rushing. Lewis completed six of 11 passes for 145 yards.

Defensively, Matt Cunningham had nine tackles and five assists, Pat Elliot nine tackles and three assists, Jason Whitley and Jason Corwin each had four tackles and four assists while Dave Miller recovered a fumble.

This Friday evening, Charlevoix travels to East Jordan.

Softball team among top ten in nation

Charlevoix Foot Clinic finished in the top ten among 61 teams competing in the Class C National Finals fastpitch softball tournament in Kingman, Arizona this past weekend.

The Charlevoix team played some of the finest softball teams from across the country and posted a 4-2 record.

Charlevoix opened the tournament Saturday morning with an 8-4 win over Salt Lake City, Utah. Jim Potter was the winning pitcher.

Later Saturday, Charlevoix beat a team from Minnesota by a 2-0 score. Dennis Bess was the winning pitcher.

Sunday morning, Charlevoix was handed their first defeat. They were defeated by a team from Pennsylvania 5-2.

Sunday afternoon, in the team's most exciting game of the tournament, Charlevoix beat the Adobe Masters of New Mexico 4-3 on a last inning home run by Scott Kelly.

The team's fifth game had something of an international flavor. Charlevoix played an air force team stationed at Osan Air Force base in Korea.

Charlevoix was eliminated from the tournament Monday morning. Although it was not the same team from Pennsylvania that handed them their first loss, another team from Pennsylvania defeated Charlevoix by a score of 2-0.

Although the team was not scheduled to arrive back in Charlevoix until late Tuesday night, team manager Roger Crain made daily calls home to his wife Pam to let the community know how the team was progressing.

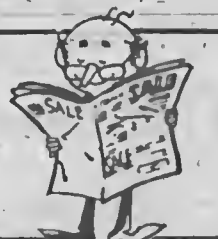

Pam said the team was pleased to finish in the top ten, but felt that if things had gone a little differently against the first Pennsylvania team, they might have won that game and placed even higher.

Crop walk is Sept. 17

The Church World Service
CROP Walk is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 17. Walkers will start from Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan completing their walk at the Ironcon Congregational Church. Some 106
Community walks took place in Michigan last year raising $1,305,065. This is the second successive year the Michigan region has led the nation in income for Church World Service.

The Michigan program was initiated in 1947 by farmers collecting corn and beans to be shipped to European refugees and displaced persons. In the 40-year history of Michigan's CWS-CROP walk, volunteers have collected $11.7 million in farm commodities, clothing, blankets and cash.

In 1987, community hunger agencies in Michigan received over $213,000 in funds from the CROP walk. Agencies receiving major designated funds include food banks, the Salvation Army, community gardens, FISH, community food depots of St.

Vincent de Paul, Meals on Wheels, as well as church food pantries serving the public. The South Africa region was the focal point of Michigan's fund raising and educational effort in 1987. A shipment of 75,000 pounds of Michigan-grown red cranberry beans was shipped from the rural community of Pigeon to Mozambique. Church
World Service has also shipped 200,000 blankets, 180,000 pounds of corn as well as seeds and tools for agricultural programs among displaced persons in Southern Africa.

People in Charlevoix, Boyne
City and East Jordan are invited to become part of this effort to alleviate world hunger by joining the CROP Walk on Sept. 17.
Walkers and sponsors are needed for this fund raising event.
Contact your church or call 547-9515 and transform your steps into food and be a part of the CROP Walk.

Twenty-five percent of the money raised will be returned to the community. Last year over $1,000 was divided among Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City for food pantries.

Home tour benefits hospital

A gift of $4,700 representing the proceeds from the Beta Sigma Phi's annual Charlevoix Home Tour was presented to the Charlevoix Area Hospital last week.

The contribution will be applied toward the various surgical equipment the hospital is currently purchasing in order to begin eye surgery. Two ophthalmologists will be joining the hospital this month making cataract and artificial lens implant surgery available to patients of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"We are indeed grateful to Beta Sigma Phi and to all those who attended for making this a most successful home tour," Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital administrator said. "We are aware of the extraordinary effort it takes to plan and organize an event of this magnitude, and we very much appreciate being the beneficiary of Beta Sigma Phi's generosity."

Barb Evanish, 1988 Home Tour Chairman of the Kappa Sigma Chapter, said, "We are so glad to see the money being used for a service which will benefit many residents of the area." Over 900 attended this year's event.

Special instruments are required for microscopic eye surgery. They are particularly delicate and each set of forceps, for example, can cost up to $40 each. Total equipment costs for eye surgery will be approximately $30,000.

A brochure past

The idea of promoting the Charlevoix area as a vacation spot is not new, but the sales pitch has changed considerably since the 1959 Chamber of Commerce brochure which recently found its way to the Courier office.

The calendar of events for 1959 was as follows:

Spring Festival—May (Maple Syrup, Perch Run, Wild Flowers).

Turnaround Point for the Ray Darrow Storm Tri-Sail Races—Memorial Day Weekend.

Sailboat Race following Mackinac Race—July.

Venetian Festival—July.

Charlevoix Waterfront Fair—August (For artists, craftsmen, and authors).

Charlevoix Camp Days—August.

Charlevoix Barbershop Jamboree—September.

Fall Perch Run—October.

Complete Winter Sports Program.

The brochure says of the city, "Citizens of Charlevoix take pride in the clean unfettered streets, the well cared for homes and manicured parks. They point with pride at the new Municipal and County Buildings, the up-to-the-minute hospital staffed by the best of doctors. They look forward to the completion of the new High School which will be completed within the next two years. All put together to make Charlevoix a better place to live, a city of which we all can be proud."

As for things to do in Charlevoix, the brochure says, "Yachtsmen love it for the peaceful haven it provides regardless of the weather... Fishermen love it for the fighting bass and the delicious perch each spring and fall, and for the annual smelt run... Sportsmen love it for the swimming in crystal clear waters, the boating in protected harbors and wide open space... Skiers of all ages find a selection of eight slopes within a few minutes' ride."

Sidewalk committee appointed

A committee of four merchants and two councilmen have been directed to research the matter of business items on sidewalks and suggest an ordinance by Dec. 1.

At Monday evening's council meeting, mayor Ralph McRae appointed councilmen Bill Haggard and Alvin "Butch" Russell to serve on the committee. The merchants will be selected by the chamber of commerce in the next few days.

Clothing Company owner Jim Mabee, who supports keeping merchandise off sidewalks, said there are people in favor of having things on sidewalks and they too should be heard before any ordinance is adopted.

Mabee and Bob Hoffman from Wildwood Innovations spoke to the council and encouraged council members to move toward adopting some type of ordinance prior to next summer.

"I would like to go through whatever process we can go through and by next summer have this thing under control," Hoffman said.

Council members agreed that something needs to be done. "It's beginning to be junky looking," council woman Shirley Roloff said of increasing amounts of business items on sidewalks.

Russell concurred that there have been times when the amount of merchandise and people made it difficult to walk on the sidewalk.

"We know we need a new ordinance," McRae said.

Councilman Earl Muma suggested that an ordinance be proposed, so that everyone will know what the city is proposing to do, and a public hearing be held so people from all sides get a chance to voice their opinions.

A meeting last Wednesday on the issue of business items on sidewalks indicated the matter really boils down to questions of taste, fairness and what the people of Charlevoix want the town to look like.

What is and isn't in good taste? What's fair and what's not? What image should Charlevoix project?

Those are all questions with answers subject to opinion and a number of differing opinions were expressed by merchants and city officials attending the Sept. 7 meeting.

Mike Barnard, owner of the Market Mall, was one of a minority of businessmen at the meeting who took a more favorable view of items on sidewalks. He said busy sidewalks make Charlevoix look "healthy and vivacious."

"What I'm opposed to is stronger and stronger government control over how people run daily business," Barnard said.

Lou Mettler, owner of Mettlers, was among those favoring more control over what is placed on sidewalks.

"Merchandise hanging in trees doesn't look healthy," Mettler contended.

Although Barnard and Mettler weren't in complete agreement, they also weren't at completely opposite ends of the spectrum.

Mettler isn't against tables and chairs out on the sidewalk. "I think that can look quaint if it's handled right," he said.

Betty Bohn has been a fixture for many years as a volleyball player at Depot Beach.

The volleyball lady

by PEG OHLE

For years she has been known as the "Volleyball Lady" to those who frequent Depot Beach in the summertime.

A former member of Volleyball Leagues in Detroit, Grayling and Roscommon, as well as a game referee, Betty Bohn sets up her net in an area where her husband, Martin, has outlined boundaries and invites all comers to join her in a game.

It all started when she couldn't find players near her home in Hayes Township. Betty simply went where the people are. That was about 25 years ago, and when a Charlevoix High School class recently held its 20th re-union picnic at Depot Beach, many members greeted her saying, "I played with you when I was a kid."

So enthusiastic about the game is this 67-year-old grandmother that she says she wishes she had an iridescent volleyball so she could play in the dark. Instead, she has to limit her playtime to daylight hours.

The possibility of watching volleyball in the Olympics excites Betty, who says she will probably be glued to her television set during the games.

At her urging, the City of Charlevoix has set up volleyball nets at both Depot and Ferry beaches, and now she is trying to figure out where one might be placed on Lake Michigan Beach.

Betty and Martin are only summer residents in Charlevoix, from June until late September. Their permanent home is in Grayling, where they will soon be returning, to await next year's games on the beach. In the meantime, Betty invites all interested volleyball players to join her in an evening or weekend game. Phone her at 547-6387 to be sure a game is "on."

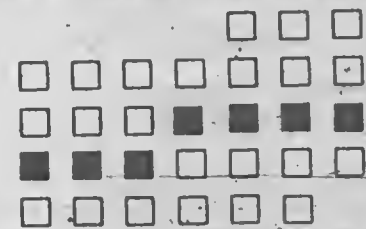

Charlevoix volleyball players' loss is Grayling senior citizens' gain. Betty leads their singing group, "The Grayling Songbirds", and is a member of

Ahead-lines

What a great time of year

We're going to the woods. Autumn is upon us.

Be it to hunt, cut wood or to enjoy nature's annual show of colors, this is the time of year when many of us are drawn to the wilderness.

Small game season opens tomorrow. Archery deer season is just a little over two weeks away. Late September and early October are prime time for fall colors.

Charlevoix takes a back seat to nobody in fall recreational opportunities and beauty. Already area hunters have been making preparations.

In some sports, preseason preparations are dreaded. Hunting preparation is half the fun. Already hunters have been out checking over the woods, learning where the game is, preparing stands and just generally enjoying the wilderness and getting geared up for opening day.

In the next few weeks, the green leaves of summer will change to the crimson, gold and orange of autumn.

The next few weeks will offer a prime time to load the family in the car for an afternoon or early evening drive. And the evening drives will have to be early. Darkness comes earlier and earlier this time of year. Oh well, no season is absolutely perfect.

Charlevoix's autumn beauty has been recognized by others in the state. The Keep Michigan Beautiful group has chosen to hold their annual meeting here Oct. 6 and 7. During that meeting, Hoffman Park, one of the latest additions to the community's scenic beauty will be officially dedicated.

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau is making a special appeal this year to businesses and homeowners with flower displays. The bureau is asking people to continue watering and tending the displays through September and into October.

In past years, some flower displays have been allowed to fade after Labor Day. With the Keep Michigan Beautiful group coming in early October, the convention and visitors bureau wants to keep the town looking spiffy and colorful, at least until then. Not that the flower displays will outdo the colors of nature, but with care and nurturing they compliment it nicely.

The cold, harsh winter is destined to come, but not before autumn provides Charlevoix with a colorful and entertaining finale to summer.

Street super retires

Following an argument with city manager Mike Wiesner, city street superintendent Leonard Dubey has retired.

At the Sept. 6 council meeting, councilmen Earl Muma and Butch Russell, and to a more moderate degree, Norm Probert were critical of Wiesner for his actions in a dispute with Dubey which took place Aug. 29 at the street department garage.

At that time, a test of equipment had been scheduled. There was a misunderstanding about a particular piece of equipment being brought to the test and Wiesner and Dubey began arguing about it.

Wiesner now concedes he was the one who misunderstood what equipment was supposed to be at the test. He has apologized to Dubey and written a letter of explanation to the members of the council.

Following the argument, Dubey chose to retire. Approximately a year and a-half ago, he had retired and then reconsidered following a dispute with Wiesner involving different circumstances.

At the Sept. 6 council meeting, Muma, Russell and Probert criticized Wiesner for embarrassing Dubey in front of his peers and using profanity in the course of the argument.

Wiesner conceded he was wrong in the way he handled the matter, but said, "I think I have a right to express displeasure with the performance of an employee...as you're (the council) sitting here now expressing displeasure with mine."

This past Monday a council committee composed of Muma, Russell and Shirley Roloff met with Dubey to discuss the matter. At Monday night's council meeting, Russell reported that Dubey has retired and plans to stay retired.

Wayne Carter has been named acting street superintendent.

Council considers sewer extension

The city is discussing the possibility of extending sewer service to a 330 acre development planned by Richard Lobenherz.

The development which is located outside of the city in Charlevoix and Hayes Townships would include a golf course and approximately 250 lots and single family units which will be built over a 10-year period.

Lobenherz is proposing to hook into Charlevoix Township water service and city sewer service. The city's waste treatment plant was built to accommodate future growth in the

This picture shows the Ironton Ferry in operation in 1885. A rough-hewn barge powered by a team of horses carried men and materials across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at Ironton.

The Ironton ferry, past and present

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners recently decided to purchase an historical site marker for the Ironton Ferry, which was registered with the Michigan Historical Commission as a State Historic Site in 1975.

The marker will be placed near a small museum structure that will be erected near the ferry landing to house the first engine used to power the ferry and some other items relevant to the ferry's early operation.

The Ironton Ferry dates back to the early 1880's, when it was privately operated. Later in the 1880's, Charlevoix County took over operation and has continued to the present time. In its earliest years, the ferry was "powered" by horses (see picture) and the fare was five cents a crossing. Today, it costs $1.50 for the diesel-powered crossing.

The Ironton Ferry is one of 18 registered State Historic Sites in Charlevoix County. Five of them have to do with King Strang, the Mormons, and the Beaver Islands. Some of the others are Greensky Hill Mission Church, Mt. McSaubia, the Chicago Club, the Belvedere Club, the Loeb Estate, the Pine River Archeological Site on West Dixon Avenue, the Charlevoix City Park Site (Battle of Pine River), the Horton Bay District, Norwood Township District, the Pewango Indian Quarry in Norwood Township, the Wood Site in Hayes Township, and the Fritz Trail Site.

Many of these sites remain unmarked, as does the Ironton Ferry, partly because few people know how to go about getting markers.

In an effort to arouse more interest in the history and historical importance of Charlevoix County, the Board of Commissioners will soon take up the matter of establishing a County Historical Commission to locate, record, and identify any and all historical districts, places, sites, and items that are not currently governed by another political unit.

sidewalks

Barnard conceded that judgment must be used regarding things on sidewalks, but favored merchants policing themselves. He suggested establishing some type of merchants' committee which would set some standards.

Several wrinkles will have to be considered in any proposed resolution.

To begin with, the entire sidewalk in front of downtown stores isn't owned by the city. Some merchants own small amounts of property in front of their buildings. The amount of private property in front of stores not only varies from store to store, but in some cases varies from one end of a store to the other.

McRae said he favors the city either buying, or in some other fashion, taking over the small pieces of private property in front of stores.

Mike Greeley, owner of the Wharfside Market and a former city councilman, said that would be politically unfeasible and never happen.

City manager Mike Wiesner cited a letter of advice from city attorney Jeff VanTreese and supported first developing an ordinance governing what can be placed on the city-owned portion of the sidewalk.

McRae said that if an ordinance is passed, yet merchants continue putting things on private property in front of stores, it will appear that the ordinance is being ignored.

Bill Supernaw, owner of the Cinema movie theater, questioned the importance or significance of the issue.

"For most downtown people, this isn't a major issue," he said. "It's only an issue to the people who don't want it (things on the sidewalks)."

At the end of the meeting, a straw vote was taken on the question, should all business be conducted inside the business buildings.

Of the 12 businesses represented, eight said yes, all business should be conducted inside the buildings.

Sidewalk issue merits action

It is appropriate that the issue of merchandise and signs on sidewalks is currently being addressed.

As one businessman said at a recent meeting, Charlevoix has always been known as a class act. Charlevoix's retail environment should continue to be a class act.

Sidewalks should not be allowed to become so cluttered that walking on them is difficult. The main purpose of a sidewalk is providing a place for people to walk. Other uses are secondary.

Sidewalk displays should not be allowed to proliferate until Charlevoix's central business district begins to look like some kind of flea market gone mad.

Although Charlevoix sidewalks have not yet reached that state, the time to deal with a problem is when you see it coming, not after it's come and entrenched itself.

Charlevoix's sidewalks should be places where pedestrians can walk comfortably. It would seem most people are more comfortable with a business offering a warm invitation to come in, rather than demanding attention by placing something in the path.

Like any issue worth debating, the matter of merchandise, tables, chairs and signs on sidewalks isn't black and white. There's a big gray area.

Granted, tables and chairs can look quaint. Granted, many of the displays outside stores have been there for several years and most of them have been in good taste.

An important point which shouldn't be overlooked is how fortunate Charlevoix is to be debating what to do about busy sidewalks. Other towns are debating what to do to get some people walking around on their sidewalks.

Sidewalks filled with people indicate Charlevoix has an attractive and safe downtown area that people enjoy strolling through.

For some other communities, the task before them is seeking prosperity. The task before Charlevoix is managing prosperity to assure it that it continues.

A committee of two city councilmen and four merchants is the latest body designated to look into the sidewalk issue.

City attorney Jeff VanTreese and city manager Mike Wiesner have advised that the matter of what can be placed on the city right of way and private property in front of stores should be addressed separately.

The committee and subsequently the city council should be encouraged to first move toward an ordinance addressing items in the public right of way.

Get the public's house in order first. If, following that, there is a problem with items on private property, that can be addressed through a subsequent ordinance or some other action.

A pleasant kind of scholar

After the first week of school, Earl Steckly has concluded that he isn't necessarily the smartest student in class.

Not that Earl's stupid. In fact, on some topics, he probably is the most well-versed and astute student in class. But not on all topics. Earl has resigned himself to the fact that he doesn't know everything about everything and there are matters he has yet to learn about in life.

After the first week of school, Margaret Walin has confirmed, in her mind, what she suspected right from day one. She is the smartest student in class - far and away the smartest.

She is certain she's the smartest and does a real poor job of hiding her feelings on the matter.

Margaret is confident that her intellect not only easily exceeds that of her classmates, but frequently surpasses that of the teacher. Just this past Friday, Margaret had to straighten out the math teacher. He was cruising through an equation on the chalk board when Margaret spotted a number out of place. She was kind enough to quickly

Political slips of the tongue

Aren't you glad you weren't George Bush when you woke up last Thursday morning, Dec. 8, and realized you could be suffering from fatal case of foot-in-mouth disease?

That was the day after the GOP presidential candidate made the mistake of announcing to 6,000 members of the American Legion in Louisville, Ky., and the world at large — that Sept. 7 was "Pearl Harbor Day."

As every schoolboy knows, "Pearl Harbor Day" is Dec. 7. Bush had jumped the gun by a full three months.

Such a gaffe so close to election day is enough to make even a Democrat cringe.

What in the world was Bush thinking about?

If it had been a staff error, heads would have rolled. But it wasn't. Bush himself committed the blunder when he departed from his prepared text in an address to the veterans.

Of course, "September 7" and "December 7" sound quite a bit alike. But the date Dec. 7 ought to be so deeply etched in the psyche of anyone of Bush's generation that it should never be forgotten.

In fact, most people as old as Bush can tell you precisely what they were doing and where they were that gray December day when the airwaves crackled with news that the Empire of Japan had devastated the U.S. Navy at Pearl Harbor, triggering America's entry in World War II.

Young people today may find it hard to realize that the event was so shattering that a popular song — "Remember Pearl Harbor" — was written, published and recorded before the week was out. If you would like to sing it on your way to the polls Nov. 8, it goes something like this:

Let's 'Remember Pearl Harbor,'

As we go to meet the foe,
Let's 'Remember Pearl Harbor,'

As we did the Alamo.
We will always remember
How they died for liberty.

So 'Remember Pearl Harbor,'
And go on to victory.

BUT BUSH undoubtedly had a dozen other things on his mind last week when he decided to make his impromptu remarks about Pearl Harbor Day, which just happened, he thought, to coincide with his visit to the American Legion. He might even have made a mental note to chastise his own speech writers for not making the connection themselves and including a few appropriate remarks in his prepared text.

After all, some of the people in his service-connected audience could well have been stationed at Pearl Harbor that fateful day.

Furthermore, is there a better subject than national defense for a presidential candidate to discuss before a group of veterans?

UNFORTUNATELY, accidents happen and the mind sometimes plays tricks on us.

What, for example, was Gerald Ford thinking about when he denied that Poland was a member of the Soviet bloc in one of his presidential debates with Jimmy Carter? He certainly knew better. Or did he? We'll never know.

And did George Romney realize he was pleading the next thing to mental incompetence when he confessed publicly in 1968 that he had been "brainwashed" by the Pentagon about the war in Vietnam? I think a lot of us were brainwashed by the Pentagon about that particular war, but the admission forced Romney from the presidential race.

George Bush is no less competent today than he was before his early celebration of Pearl Harbor Day.

But such slips do not sit well with voters. The faux passsurely will cost him some votes — probably not enough to swing the election one way or the other but enough to make him wish he had gone down with the fleet at Pearl Harbor.

Or enough to make him wish he had stuck to his cue cards in Louisville.

point that out.
Earl had noticed the mistake even before Margaret, but he figured the teacher would catch it in a second by herself so he hadn't said anything.

Despite her intelligence, Margaret asks a lot of questions. And her questions aren't always difficult questions either, but they're always lengthy questions prefaced by a big explanation. Normally, Margaret's explanations make clear her knowledge of the subject she's asking about.

In English class Monday, the subject was the writings of Ernest Hemingway. Margaret asked a question concerning Hemingway's use of metaphors. She began the question with a wide-ranging lecture on Hemingway, covering everything from the man's writing to the length of his beard. By the time she worked her way back to the question, she'd made it seem like she'd come to class shortly after having lunch with Hemingway and was on good enough terms with the man so she called him "Ernie."

Of course the rest of the class felt blessed by Margaret's insight. Paul Tynen, normally a well-behaved young man, was so grateful he bit the eraser off his pencil and spit it at Margaret.

Monday afternoon, the sociology teacher gave a reading assignment for homework. Earl read it. It was written by a professor who believed theory A, but talked about people who held to theory B.

In class Tuesday, the teacher, after explaining the two theories, asked the class which one they felt the author subscribed to.

Margaret's hand shot up and she began explaining how and why he subscribed to theory B. The teacher knew the author subscribed to theory A, but was having a hard time explaining that to Margaret.

Finally, Earl spoke up. "Margaret. Although the author talks about people who believe in theory B, he only does that as an example. He himself, believes in theory A. It says that on the second page."

Margaret stood corrected. And by a classmate who was a mere mortal.

Later, after class was dismissed, 27 out of the 29 students in class patted Earl on the back. He might not be the smartest student in class, but he was a hero in their eyes.

THE MAYOR'S CORNER

Twenty months ago my name was added to the list of Charlevoix mayors. I am not ready to write my memoirs yet. It has been an experience only available to mayors. In the first week a very, very obscene letter was mailed to me. A few days later uncomplimentary remarks were made regarding my inaugural statements. However I was totally unprepared for the two telephone calls when I heard only heavy breathing. It is a very helpless situation. Since that first month my days are or have been almost normal, normal in a mayor's day. A few letters have come to me lamenting the passing of those days when the summer residents arrived in trains and of people rocking on porches that did not face the lakes. Of chauffeured cars and maids bedroomed on the third floors.

A mayor does worry about not receiving complaining phone calls. And you wonder why. It can't be that every one is happy or satisfied with our city government... or if they were not pleased it probably would do no good to complain... or perhaps a heck of a lot of persons do not care of what goes on. They are so involved in making a living or enjoying our quality of life. Only the mayor is fully aware of all the forces and interests that together make this a better place to live. I think there should be a "Be kind to your Mayor day".

Some persons call me "Mr. Mayor" — but I am happy to say that most simply say "Ralph".

Solid waste: There'll be another last meeting

by PEG OHLE

The hoped-for "last" meeting of the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Planning Committee has not yet been held.

The committee, which is updating the County's Solid Waste Management Plan, was unable last week to reach a decision about what geographical area should be permitted to send its waste to the Charlevoix County Landfill.

As the plan is now written, only waste from Charlevoix and Emmet Counties can be accepted by the landfill operators. However, a delegation of Antrim County officials and other interested persons who attended the meeting raised a question in some committee members' minds about why at least some of the townships in Antrim County should not be included in the plan.

In fact, one Antrim County

Commissioner, Gil Ziegler, pointedly asked, "We are neighbors in the north. I wonder why you would want to exclude us on this."

Although the Charlevoix County Landfill presently accepts waste from several counties in northern Michigan, about 95 percent of it comes from Charlevoix, Emmet, and Antrim Counties, according to a landfill official. This being the case, including at least part of Antrim County in the plan would allow the landfill to keep most of its present volume of business, some committee members pointed out.

Two committee members, Tom Wieland and Tad Malpass, and county planner Larry Sullivan were then selected to meet with representatives of Antrim County to see what can be worked out.

On another question, the Solid Waste Planning Committee agreed that the request of Waste Management, operators of the landfill, to change their engineering plans to allow for burying waste 10 feet deeper and piling it 60 feet higher than is done at present, would be consistent with the County's present Waste Management Plan. This vertical expansion could extend the life of the landfill by at least 15 years, a Waste Management spokesman said.

No date has been set for the next "last" meeting of the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Planning Committee.

The interest that "Charlevoix Yesterday" pictures arouse is demonstrated once again by a note from Judy Willis of Port Sanilac. She refers to the picture we ran about a year ago of a fleet of four fishing boats leaving Charlevoix harbor in 1910 to try their luck in the North Atlantic.

We were able to identify only two of the boats, but Willis advises that another one was the "Ibsen", skippered by her grandfather, William Lewis Smith, with Philip Beauden and Peter Tysver aboard. She notes that her mother, Smith's daughter, was seven years old when the family took a train to Gloucester, Mass. to join the fishermen.

"In 1914, William Smith and a new partner, Frank Brown, bought out the shares of Philip Beauden and Peter Tysver and sailed again the St. Lawrence; returning this time to Harbor Beach, Mich. to fish," Willis added.

Peter Tysver and Philip Beauden stayed in Gloucester.

Llama herd in Horton Bay

Mr. and Mrs. John Danly of Maplewood Farm announce the birth of their first baby Llama. A female, Maplewood Baie Fine, was born July 31 to Lady Bear, who was bred to The Fiduciary of Bozeman, Montana.

Although a month premature, the baby weighed 20 pounds and 12 ounces at birth and doubled her weight in four weeks.

Maplewood Farm, on the Charlevoix-Boyer City Road, now has 19 llamas, with five more due within the next few months. The llamas are a joint project of the Danlys and Dr. James and Nell Vickers. Dr. Vickers, a veterinarian, owns and operates Maplewood Farm.

While most of the llamas born at Maplewood Farm will be sold to other llama breeders, Barbara Danly says they plan to keep Maplewood Baie Fine, their first born.

Barbara Danly regularly brushes down the llamas and spins the wool she collects into yarn which she later weaves into fabric.

At one and a-half months old, the little llama is curious about whoever or whatever comes into its pasture. Curiosity is something llamas don't outgrow.

The mother llama doesn't let her little one roam too far away.

The Charlevoix Children's House Montessori School moved into a new building to open the school year. The building is located on Mercer Street north of Bridge Street.

Nursery school gets new building

The Charlevoix Children's House opened school Sept. 7 in a new building.

For the past seven years, the Montessori nursery school has been located on Taylor Road, but this year has moved to the new building on Mercer.

Children's House directress Heather Woods says the new building is bigger and has some features the old building did not.

The primary advantage is that there is more space for the children to play, both inside and outside the building.

There are 30 children between the ages of two and a-half and six who attend the Children's House. The children come to the school for varying lengths of times between 8:45 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Children's House offers preschool and a kindergarten program. Parents pay a tuition fee for the children to attend the nursery school.

Of moving into the new building, Woods said, "It's real exciting. It's wonderful for the children and the teachers."

She noted that even prior to school opening, the children had been monitoring progress on their new school during the summer.

Along with more space in general, the new nursery school building also has a small kitchen area.

A trip from years past

by PEG OHLE

It would probably be better to wait until the summer tourists have "thinned out," and again, maybe it would be better still to wait until the fall color season.

What we're suggesting is, a trip from Charlevoix to Petoskey following the odometer route presented by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney J. King in their 1920 "King's Official Route Guide."

The 17.3-mile route is described by landmarks at tenths-of-a-mile intervals from Bridge and Antrim Streets in Charlevoix to Howard and Mitchell Streets in Petoskey by way of what is now known as Old U.S. 31.

Most of the landmarks are now gone but there are enough left to make their identification a challenge.

As printed in the Route Guide, the route is:

0. Leave the corner of Antrim and Bridge Streets, go north on Bridge Street, asphalt pavement. Round Lake on right.

3. Cross iron bridge over canal, thoroughfare becoming Michigan Avenue, go up grade.

5. Pass road on right.

6. Curve right, still on Michigan Avenue, and one block beyond.

7. Turn right on Petoskey Avenue.

8. Pass frame school house.

1.5 Through crossroads.

2.1 Cross railroad.

2.9 Curve right.

3.2 Go down and up grade.

3.5 Through crossroads.

4.0 Pass road on right (which goes to Boyne City via north side of Pine Lake), curve left up steep grade.

4.3 Susan Lake on right.

4.7 Turn right with road, go down grade; pass road on right.

4.9 Turn left with road.

6.1 Through crossroads with school house over to right.

7.6 Pass road on right.

7.9 Curve right, pass road on left.

8.2 Through crossroads in woods.

8.3 Railroad and Little Traverse Bay.

8.9 Curve left.

9.4 Curve left down grade, straight through.

9.7 Bay Shore, at depot on left, end of road.

11.1 Through crossroads.

11.9 Pass road on right.

12.7 Go down grade.

12.8 Pass road and school house on right.

15.8 Curve right on Charlevoix Avenue, pass fair grounds on right.

16.5 Turn right on Jackson Street.

16.8 Turn left on Liberty Street, go down grade.

16.9 Turn right on West Mitchell Street.

17.0 Cross bridge over Bear Creek, Northern Auto Co. on left, pick up asphalt pavement, continue to park on left corner of Howard and Mitchell Streets.

The copy of the Tour Guide was sent by Ralph W. Doan Sr. of South Haven, who formerly lived in Charlevoix and intends to return upon retirement.

City planner Gerry Harsch, Betty Hoffman and Mildred Campbell stand next to a section of railing from the old bridge over the channel. Campbell is donating the railing to the city. It will be refinished and placed in Hoffman Park.

What is the measure of true religion? That is a question that has risen in many folk's minds in response to the scandals that have rocked the lives of several prominent Christian leaders recently. It has become increasingly clear that religion is something that can be used or abused, depending on what we do with it. Paul Tournier, the great Swiss physician best noted for his drawing together psychiatry and the Christian faith, once wrote —

"Religion is like the king who asked what was the worst meat to eat and was given the reply: 'Tongue, because it is what gossips and destroys.' Then he asked what was the best meat in the world. Reply: 'Tongue, because it offers love and sings God's praises.'"

So it is with religion. It offers us power for building up, but also can be used as justification for tearing down. One is religion at its best; the other is religion at its worst.

Jesus gave a simple guideline which still serves as a good measure of true religion. "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, all your strength, and all your mind," then added, "And your neighbor as yourself." As we witness that happening in an individual, so then true religion is likely to be present.

Not long ago I was given a Bible that had belonged to the late "Capt." Paddock, one of Charlevoix's noted old-timers who had sailed the world as a Navy careerman. He was also a man of strong faith and firm convictions. Folded into his Bible was a narrative entitled "What Is Religion?" which read —

"Religion is not a thing to be believed, but a way of living; not an attitude of body, but an attitude of heart; not a creed to be written, but a character to be attained; not an organization to belong to, but an ideal to be realized; not a luxury to be supported, but a necessity to be enjoyed; not a system coming down from heaven, but an aspiration coming up from humanity."

The Apostle Paul wrote, "By your fruits, shall you know them." In the end that is the best measure of true religion.

Rayders even record

The Rayder's varsity football team found its offense Friday evening, and unceremoniously dumped East Jordan 38-6.

Charlevoix did most of their damage on the ground, picking up 259 yards rushing. Running backs Jason Corwin, Brian Livingston and James Corwin shared the rushing load.

The aerial attack also contributed as quarterback Greg Lewis passed for 115 yards.

East Jordan treated the first half as though it was Christmas, presenting the visiting Rayders with three gifts in the form of fumbles.

Charlevoix's first touchdown came early in the opening quarter on a 19-yard pass from Lewis to Shawn Putman. Jason Corwin kicked the extra point. Later in the quarter, James Corwin scored on an 11-yard run, but the extra point attempt failed.

Early in the second quarter, Jason Whitley scored on a two-yard run. The two-point conversion attempt failed and Charlevoix led 19-0.

Things then went from bad to worse for East Jordan. First, they fumbled one kickoff, leading to a Charlevoix touchdown. Then they fumbled a second kickoff, leading to another Rayder touchdown.

An 18-yard pass from Lewis to Putman accounted for the Rayders' third touchdown and a two-yard run by Jason Corwin gave them their fourth touchdown. By the time the extra points were tallied, Charlevoix went into halftime with a very comfortable 32-0 lead.

In the second half, Charlevoix scored only once on a 29-yard run by Jason Corwin in the fourth quarter. East Jordan answered that touchdown with 3 seconds left in the game on a one-yard touchdown run by Pat Russell.

Defensively, Pat Elliot led the Rayders with nine solo tackles and five assists. Bill Sherman had seven solos and one assist and Whitley had three solos and five assists.

This Friday evening, Charlevoix travels to Gaylord for their first game in league play.

Rayders Mike Stoneham (76), Tony Warhol (75) and Bill Sherman (81) pursue East Jordan's Ted Sherman during the Rayders 38-6 victory last Friday night.

Cross country finishes second

Charlevoix's boys' cross country team opened their season Saturday with a second place finish among 20 class B and C teams at the Bath Invitational.

Charlevoix and class B Beaverton were the class of the field at the race. Beaverton won with 90 points, Charlevoix was second with 44 points and Onsted was a distant third with 134 points. Cross country team scores are the total of the places of the team's top five finishers.

Junior Scott Miller was Charlevoix's top finisher with an unofficial clocking of 16:06. He took second place overall.

Other top finishers for Charlevoix were: Gehry Wiesner, fourth at 16:25; Paul Wakulat, eighth at 17:08; Bill Burns 17:28; Bill Cook 17:30; Tim Henne 18:07; and Dylan Stewart 18:27.

Charlevoix's girls' team finished ninth among 20 teams. Julie Bush was the teams top runner placing sixth overall.

Other runners in Charlevoix's top five were Leigh Richardson, Inga Meissner, Michelle Jacobs and Barb Haggard.

Junior varsity loses to E.J.

Charlevoix's junior varsity football team opened their season with a 22-14 loss to East Jordan last Thursday evening.

Charlevoix led for most of the game, but late in the game, East Jordan took the lead at 16-14. Charlevoix was attempting a final drive, but on the last play of the game an East Jordan defender intercepted a pass and scored the final touchdown.

In the first half, Charlevoix scored on two long pass plays. On the first one, quarterback Dan Terryberry connected with Jerrett Moreno for 42 yards. Later, Terryberry passed 42 yards to Guy Gengle off a flea-flicker play. The first extra point try was successful with Terryberry passing to Erich McElroy, but the second attempt failed.

Coach Brian Certa said he felt his team played well for being in their first game of the season. He credited Scott Campbell, Ancel Merwin and Terryberry for a strong defensive game.

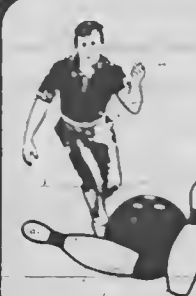

This Thursday evening, the junior varsity team hosts Gaylord.

Golf team misses by a stroke

The Charlevoix golf team lost their season opener Monday by a single stroke to Gaylord. Charlevoix's five golfers tallied 176 strokes while the host Gaylord team tallied 175 strokes.

Dan Bickersteth was had the low score among both teams with a 39. Jordan Spencer shot a 44, Randy Wurst a 45, Chris Pemble a 48 and Matt Gibbons a 50.

The top four scores are added together to determine the team score. Tomorrow, Charlevoix will host St. Ignace.

Basketball team splits pair

Charlevoix's girls' varsity basketball team split a pair of games last week. The team opened the season Sept. 6 with a 43-37 win over Boyne City, but followed that up Sept. 8 with a 79-32 loss to Elk Rapids.

Stacy Gebott was the top Charlevoix scorer in both games with 13 against Boyne City and 9 against Elk Rapids.

Charlevoix and Boyne City both are likely to be among the lower echelon in the Michigan Huron Shores League. Elk Rapids is a class C powerhouse led by all state player Kim Schneider.

Yachting Notes

The Fall CYC racing season began in a gusty 12 knots Wednesday night with fewer boats than we closed with in August. MIA's included Traveller, Cheemaun, Babe, and Allons-Y. Nite Moves joined the no-shows.

Mud Duck might as well have "stayed in bed" as she was called for interfering with the start of one of the Jam Fleets. Her poor crew, completely unaware of the infringement, sailed a great race, retiring home thinking they had captured the second gun when all they had to show for their efforts was a DSQ.

Our Line Judge, good ole RC Phil, reminds us that the misfortune suffered by Tom and his crew awaits any of the rest of us who decide to "test the line." They will be whistled down and thrown out of the race.

Fleet A: Gotcha, Mint Julip, Pygmalion and Tigger.

Fleet B: Bandit, Blazen,

Tireless, Foxy Lady, Cygnus, Mulli, SanSueShe, Kittiwake (back from the North Channel). Fleet C: No Chute, Mi-Joy, Flash, Cabaret, Bald Eagle, Canusa.

Fleet D: Sandpiper, Lost Vermonter, Maureen, Hot Mustard, Sunrise, Apothecary, Stalworth.

Fleet E: Babel, Kenifek, HS Moisture, Minors in Possession. The Mouse watched Jack Lane and Roger Sievertson bring their Pearson-30 through the pier heads on Sunday, the 4th, with winds at the pier at a steady 35 knots and gusting somewhat higher. Every fourth or fifth wave was in the ten-foot range. My hat's off to the two of you.

Look for Mark Lame, the newest crew on Mitch Carey's Stalworth. Mark is new in town and hooked on racing sailboats. (Will someone rescue him from Stalworth?) Till next week.

Grocery store tour

Homemakers who want to know more about reading food labels and other ways of selecting healthful foods are invited to participate in a tour of Oleson's Market in Charlevoix either this afternoon at 2 p.m. or next Saturday morning, September 17, at 10 a.m.

The tours, which will be conducted by Janet Rathke, Extension Home Economist, are in observance of American Heart's Food Festival. Each tour will go through the store, section by section, with the leader showing people how to decipher food labels, determine the actual percent of fat in foods, and what many of those complex ingredient names really mean. The tour will take about 90 minutes and participants will be given free packets of information on label reading, heart-healthy eating, the sugar and salt content of brand-name cereals, cheeses and crackers, and heart-healthy party recipes.

Rathke will also conduct a tour of McDonough's Market on Beaver Island tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon beginning at 2 p.m.

Soccer grows in popularity

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

When 18 Charlevoix high school students showed up for the first soccer practice, this fall, coach Tom Sikavitsa was delighted. That the team has been undefeated so far this season is an added bonus.

For five years Sikavitsa and a core group of players have worked to develop a strong high school level soccer team in Charlevoix.

Although not yet recognized as a varsity high school sport, soccer is attracting increasing numbers of Charlevoix players from the elementary through senior high school level. They play on teams organized by the Charlevoix County Recreational Services, with volunteer coaches, parents providing transportation for traveling teams, and on a field provided by Charlevoix Township.

Enthusiasm for soccer has grown in the 11 years it has been offered. This fall a request will be made of the Charlevoix School Board to consider adding soccer as a varsity sport.

Meanwhile, the high school level team is showing the fruits of the years of effort.

Sikavitsa attributes their success this season to the core group who have been playing together since middle school plus the growing number of other players attracted to soccer as an alternative fall sport.

"For some of the players, who came up in 8th grade, this is their 5th year on the senior team. And most of them played on recreational teams in lower grades," Sikavitsa says.

"The senior team has gained respect around this region. Now schools are calling us to play them. We could play many more schools if we were a recognized varsity team."

The team has come a long way. In its earliest seasons they were a ragtag bunch, a few regulars and whomever else they could convince to play on a given day. They rarely saw victory. "We were lucky to get 10 players out three years ago," Sikavitsa remembers.

They played in make-shift uniforms with an uneven roster of inexperienced players struggling against more experienced Charlevoix soccer player Charlie Whitteft kicks this ball forward as teammates Jay Livingston (foreground) and Jamie Monteith (background) pursue the play.

New county logo

County commissioners have adopted a new county logo which features the Ironton Ferry. The logo also shows the year that Charlevoix County officially came into existence.

Commissioners adopted the logo at their Sept. 14 meeting.

County clerk Jane Brannon said commissioners have been considering adopting a county logo for well over a year. She said most other counties have a logo of some sort and commissioners felt Charlevoix County should also have one.

The logo selected was designed by artist Ken Swan with input from county recreation director Mike Davis, commissioners and department heads.

Cost of the logo was approximately $1,000. Brannon said there was a lot of going back and forth and revisions.

Commissioners chose to have the Ironton Ferry depicted on the logo because it is a unique feature of Charlevoix County.

In coming weeks, county departments will finish using what's left of old stationary. When new county stationary is ordered, it will have the county logo printed on it.

Ahead-lines

The city council, downtown development authority (DDA) and planning commission are preparing for a joint meeting in late October.

All three of the groups make decisions and initiate projects affecting the future of the community. Their efforts are necessarily intertwined and frequently something being done by one will be brought up at the meeting of another.

A joint meeting of the three groups will provide an opportunity to talk face to face and make sure everyone is on the same page when making decisions regarding community improvements.

Two current projects that at least two of the groups are involved in are the sale of the White House on Clinton Street and Hoffman Park on Park Avenue.

At a DDA meeting last Wednesday, DDA members voted to ask the city council to reconsider a restriction which would not allow the building to be used for residential purposes. The DDA would prefer residential use, i.e. an apartment, be allowed on the building's second floor.

At a council meeting which took place earlier this month, the council suggested a joint meeting.

Earlier, the planning commission had indicated to mayor Ralph McRae that they have some plans they would like to discuss with the council.

The DDA is in the process of updating the DDA master plan. The DDA master plan covers the city's downtown area. There is another master plan which encompasses the entire city.

Currently, Victor Nelhebele of Site Design Presentation in Lansing is updating the DDA master plan. Nelhebele drafted the original plan several years ago.

The DDA is attempting to have the revision complete prior to the joint meeting in late October. A completed revision will provide a foundation for discussion at the meeting.

Getting the members of all three groups together is no small endeavor. The total of all members serving on the three groups is approximately 25 people.

Given that number of people and Charlevoix's political tradition of unanimity of opinion on virtually nothing, it is unlikely that all members of all groups will agree on all things.

Even so, the joint meeting will allow the groups to determine where there is common ground. And on areas where there is not common ground, they will be able to glean a better understanding of what the other positions are and why other people favor those positions.

26 MONDAY

Golf: Charlevoix at Boyne City, 4 p.m.
 Parent Walk Through at Charlevoix High School, 6:30 p.m.

Nutritional meals for senior citizens will be served at the VFW, 12:30 p.m.

Soccer continued...

 teams from Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Elk Rapids and Boyne City.

This year the senior team has a ten game traveling season plus a four game tournament on Beaver Island. To date they have played and defeated Alpena (twice), Cheboygan, and Leelanau. They will meet Harbor Springs, Northern Michigan Christian Academy, Beaver Island, Petoskey, and the Harbor Light Academy in games running through the end of October.

No longer ragtag, they play in regulation shorts and jerseys. Sikavitsa and assistant coach Jay Bingham have raised some $350 to help underwrite costs with parents paying the balance. Parents and players provide transportation to the games and cheering sections are growing at home games.

Players Bob Sell, Tanya Rostar, David Puhl, John O'Brien, Jay Livingston, Web Friedly, and F.L. Dammann have been with the team four and five years. They were joined this fall by Charlie Witthoff, Paul Skogholt, Scot Novotny, Jamie Montelth, Brandon Kanoff, Brandon Jess, Ryan Holmes, Jose Gracia, Heather Dietrich, Sam Bingham and Dan Bickelsteth.

"The skill level of this team has increased. Because so many of them have played together for a long time, they know each other's strengths and weaknesses," Sikavitsa continues.

"Northport thrives on developing kids from infancy and nurturing them into a championship high school team," Sikavitsa continues.

"Northport is a powerhouse. They destroyed Petoskey, beat the Alpena varsity and I will be surprised if they are not the state C-D champs."

Sikavitsa describes soccer as a game requiring "commitment, unity and athletic ability." Soccer teams are not, in his opinion, made up of 11 superstars. Soccer players must work together for a full 80 minutes.

"Soccer is a game of endurance and finesse. It is more like basketball and hockey than football," says Sikavitsa.

"The players move the ball down the sides toward the middle. Goals are achieved not by pushing and fighting out by strategy, positioning and finessing."

For Sikavitsa, a life long soccer player, coaching is a labor of love as it is for 14 other volunteer coaches. This year there are 11 teams under the Recreational Services, starting children in kindergarten and coming up through the elementary and middle schools to the high school level.

The youngest children begin learning the fundamentals, the team work, and developing the endurance to run for a solid 80 minutes.

The rules are the same for kindergartners and high school seniors. An 11-player game, three forwards drive the ball toward the goal with the major action of the game going to the halfbacks who work both offensively and defensively. Three full backs form the main line of the defense with a utility stopper-sweeper plugging holes between the fullbacks and the goalie.

Mike Davis, Director of Charlevoix County Recreational Service says it would not be expensive for schools to recognize soccer as a varsity sport.

"It would cost the schools about what it costs to equip two football players," Davis contends. Insurance costs should come under the school's umbrella policy, he says.

Larry Levensgood, school board members and coach of a team of six, seven and eight year olds, serves on the school board extra-curricular committee. "We will be looking at soccer, hopefully this month," he reports. "In my opinion it should be recognized by the school."

Meanwhile Sikavitsa is working with a group of area coaches to form the Northwestern Michigan Soccer League. The proposed league would function under the rules of the International Football Association, a world-wide organization establishing rules for all soccer teams, and the U.S. Youth Soccer Association.

The soccer league would help communities organize teams prior to the varsity level. At the varsity level there would be the option of fielding a school sponsored team or remaining with the Youth Soccer Association.

United Way working

The Charlevoix United Way Committee is all set to open its 1988 fund raising campaign next Tuesday, Sept. 27, with a goal of $40,000. Approximately 10 percent of the goal has already been pledged by summer residents.

Marc Cross, campaign manager, reports that as in the past, much of the money will be collected through payroll deductions. There will also be several sub-chairmen to oversee other collections.

The local United Way committee stresses that 90 cents of every dollar collected in the area stays in the area and benefits local organizations

Athletic building delayed

Although initial plans were to have the school's new athletic building completed by Sept. 1, school administrators are now simply hoping it is finished in time to be used for the last home football game.

At Monday evening's school board meeting, school business manager Vince Olach told the board that currently contractors are waiting for shower equipment which was ordered in June.

In a telephone conversation with the Courier after the meeting, Olach said that earlier this summer, bad weather held up the project and now the problem is getting the shower equipment.

Olach told the board, the shower equipment is not like an ordinary household shower, but is institutional equipment with timers. He said the plumbers doing the work ordered the equipment back in June shortly after the bid was let.

Board member Bob Drenth said he isn't happy with the delays. Board president Max Novak concurred with that opinion.

"I think we made a big mistake by not putting a completion date when we signed the contract," Drenth said.

Ross Construction of Petoskey is the contractor on the $132,000 building.

The building is located behind the high school, off the north end of the football field. When completed, it will have two locker rooms, two shower rooms, a medical taping room, a weight room and a maintenance workshop.

Athletic building locker rooms will be used primarily for football and track.

Olach said the present locker rooms inside the high school weren't designed for as many students as Charlevoix currently has participating in athletics.

With only two locker rooms, there is also a problem when there are two home athletic events, such as a girls' basketball game and a boys' junior varsity football game scheduled on the same night.

New coaches

Two new coaches for the girls' middle school basketball program were hired at Monday evening's school board meeting.

The board agreed to hire Andy Peters as coach of the seventh grade team and to hire Ron Cox as hired to coach the eighth grade team.

Administrators said both coaches have previous coaching experience.

Blanchard to be on state board

Charlevoix County equalization director Joan Y. Blanchard has been appointed to the state assessors' board.

Blanchard was appointed by Governor James Blanchard (no relation) and was sworn in by circuit court judge Richard Pajtas last week.

The five-member state assessors' board sets guidelines, policies and procedures for tax assessor certification and also certifies assessors.

Blanchard, who has been county equalization director for 24 years, said she heard there was an opening on the assessors' board and submitted her name.

"I think the education of the assessors is important and the image the assessors have with the taxpayers is important," she said.

She added that she feels there is a lot of misunderstanding concerning the assessor's role and if the public understood more, it would be helpful.

The appointment is for an unspecified term and is not subject to senate confirmation.

L SCOTT SWANSON The potato fight

For kids, it's a fine time of year for throwables. All over the ground there are crab apples, plums, pears, acorns, and other things anxious to leap into a little hand and be thrown at another kid. If a kid's got access to a garden, it's even better.

When I was oh, about nine or ten years old, I once got in a potato fight with another kid. My family grew potatoes in our garden and dad had dug them up and left some small ones lying around.

This other kid and I were out in the garden one day and got to tossing potatoes at each other. At first, it started out pretty casual, just some halfhearted lobbs. But things soon escalated and before long we were slinging spuds for all our little arms were worth.

As the velocity increased, so did the distance between combatants. Not only did we put distance between us, but since the potatoes were next to the corn patch, we also put that between us.

With each of us holed up at opposite ends of the corn patch, our battle lines were drawn.

Potatoes are better than bullets. The same round can be fired and return fired dozens of times. But still, one or the other of us would occasionally come up short of ammunition. Then, whoever needed to restock would make a spirited dash out from the cover of corn into the open potatoes.

That took some real courage. Because while the one kid was scrambling around scooping up a few potatoes, the other kid was unloading his arsenal. Of course unloading one's arsenal didn't show a lot of vision as far as battle tactics go. It meant that in a minute, that kid would have to go out in the open and take a few hits.

Our battle raged on for quite some time. Most of it was spent lobbing potatoes the length of the corn patch to keep the enemy from getting any ideas about launching an offensive.

Then suddenly, I noticed that something had changed. Although, I was still throwing potatoes, none were being thrown back.

"Hmmm?" I wondered. "What's the deal here? What's he doing down there?"

I checked the corn for rustling to make sure my adversary wasn't trying to sneak toward me. No movement there.

I looked around behind me. No sign of the enemy.

I lobbed a few more potatoes to see if that would flush him out. No response.

Finally, I decided I was going to have to go down to the other end of the corn patch and investigate.

Slowly, very slowly, I crept through the corn. I was cautious. I sensed this might be some type of clever ploy. Maybe I was being set up for an ambush.

I prepared myself as best I could. I had a loaded potato in each hand, and I wouldn't hesitate to use them.

Eventually, I got where I could see my opponent. He was seated on the ground, kind of curled up forward with his head near his knees. He looked a little pale and sickly.

"What happened?" I asked. He couldn't speak clearly, but in between gasps, he indicated he'd taken an incoming potato below the belt.

Nutritionists may say what they will about potatoes being high in carbohydrates, but I want to tell you, that errant potato took all the starch out of that poor fellow. He'd had enough of potato fights.

EDITH GILBERT

Have you ever heard of Slapovi Krke? Neither have I! That's in Yugoslavia, and I just received an enthusiastic post card from Lois and Richard Hodgson from there. The card shows a series of step-like, bubbling, low waterfalls, and we can be sure it's a beautiful spot somewhere on the opposite side of the world.

So—speaking of waterfalls, let me tell you and the Hodgsons about my first visit this week to Leland, less than 2 hours south of Charlevoix, on the Leelanau Peninsula. (There must be others who have never been to Leland!) Here we found a beautiful sister waterfall almost right in our own backyard! In addition to enjoying the scenery, starting now until the middle of October, we marvelled at the primitive force of nature, when the salmon begin running upstream. What a thrill to see a graceful blue fish leap high into the air, trying with all her might to swim against the surging, roaring waters. If I didn't know better, I'd say it couldn't be done. But they can and they do! Beautifully.

The waterfall divides the Falling Waters Lodge from the restaurant called The Cove. There are various decks from where one can observe the action and hear the roar of the falls. The entire surrounding area is referred to as Fishtown, where some fishing shanties have been restored to their original state and are operated as small businesses. It made my heart jump to see the old fishnets drying in the sun. There are charter fishing boats available, and much boating traffic flows between Leland and Charlevoix. The whole place is recognized as a National Historical Site.

In addition to enjoying this touch of nautical nostalgia, one can also eat very well in nearby Sutton's Bay for lunch at the House House Deli—a restored firehouse—or dine at Hattie's Grill for dinner, if you make reservations.

Just a simple door

We're into... standardization and interchangeability of parts, right?

Wrong! Have you ever walked into a lumber yard and asked for a shed door?

Oh, they have doors all right. But I doubt you'd be able to find one for your shed, unless you have one of those new prefabricated buildings with a hip roof and flower boxes.

I don't know how old our shed is, but it could be as ancient as the house which was built right after the Civil War. The shed is attached to the rear of the house and adjoins a backporch.

It isn't big as sheds go, but it houses some broken down furniture that I am going to refinish, a few garden tools, a lawn mower, an assortment of flower pots, a set of horseshoes, a pitcher pump and other junk that never made it to the basement.

Until last weekend, the shed door was a heavy old assembly of tongue-in-groove clapboard nailed to a frame of uprights and cross members. That's the way they used to make shed doors before the invention of plywood.

The problem with shed doors lies with sheds themselves. They ones I know appear to have been constructed by amateurs out of leftover building materials, with the size determined largely by the dimensions of the material on hand. The size of the door really doesn't matter, since shed doors usually are custom made to fit the opening available.

In addition to normal wear and tear, shed doors have a number of natural enemies, including high winds which can cause them to bang and slam all night long when you forget to throw the bolt, moisture which creeps up from the earthen floor and small boys who like to swing on shed doors when no one is looking.

The hinges usually are the first to go. The hinges on our old door were moved so often that the frame was pulpy with screw holes. The bottom boards are the next to succumb to the ravages of time, falling off one by one.

With January breathing down my neck, I decided a couple of Saturdays ago I would have to do something about the shed door if I intended to keep the interior free of ice and snow this winter.

My first move was to make a pot of coffee to gain a little time before actually stepping out in the backyard and surveying the problem firsthand.

Then I went out on the front porch to drink my coffee and read the funnies. There's nothing like the funnies to sharpen the wits. Then the telephone rang. It was daughter Jennifer wanting to borrow the car for a couple of hours while hers was in the garage.

Hallelujah! I wouldn't have to make a trip to the lumber yard in the immediate future.

Finally I wandered into the back yard, removed what was left of the old door with one easy tug and surveyed the damage. Of course, it was worse than I expected, since the entire frame needed rebuilding. As I worked I made mental notes on how to build a shed door and jotted my calculations on a piece on scrap lumber.

It's very macho, I think, making notes on wood. "One 4x8, 1/2 inch ply. 24 ft. 1x3 pine. 1 pt. Gilbey's gin."

I didn't get to the lumber yard until just before closing and by then it was too late to take on any major projects except the gin.

So I left the wood in the backyard. I hoped all week it would rain and the wood would warp so badly I couldn't use it.

As luck would have it, Charlevoix suffered a veritable seven-day drought and last Saturday I had my work cut out for me.

I am happy to report that the shed door is in place, cut to fit an opening with no two dimensions the same. It is mounted on a frame with mitered corners and a diagonal cross-member that fits tightly from top to bottom.

The door closes snugly and swings lightly and freely. It is a true example of Yankee ingenuity. Kit Carson lumber and Gilbey's gin.

Remind me to show you the blood blister where I hit my thumb with a hammer. It's as big as a mouse.

Letters to the editor:

Hospital praised

Charlevoix Community Hospital While on vacation in Charlevoix in August we had the unfortunate occasion to have need of the Charlevoix Community Hospital.

Our five-year-old son Bob was attacked by a malamute dog. We phoned the emergency room to warn of our impending arrival. When Bob was carried in, there was no hesitation, no questions, only concern for our son.

The entire staff, nurses, doctors, office personnel could not have acted more professionally or with greater concern for Bob and us. Since surgery was necessary there was a delay and during that time all of us were treated as family not "fudgies."

Bob was in surgery for over an hour and eventually we all spent the night. Throughout the night and the next day until release, there was constant professional care coupled with a great measure of genuine concern.

Obviously we are grateful for the facility, the care and concern which we received. All of the area served by this hospital and staff should also be grateful for this facility.

Thank you all for your expertise and caring.

Mike and Claudia Phillips Lansing

P.S. Bob has recovered and should have little or no scarring thanks to Dr. Lane the surgeon.

Is this enough?

Editor,

Across the dinner table and at coffee klatches throughout our area, people are asking the questions: how much development is enough and how much is too much? Indeed, where are we headed as a community? It's time we got together to talk this over, rather than sitting around separately and wringing our hands over the seeming lack of control of our future.

Many of us have seen firsthand or have read about the problems associated with runaway development: property values on Cape Cod rising to the point where local people can no longer afford to live there; demands for services in Arlington, Virginia, rising faster than assessed valuation, so that tax rates go up, not down; the traffic mess in Traverse City, and, yes, even the drug situation in Charlevoix. Are these visions of our future? Is this where we're headed? Is our area next in line for such "improvements"?

We cannot redesign our economic system, of which growth and development have been central parts for many hundreds of years. All of us need to make a living, and even those who are able to live off savings are dependent on a healthy economy to generate income. But is more always better? Where is the tradeoff between more income and less safety on the streets, or between more people and less quiet and privacy? Should we place any value on being able to see the Northern Lights against a sky unobstructed by city lights?

These are hard questions, ones with no easy solutions. But it's time we started asking them and seeking some answers. If you would like to take part in such discussions, please either write me at 2957 Atkins Road, Petoskey, MI 49770, or leave a phone message at 347-1171. I will then set a date when those interested can get together to begin exchanging ideas. All names will be kept confidential.

It's late, and it's time to act—before we foul our own nest!

THE MAYOR'S CORNER

Two years ago I was a candidate for the Mayors' position. I had a platform with specific promises and policy statements. Political promises, even with honest intentions, are difficult to fulfill. This upcoming campaign, instead of promises, I will have a wish list. Be assured my ultimate and constant goal is to make Charlevoix better in every way.

High on that wish list is to strive for more full year employment, and to improve the physical appearance of the city in all areas. Taxes are a hardship for many. But most all must agree that Charlevoix is very much above the average city of our size. The envy of hundreds of Michigan towns.

I do have some ideas that should well be received. But they would require the support and the cooperation of many persons.

Mayor Ralph McRae

Paid for by the committee to elect Ralph McRae, 304 Nettleton, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Mt. McSaubia cross country ski trail proposed

City council members and recreation officials took a walk around Mt. McSaubia late Monday afternoon.

The Charlevoix Visitors and Convention Bureau wants to enhance cross country skiing at the complex by purchasing cross country ski equipment which would be rented at Mt. McSaubia. They have asked the city to develop a ski trail through the woods at the base of the mountain.

City recreation director Ike Boss and Mt. McSaubia ski manager Bo Boss guided council members on a tour of the area proposed for a trail.

Bo Boss explained that plans are to develop an approximately 1.2 mile trail that will wind through the woods. If in the future, more property is acquired adjacent to the mountain, it would be possible to extend the trail.

A groomer used for downhill skiing at Mt. McSaubia could also be used to groom the cross country trail.

There currently is a small footpath along most of the proposed ski trail. Some trees would have to be removed to make the trail between 16 and 18 feet wide.

Councilman Earl Muma expressed concern about some of the trees marked for removal.

Ike Boss said he and Bo tried to select a path requiring as little tree removal as possible.

Construction is taking place on East Dixon Street. The first phase of the plan will separate the street's storm and sanitary sewer systems.

New bandshell: selling it piece by piece

In an effort to encourage both small and large donations to build a new bandshell in East Park, bandshell proponents are now selling the bandshell piece by piece.

Contributors may pick a specific item and contribute funds for that particular piece or portion of the bandshell.

Mayor Ralph McRae is behind the piece by piece bandshell sale and has been active in seeking funds for the project.

McRae says he believes a new bandshell can be constructed for under $100,000 and he would like to see work begin before winter. He said that approximately $30,000 more is needed to go with funds which have been donated or set aside for the project.

McRae has approached area businesses for contributions. Among those making either money or in-kind contributions have been: Medusa Cement Co.; Kilt Carson Lumber Co.; Wojan Aluminum Co.; and Mantel Redi-Mix.

Make sure children are immunized

District Health Department No. 3 is warning parents of the continuing danger of childhood diseases and urging them to make sure that all of their children are fully immunized.

Brian Youngs, M.D., Medical Director, is especially concerned at this time because of the suspected measles (rubeola) cases in the District. Measles is an acute, highly communicable disease characterized by fever, cough, runny nose, red eyes, red spots in the mouth and a rash.

Measles can be a very serious illness, complicated by middle ear infections, pneumonia and inflammation of the brain. Measles may be prevented by properly immunizing children. Due to the reported cases of measles in the state, it is important children age 15 months and older are protected against measles.

A vaccine can prevent measles in 95 out of 100 immunized individuals. Dr. Youngs feels that four groups of people have the greatest risk of developing measles:

1. Individuals who have not been immunized and were born after 1965;
2. Individuals who received an immunization prior to 12 months of age;
3. Individuals who received an immunization along with immune globulin;
4. Individuals who were immunized with a killed vaccine, or a vaccine of unknown type, between 1963 and 1967.

The Health Department recommends a series of immunizations that should be started at 2 months of age. The schedule for active immunizations by 4-6 years of age includes a basic series of five (5) doses of diphtheria and tetanus toxoid and pertussis (DTP), and four (4) doses of trivalent oral polio vaccine (TOPV), and one dose each of measles, rubella and mumps (MMR), and the Haemophilus Influenzae Type b vaccine (Hib). The MMR vaccine is usually given at 15 months of age and the Hib vaccine at 18 months of age. Parents-guardians should check each child's immunization record to insure they are properly immunized against all preventable childhood illnesses, especially measles.

Immunizations are offered in Charlevoix by the Health Department at the County Building Annex on the first Monday of the month between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. Please call 547-6523 for an appointment.

Garbage bags to be sold

Thirty gallon, two-ply garbage bags will be sold door-to-door in Charlevoix, Thursday evening, Sept. 29, by Performing Arts students raising money to help underwrite the costs of their many programs.

Ideal for fall clean-up, the heavy duty garbage bags will be sold in cases of 100 for $13 a case.

The Performing Arts students in Charlevoix have a school-year long season of events for which they must raise funds.

The season begins with debate. The debate team travels within the northern region and then enters the statewide debate championships. Drama and speech competitions follow the debate season. Charlevoix's drama presentation in the statewide competition has been a consistent contender for the Class C Championship and members of the speech team have performed extremely well in statewide competition.

Each of these events involves expenses, including travel, costumes, royalties, and set construction. Students and parents raise funds with a variety of projects, including the annual fall and spring garbage bag sales.

Donations to the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts are tax deductible.

BEACONS
OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

To be loved, to be accepted, in our society one must meet certain conditions. If you're a male you must be handsome, macho, and wear clothes with the right designer labels. If you're female you must have a pretty face, attractive figure, and wear the current fashions. If you are a teenager you've got to flow with the crowd, know where to hang around, and be accepted by the right people.

There are all kinds of conditions we have to meet to be loved and accepted by others. Failure to meet the conditions and be accepted is thought to be a fate worse than death for some people.

I have good news for you. God loves you unconditionally! He just loves you, period! No conditions, no pre-requisites, no stipulations.

The Bible says "...Christ died for the ungodly. Very rarely will anyone die for a righteous man, though for a good many some one might possibly dare to die. But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us." (Rom. 5:6-8) Without any conditions God loves us when we are unlovable. God doesn't wait until we are saints to love us. He loves us when we are still sinners.

Christ loved you so much He died and shed His blood to pay the penalty for your sin. Your sin separates you from a Holy God. Death is the penalty for that sin. But Christ has died for you, taking on Himself the penalty of sin for you. Then He rose from the dead and lives forever to be your Savior. He loves you. Receive Him as your Savior. Receive His love!

SPORTS

Girls beat Ellsworth

Charlevoix's varsity girls basketball team just got past neighboring Ellsworth last Thursday evening with a come-from-behind 43-41 win.

Charlevoix struggled with full court pressure applied by Ellsworth through much of the game. Defensively, Charlevoix had a difficult time early in the game with Ellsworth's Shelly Essenberg. Fortunately for Charlevoix, the Ellsworth sophomore's shooting touch deserted her for portions of the second half.

Ellsworth also suffered from the loss of center Nikki Drenth who sat out the second half due to a bruised knee.

Boss, Stacey Gebott and Billie Jean Habel all played the entire game. Gebott ran the Rayder offense from her guard position and also led the team in scoring with 17 points. Boss also finished in double figures with 11 points.

Habel finished with nine points and played a steady game, keeping her composure against Ellsworth's frustrating defense. In the third quarter, Habel and Gebott were occasionally able to work their underneath the basket for open shots.

Essenberg, a Northern Lakes all conference selection last year as a freshman, led the Ellsworth scoring attack with 16 points. Lori Ruis was also in double figures with 10 points.

In the junior varsity contest, Ellsworth came out on top by a score of 34-27. Shelly Strange was a dominant scorer as she put in 19 of the Lancers' 34 points. For Charlevoix, Sandy Fershee had 11 points while Gina Webster contributed 10 points.

This Thursday, Sept. 22, Charlevoix plays Michigan Huron Shores League opponent Petoskey at Petoskey.

Alumni runners sparkle

The Central Michigan University (CMU) cross country team beat nine other schools in the Jeff Drenth Memorial Invitational this past Saturday with three Charlevoix High School graduates competing in the race.

Drenth, a world class runner who died in 1986, ran at CMU after graduating from Charlevoix in 1979. His older brother, Walt, is now CMU's cross country coach.

CMU won Saturday's race with a total of 39 points. Second place went to the University of Michigan with 46 points while Eastern Michigan finished third with 63 points.

Charlevoix's Bill Taylor was CMU's and the race's top finisher with a time of 19:18 for the four-mile course. He beat the second place finisher, Geoff Goolsby also of CMU by 24 seconds. Two other Charlevoix alumni competing for CMU also ran well. Matt Peterson finished twenty-fifth with a time of 20:43 and Douglas Bergmann finished forty-second with a time of 21:13.

More than 120 runners representing 10 teams competed in the race. Drenth's father, Bob, fired the starter's pistol to begin the race and his mother, Maxine, presented awards to the top 15 finishers.

Another area runner, Petoskey graduate John Goble also ran in the race. Goble, who runs for Northern Michigan University finished fifty-sixth with a time of 21:33.

Soccer victory

Charlevoix's high school soccer club continued its undefeated season with a 5 to 4 victory over Alpena Saturday.

What at first appeared a walk away for Charlevoix became a close and sometimes physical contest at Alpena.

Seniors Jose Garcia and Bob Sell were credited with three and two goals respectively, while freshman Sam Bingham had three assists. Sophomore Brandon Jess and Sell were each credited with one assist.

Charlevoix meets Northern Michigan Academy at home at 5 p.m. this Friday. They travel to Cheboygan Saturday and returned home for a match with Harbor Springs, Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 4:30 p.m.

Golfers split

Charlevoix's golf team lost one and won one last week. Although they played well Sept. 13, they lost by 13 strokes to Petoskey. Two days later, Charlevoix got their first win of the year, a 178 to 235 win over St. Ignace. Both matches were played at the Belvedere Golf Course.

Petoskey beat Charlevoix 168-181. "We played well, but Petoskey played even better," said Charlevoix coach Glen Taylor, noting that Petoskey has a very strong team this year. For Charlevoix, Randy Wurst shot a team-best 41. Matt Gibbons and Dan Bickersteth each shot 46, Jordan Spencer had a 48 and Chris Pemble a 53. The top four scores are tallied for a team score.

Against St. Ignace, Bickersteth led the team with a 42 while Gibbons and Wurst shot 45, Jordan Spencer 46, Tom Heriman 51, Doug Sineyway 49 and Chris Pemble 50.

Yachting Notes

Thirty-two sloops met Mother Nature's 18 knot dust Wednesday, Sept. 14, in what was interpreted as a prelude of Fall's remaining races. Crews frantically changed, trimmed, and then changed again their sail plans prior to their start. This produced a cornucopia of various genoas, and a variance from full to double-reefed mainsails.

It became even more interesting. Hot Mustard, a golden-hued little San Juan 24, performed the rarely-seen skipper-less 360 degree turn while the otherwise occupied skipper and his mate were busy pulling an unidentified crew from Lake Charlevoix. The mouse's foredeckman performed an acrobatic maneuver by shooting from the hatch cover under the lifelines and into the drink while hardening up at the D-Mark. The poor kid managed to grab a stanchion and recover himself to the deck before he was even missed. "I've never quite entered the water before in that particular fashion," he noted afterward.

The evening produced some close battles. In Fleet A, Dr. Dave and Crew brought Miss Piggie home in a little more than a minute over Jack Begrow et al in Mintie. And in Fleet B, Karl Jurries eked out a 59 second thrashing of Mr. Mike of Tireless fame. Jim and Liz Mielke, likewise took minute less than John Gordon's Flash in Fleet C. Sandpiper, Dave Campbell's P-26, ably worked by the skipper, Bill Price and Bill Stewart, won a near horizon job over Lost Vermonter. Probably the closest finish of the night was in Fleet E, with Bill Babel bringing his J-22 over the line only 36 second in front of Minors in Possession.

Council debates clogged traffic

The possibility of changing traffic patterns to eliminate congestion downtown has been reopened for discussion.

At a city council work session Monday night, mayor Ralph McRae passed out a letter suggesting the council ask the state highway department to study the possibility of rerouting southbound traffic off Bridge Street onto Park Street to State Street south to M-66.

McRae suggested that only northbound traffic be allowed on Bridge Street between Garfield Street and Park Avenue. He recommended allowing parking on both sides of Bridge Street in the one way area.

Other stipulations suggested in McRae's letter were that: no left turns be permitted into the Beaver Island dock area; left turns be permitted at all other corners off Bridge Street; traffic bound for the lower Belvedere Club area come from northbound Bridge Street; stop signs be placed on Antrim Street at the intersection of Antrim and State Streets; the south end of State Street go directly across to M-66 with a traffic signal at the intersection; pedestrian lights be installed at the intersection of Clinton and Bridge.

"This easy flow of traffic would bring more buyers to the downtown area," McRae wrote at the bottom of the letter. "It might also encourage some businesses to locate on State Street. Professional offices etc. People dislike changes, but dislike long traffic delays even more."

McRae's proposal quickly met with reservations from council members Shirley Roloff, Bill Bellows and Bill Haggard.

Roloff and Bellows said they didn't think people living along the residential area of State Street would appreciate having a large amount of additional traffic go past their homes. Bellows lives on State Street.

Haggard was concerned that redirecting traffic might harm downtown businesses.

City manager Mike Wiesner addressed the concern about harming downtown business saying that if some type of traffic rerouting is tried and works, it should help downtown businesses. He said that with the current situation people sometimes feel it's too congested downtown so they just don't go.

Bob Hoffman, owner of Wildwood Innovations, said the merchants association has talked about this issue for some time. He said a pedestrian cross-

Car commercials filmed in Northern Michigan

Northern Michigan went a little Hollywood this past week as Chrysler-Plymouth commercials were filmed at locations throughout the area.

Last Friday morning, actors, producers a director and an entourage of crew members filmed a scene at the Ferry Avenue launch ramp.

The scene involved a new Plymouth Voyager van pulling a boat and trailer up from the water. Plans are for the commercial to begin airing on national TV in November.

Production of the commercial was handled by Castorri and Company, a Southfield based production company. The advertising agency responsible for the commercial is Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon and Eckhardt, one of the nation's leading advertising agencies.

Earlier in the week, the production crew shot scenes in downtown Harbor Springs, on Bluff Road and at a state park near Sleeping Bear Dunes. They also planned to shoot at Point Betsy lighthouse, the Mackinac Bridge and along M-119.

Mary Beth Langenhorst, Castorri and Company producer, said the company visited the area several times in recent

Hoffmann Park dedication ceremony

Important milestones in Charlevoix's ongoing community beautification efforts will be recognized Oct. 6 and 7.

During the two days, Charlevoix will host the annual meeting of Keep Michigan Beautiful, a state organization dedicated to improving Michigan's scenic beauty.

A featured event during the two day conference will be the Hoffmann Park dedication ceremony scheduled for 3:30 p.m., Thursday Oct. 6 at the new park on the channel's edge off Park Avenue.

Keep Michigan Beautiful has a tree dedication at their annual meetings and this year a tree donated by Site Planning Development Inc. will be planted and dedicated to open the Hoffmann Park ceremony.

Following the tree planting, the Charlevoix Middle School band will play America The Beautiful and officials from the Downtown Development Authority will offer opening words welcoming people to the ceremony.

Dale Boss, one of the people who is instrumental in Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's annual petunia plantings, will speak on the history of Hoffmann Park. Betty Hoffmann and mayor Ralph McRae will be introduced and the middle school band will play for approximately 10 minutes.

The public is encouraged to attend the dedication.

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau were instrumental in bringing the Keep Michigan Beautiful meeting to Charlevoix. Bureau president Harold Krutsch says approximately 150 Keep Michigan Beautiful members are expected for the convention.

Blocks of rooms at the Edgewater Inn and Weather-vane Terrace Hotel have been reserved for the event.

The Weather-vane will host a Keep Michigan Beautiful banquet Thursday evening. Marc Oberschulte of the State Department of Commerce will deliver a message from Governor James Blanchard and present several Keep Michigan Beautiful awards for beautification projects throughout the state.

People attending the banquet will also see the first showing of a Keep Michigan Video which shows projects which have won Keep Michigan Beautiful awards in the past and also outlines some of the organization's goals for the future.

City council views education tower favorably

An educational telecommunications program for schools in the Char-Em Intermediate school district moved a step forward Monday evening when a proposed tower atop Mount McSaubia met with approval from the city council.

Jack Keck, director of PACE (Providing Academics Cost Effectively) addressed the council. He explained that PACE is affiliated with the Cheboygan-Otsego-Presque Isle Intermediate School District. That intermediate school district has an educational telecommunications system and is working with Char-Em to establish one here.

The system proposed would allow students to not only see and hear, but also to talk to an instructor on TV.

The advantage of the system is that it allows one teacher to teach students at several different schools; therefore small schools which ordinarily wouldn't have enough students to offer certain specialty classes are made able to offer the classes.

"It would be beneficial to Char-Em and the individual school districts," Keck told the council.

The reason PACE needs approval from Charlevoix's city council is because they propose to have a transmission tower atop Mount McSaubia.

Currently, Northern Cable Company, a cable TV company, has a tower on Mount McSaubia which they no longer need and are willing to let PACE use. That tower is 60 feet high. For the transmission system PACE wants, it would have to be raised to somewhere between 142 and 192 feet high.

Keck said a higher transmission site is more desirable for reception at the individual schools.

Although Monday night's meeting was only a work session and no formal action could be taken, council members said the proposal sounds fine to them.

In conjunction with approaching the council, PACE has applied for approval from the Federal Aviation Administration.

City manager Mike Weisner explained that Mount McSaubia is city-owned land located in Charlevoix Township and PACE would need zoning approval from the township.

Earlier the township turned down a PACE tower proposal at a different site because the site was in a residential area.

If this alternative plan is approved, the PACE group will bring construction plans back to the city council for review.

Weisner also noted that Northern Cable Company currently pays the city $250 per month as part of a lease agreement involving the tower. If PACE takes it over, the council will have to decide whether to continue charging or not.

Police chiefs will convene here

The Northern Michigan Police Chiefs Association will meet in Charlevoix Sept. 30 through Oct. 2. The association includes police chiefs from as far south as Mount Pleasant and as far north as the Upper Peninsula.

Charlevoix police chief Dennis Halverson is the host chief for the event. He said this is the first time the police chiefs organization has met in Charlevoix.

"They (association members) asked if we would do it and they really wanted to come here," Halverson said.

Halverson estimated that between 15 and 20 police chiefs and their spouses would be in town for the three-day meeting.

The meeting will be centered in the Weather-vane Terrace with seminars in the Terrace conference room. Halverson said one of the featured speakers will be United States marshal John Kendall who will talk about the federal government's witness protection program and procedures required for forfeiture of cash and property seized in drug investigations.

Bright beginnings conference

Eleven northern Michigan intermediate school districts are sponsoring a two-day "Bright Beginnings" conference for educators and parents interested in gifted, talented and creative children.

Sessions will begin Friday evening, Oct. 7, at 7 p.m. at the Hilton Shanty Creek Resort in Bellaire and will continue all day Saturday, Oct. 8 (8 a.m.-3:30 p.m.).

This year's conference will focus on Curriculum Design for Gifted and High Achieving Students. The presenter for this conference is Dr. T. Roger Taylor an expert in the area of gifted and talented with practical ideas which can be applied to any classroom.

Friday evening, Dr. Taylor will present a keynote address entitled "Why Do Gifted Education?" Drawing from his broad experience at all levels of instruction, he will offer a rationale for gifted education with research data to support the benefits of programming for these students.

His Saturday session is entitled "How to do Gifted Education." For further information and a registration brochure, contact Kathy Martinchek, consultant for gifted and talented at 547-9947.

Student gets high test score

Charlevoix High School has been notified by National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) that F. Dylan Stewart has been designated a Commended Student in the 1989 National Merit Scholarship Program.

High school principal, David Smith, announced that Stewart, a senior, placed in the top 50,000 of more than one million participants in the 34th annual Merit Program and will receive a Letter of Commendation in recognition of outstanding academic promise.

History hoedown planned

It'll be kind of a history hoedown.

The Charlevoix Historical Society is sponsoring monthly meetings focusing on the history of different segments of the area. Bill Stevens and others associated with the Barnard Grange will recap the history of the Grange at the Historical Society meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Oct. 4 at the Harsha House, near the south end of State Street.

While Grange chapters in some parts of the country have faltered in recent years, the Barnard Grange has not only endured, but has grown more lively and vital.

One of the philosophies behind the monthly history meetings is that history should be fun and entertaining, not stuffy and boring. In line with this philosophy, the Oct. 4 meeting will feature music and refreshments.

The public is invited to attend.

Senior Citizens center plans

Local senior citizens would like to be in the new senior citizens center at the corner of Norwood Road and Carpenter Street by Christmas, but say a more realistic target date is next spring.

The old Charlevoix Township Hall building has been donated as a site for a Charlevoix senior citizens' center, but money is needed to put in a barrier-free restroom, a septic system and a heating system.

"Among the fund raising activities planned are a tag day October 8 in conjunction with the apple festival and a Christmas Bazaar and salad lunch in November.

months to prepare for the shoots.

Langenhorst explained that footage shot in Northern Michigan will be used in commercials throughout the next year. She said many companies shoot commercials in California, but the production companies working on this set of commercials preferred to keep the money in Michigan.

Asked if more commercials might be shot in this area in the future, Langenhorst said she wouldn't be surprised as the area is beautiful, the production companies are growing more familiar with what's here and law enforcement agencies and other local agencies and people have been pleasant to work with.

ing light at Bridge and Clinton has been discussed.

Wiesner said he's afraid a pedestrian light might only congest things more, due to pedestrians crossing slowly or crossing at places other than the intersection.

Hoffman suggested eliminating left-hand turns toward the Beaver Island boat dock, rerouting southbound traffic off of Bridge, onto Park Avenue to State, then onto Clinton and back onto Bridge. He said that would circle traffic, right past the city's downtown parking lot.

Councilmen Alvin (Butch) Russell and Earl Muma both said they were open to making some changes, but not something as substantial as what McRae was proposing. Russell said he feels there are several small things which can be tried. Muma said he didn't want to reroute traffic around town.

Roloff also noted that the bridge is responsible for some of the traffic congestion.

"Get that bridge to stop jumping up and down. That's where your problem is," she said.

The Accumulator

They're in a basement cleaning frenzy out at my parents' house.

Old, useless stuff which has been stored in the basement for years is being evicted.

Soon, it will soon be replaced by fresh, useless stuff which will be stored in that basement for years to come. Now there's progress.

"Look through this stuff and take what you want. The rest is getting thrown out," my mother decreed the other day when I stopped by.

I glanced at the dusty boxes filled with memorabilia. Most of the stuff I had any claim to had been put in the basement back when I was in college.

I'm sure that when I stored it there, my intentions were to come and get it again as soon as I found a place to put it. Years have passed and I'm still looking.

Things have changed since I stored those things in my parents' basement. I've gotten married. I've got a home of my own. But it's full of stuff too.

I blame my wife for all the stuff cluttering our house. I've occasionally referred to her as "the accumulator."

Of course I call her that and then run before she has a chance to respond. Given an opportunity to respond, she'd start pointing out useless stuff that I've stored away. And that could get ugly. It's not fun being called a "hypocritical low-life."

Clothes tend to get stored more than they should. I pick up an ugly old shirt with a hole in it and think, "Well, it's nothing I'd wear to church, but it'd be good to wear around the house if I was painting or something."

Truth of it is, in order to wear all the old shirts and pants I've saved for that reason, I'd have to paint every day for the next five years.

I may be worse about saving a multitude of small things, but my wife tends to acquire the large scale space eaters.

A piano occupies much of the front room. She felt musically inclined. Sure, the piano's a fine instrument, but a mandolin sounds nice too. Ever try to put your piano in a case and throw it in the corner of a closet when you're not playing it?

I'm told there's an old organ in our future. It's some kind of air-powered noise maker with a bellows on it. Right now that's stored at her parents' house.

I'm not sure where that will go. Maybe I can figure a way to hang it from the ceiling. Take a look at any home. While floor space is in short supply, with the exception of light fixtures, the ceilings are pretty much empty.

But all of things we save are fine things, useful things, things worth having. My only fear is that some day, I'll have a house filled with so many fine and useful things that there will be no room left for another fine and useful thing worth having. Me.

I must report to interested readers, that the 80' "speed-boat", Haggis II will no longer be seen on our lakes. It has been sold to a gentleman from Hong Kong, who bought it for his 21 year old son, a recent graduate of Stanford. Why was the boat sold so soon? Because the original owners were made such an enticing offer that it couldn't be refused! The Haggis II will retain its original name and be transported by freighter to Hong Kong. Now you know!

Did you know that the Crooked Tree Arts Council now has four fine art teachers from Charlevoix — Cara Hochhalter, Jan Glass, Aileen Heck and Barbara Steele? (Barb's class for children age 4 to 8 begins Thursday, Sept. 29, at 3:30, at the Charlevoix Library.) Speaks well for our town.

And speaking of CTAC, jazz lovers will be thrilled to know that on Friday, Sept. 30, at 8:30 p.m. the famous musicians, Alma Smith and Friends will play all kinds of jazz at the McCune Arts Center. Tickets are $10 and you will be able to sit in the new seats! Hope to see you there.

Debate value debatable

Did Sunday's televised debate change your opinion of our two presidential candidates?

Probably not. If you liked George Bush before the debate, you probably like him even more today. If you favored Mike Dukakis, his performance probably reinforced your opinion.

Although the polls gave Dukakis a slight edge, the difference was miniscule.

I liked Dukakis's observation that the nation must take steps — he didn't say what steps — to create affordable housing for young married couples. At least he recognizes we have a serious problem in that area.

But Bush was quick to remind him that under the Democratic administration of Jimmy Carter — just two weeks before he and Ronald Reagan took office — interest rates hit 21½ percent.

The clear implication was that you don't create much affordable housing with interest rates that high. Bush didn't mention that those also were the volatile days when inflation was galloping at such a breakneck pace you had to race through the supermarket before the prices went up.

Dukakis also took full advantage of other shadows on the Reagan Administration, including the sale of arms to Iran and the diversion of profits from the sale to the Nicaraguan Contras.

Bush countered by saying that the Reagan Administration must be looked at as a whole — the sum total of what Reagan and he have accomplished in eight years, including a stronger military establishment, a nuclear arms agreement with the Soviet Union and a rock-bottom unemployment rate.

Although there was no out-and-out winner, the debate at least left the impression that a presidential campaign is, indeed, under way. Which it had better be, since the general election is less than six weeks away.

I wish one of the candidates had showed a little more spunk, a little more fire. But neither Bush nor Dukakis is a grandstander and we just might end up with a pretty good president because of it.

Considering the size of the national debt and a disastrous trade imbalance, the new president has his work cut out for him.

It is odd that Reagan, who prides himself on fiscal responsibility, is leaving the books in such a mess.

CHARLEVOIX High School held a "walk through" for parents Monday night and I thought the turnout was disappointing.

In almost every class I attended, you could count the number of parents on one hand with plenty of fingers left over.

If teachers and administrators are willing to devote an entire evening to meet with parents and talk about the school program, you would almost think parents would feel obligated to put in an appearance.

Students are heavily penalized for unexcused absences. It's a pity the same doesn't apply to parents.

INCIDENTALLY, the school notified all parents of the "walk-through" by means of a new computerized gizmo attached to the high school telephone system.

The home telephone number of each student was fed into the system and a message announcing the "walk-through" was tape recorded.

According to high school secretary Pat Drost, the equipment dialed each number automatically and the tape-recorded message was repeated to whoever answered the phone.

If the equipment picked up a busy signal, or the phone was unanswered, the number was automatically shunted aside to be tried later.

I asked Pat what would happen if the home telephone were equipped with an answering device.

"You'd have one piece of equipment making a telephone call to another piece of equipment," I protested.

Pat agreed that the answering device probably would record the call, but she didn't think it would wait for the "beep."

It's all part of living better — electronically.

Letters to the editor:

Quayle hunting

Editor,

Who can speak for the thousands of American servicemen who were killed in Vietnam? And who can speak for those who survived but still bear the scars of that war, or any war?

Jerry Genesio, himself a member of the Marine Corps for six years, spoke for his brother, Louis, in Petoskey last week. In the 60s both brothers wholeheartedly supported the U.S. undeclared war in Vietnam. Louis resigned from the National Guard, joined the Army and was assigned the job of training Green Berets in the hills of Maine near his home.

But while doing so, his conscience bothered him — he felt that he, too, should be willing to face death in combat. With Louis feeling as he did, Jerry supported his brother's decision to volunteer for service in Vietnam. In July of 1969 Louis was killed by hostile fire near the Cambodian border, leaving a wife and three children.

That same summer of 1969, Dan Quayle, fresh out of college, received his draft notice, passed his physical, then got himself in to the National Guard — whether by pull or by push! It was at a time when it was Government policy to deploy few Guardsmen outside the country and many draftees, if given a choice, would have opted for the Guard rather than slugging it out in Vietnam. However, while in law school and attending Guard meetings Dan, apparently, suffered no noticeable pangs of conscience — he continued to tout the war while many of his generation were fighting and dying in the jungles of S.E. Asia. He seemed to be a typical "let's you and him fight" kind of guy.

George Bush is making much of the fact that his running mate did not flee to Canada, did not destroy his draft card and "damn" sure did not burn the American flag. Instead, young Quayle merely wrapped himself in Old Glory, preferring not to put his boots where his mouth was. And once he got to Congress, he "damn" sure did not vote for veterans benefit bills; instead, he voted for all manner of billion dollar weapons which may or may not work but in either case net the defense contractors huge profits.

No, Dan Quayle can not speak for those who came home from Vietnam in body bags and are voiceless. And he does not speak for those who survived the jungles but need help in healing the wounds of war. Nor does he deserve to speak for those coming of age in a world bristling with nuclear weapons which if ever detonated by accident or by

THE MAYOR'S CORNER

The Mayor has the privilege to be involved in all the functions of the city, both civic and public.

I encourage the planning commission efforts to update the Master Plan. I attend the Parks and Recreation Commission, and hear their plans for improving Mt. McCauba and the beaches. I am much aware of the Zoning Board of Appeals determination to keep firm control of variances. I sit in the DDA meetings and agree on its Bridge Street goals. I am a part of the Industrial Development committee and the prospects are very frustrating and disappointing. I am urging needed changes at the Pine River Senior housing complex. I have been concerned over the Ferry Avenue development and it is good to hear that the fish cleaning station has exceeded all expectations. I want the KCB to beautify more of the city. I am promoting the recognition of Earl Young for his unique architectural designs. I participated with others to bring the Star of Charlevoix back to Charlevoix. Only a Mayor is aware of all the things going on in the town. Including what has been done and what will be done ... 1988 will be a great year for Charlevoix.

Far more qualified to speak are members of such organizations as Veterans for Peace co-founded by Jerry Genesio, who seek to point the way to a future where international differences can be settled in non-violent ways, just as are differences within our own nation today.

Camp scholarships

Editor,
Another summer has come and gone in Charlevoix. Summer means a lot of different things to different people. For the past 13 years, however, it has meant at least one thing: an opportunity for 5-12 year olds to enjoy a week at Camp McSaubia. As many people are aware, Camp McSaubia has grown to be quite a successful program. Over the past 3 years we have had well over 300 children each summer go through our program. To become a successful program did not happen overnight; it has been the result of a great deal of work and generosity from many people and organizations in our warm and caring community.

In fact over 100 campers this year were able to attend Camp McSaubia under our Scholarship Fund which many organizations have generously contributed to. This year I would like to thank the following for their support: United Way, Knights of Columbus, Kiwanis Club, American Legion Auxiliary, Charlevoix Woman's Club, Volunteer Fire Department, Charlevoix Evening Lions Club, Chuck Ferrill Memorial Fund, Round Lake Lodge International Order of Oddfellows, Veterans of Foreign War, and the Coast Guard Wives.

Counselors this summer were an important part of our strong program. I would like to thank Meg Fowler, Amy Sell, Bob Sell, David Miller, and Mark LaBlanc for all their hard work to help keep things running smoothly. Like Boss and Jo Torga of the Recreation Department were also a great help in making sure everything went well. Lastly, I would also like to thank Tom Petrie, a local juggler, who performed for the children on an overnight.

Again, it takes a special kind of people and community to be willing to put forth such a great effort to give children 5-12 years of age to benefit from a camp experience, and for that you should all be very proud!

Sausage sale instrumental to band

The Charlevoix school bands will be conducting their annual fall fundraising campaign during the next ten days. Band members in grades six through twelve will be selling variety of cheese and sausage door to door throughout the community.

This is the only door to door fund raiser which band members will be involved in during the school year.

Proceeds will be used to purchase uniforms and equipment for the instrumental music program, and to provide funds for trips, camp scholarships, and awards for band students.

Anyone wishing to purchase cheese and sausage who is not contacted by a band member is asked to call the high school band room 547-3234.

Boy Scouts organizing

The Boy Scouts of America has been preparing young people for over 75 years, to face the challenges of the future, and providing them with the opportunity to learn values that will last them a lifetime.

With the start of another school year, it is also time for the Cub Scout and Boy Scout program to get into high gear.

There are three programs available for boys from the first grade, on. Tiger Cubs is for first grade boys. A boy and his parent participate in fun filled activities once a month, in a Tiger Cub Group.

Second through fifth grade boys join Cub Scouts. The boys are members of a pack that meets monthly, and are assigned to a den that meets weekly. Cub Scouting is family oriented. The boy's parents are involved with him as he climbs the ranks from Bobcat, Wolf, Bear, Webelos, to the Arrow of Light.

Boys who are 11 years old or are 10½ and have completed the fifth grade are eligible to join Boy Scouts. Boy Scouts are members of a troop that meets weekly. They work on a series of badge requirements that provide them with a varied background of skills that they are able to use all of their lives. Camping and outdoor activities are an important part of the troop program.

Boys need no prior experience as a Scout to join, and can do so at any grade or age level.

For information on Cub Scout programs in Charlevoix contact Jim Mansen at 547-6862. For Boy Scout information contact Louis Edwards at 547-6630.

Red Cross blood deemed safe

The American Red Cross, Wolverine Regional Blood Services has announced that the national organization is entering into a voluntary agreement with the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), to emphasize its commitment to providing safe blood to the patients and hospitals in the 27-county area it serves including Charlevoix County.

The agreement follows completion of a nationwide internal review by the Red Cross of its 56 blood services regions that was initiated April 1. The effort included a review of regional operations and procedures. In addition, the records of all blood and blood products designated to be quarantined and/or destroyed over a six-month period were examined.

"Our record review found that 576,426 products were appropriately quarantined and/or destroyed out of six million total products; while 2,420 were mistakenly released," said Victor W. Schmitt, vice president, Blood Services of the national Red Cross. "Most important for the patients we serve, the review found NO indication that any Red Cross center issued blood for transfusion that had a confirmed positive test for AIDS or hepatitis B.

As part of the nationwide review, Wolverine Regional Blood Services examined its records for the past 12 months. "We had no errors that involved units of blood that tested positive for any disease, and none that involved blood that was released for transfusion," stated Dr. Mueller, Medical Director, Wolverine Regional Blood Services. "We did find two instances in which we had failed to follow our own procedural requirements. These were not serious, but we have re-emphasized our adherence to current procedures to eliminate the possibility of future errors," said Mueller.

"There is no tolerance for error in the Red Cross system," Mueller stated. "Because of its deep concern and determination to take all necessary actions to prevent such occurrences in the future, the Wolverine Region participated in the national joint Red Cross-FDA review and endorses the voluntary agreement," said Mueller.

The Wolverine Region has already taken measures to ensure that all procedures are in line with Red Cross and Federal requirements for the safest possible blood supply.

The Red Cross also stressed the need, now more than ever, for healthy donors to give on a regular basis (every 56 days), to save the lives of the unhealthy people in our communities.

Farmers Home disaster funds available

Effective Aug. 19, 1988, Emmet, Charlevoix and Cheboygan, along with the rest of the counties in Michigan, are designated as natural disaster areas where eligible family farmers may qualify for Emergency (EM) loans due to damages and losses caused by extreme drought which occurred Jan. 1 through July 28, 1988, and continuing, in all 83 counties.

Charlevoix and Cheboygan counties have also been designated for frost damage occurring from April 15 through June 10, 1988; and Charlevoix county for hail and high wind damage occurring from July 15 through July 29, 1988.

Farmers in Emmet, Charlevoix, or Cheboygan counties covered under the above disaster designations may apply for Emergency loans from the Farmers Home Administration according to Keith A. Greenwald, County Supervisor.

In order to qualify, a farmer must provide evidence of having suffered a qualifying physical loss, or a qualifying production loss of at least 30 percent of normal per acre or per animal production in any single enterprise which is a basic part of the total farming operation. Among other requirements, applicants must be unable to obtain suitable credit from other sources.

The deadline for receiving applications is April 19, 1989. For further information, contact the local FmHA office at 2206 Mitchell Park Drive, Unit 11, Petoskey, MI 49770 or call (616)347-4551.

Fall CAR CARE

TIPS... 12-point car check keeps trouble away

AAA Michigan recommends these 12 steps:

- BATTERY TERMINALS AND CABLES - Use a baking soda and water solution (two tablespoons in eight ounces) with a wire brush to clean battery terminals and cable ends, but do not splash on painted surfaces. If the battery is not maintenance-free, make sure water is at the correct level.
- TIRES - Check pressure with a gauge for correct inflation and inspect tread wear, including the spare. For accuracy, check inflation pressures when the tires are cold. A "cold" reading can be taken when a car has not been driven more than one mile or after sitting for three hours or more.
- ANTIFREEZE - Use a hydrometer to check the antifreeze strength in the radiator. Antifreeze can be checked in the overflow tanks on some cars.
- MOTOR OIL - Use dipstick to check oil level. Add oil as needed. Check owner's manual for exact intervals between changes and for SAE viscosity grade. Some car manufacturers suggest lower viscosity during winter.
- BRAKE FLUID - Keep the level within one-quarter inch from the top of the reservoir. Use a screwdriver to pry off the chamber's cover clips. Some vehicles may have screw-off caps. New models have translucent reservoirs and can be checked visually.

- POWER STEERING FLUID - Check with indicator stick usually located behind engine on passenger side. The car should be on level ground and placed in "park" position with the engine running.
- HOSES AND BELTS - Check for cracks and fraying and be sure hoses are firmly in place. Replace as needed. Test tension by pressing on the middle of each belt. If a belt gives more than 1 to 1½ inches, tighten or replace.
- LIGHTS, SIGNALS - Activate to make sure they work.
- AIR FILTER - Hold the filter up to a light. If you can't see light through it, replace it.
- WINDSHIELD WASHER FLUID - Keep the reservoir filled with solvent.
- WINDSHIELD WIPERS - Be sure wipers work well and replace if they leave streaks or skip spots.

SPORTS

Rayder running back Brian Livingston drops his shoulder to get past a Grayling defender, during last Friday night's football game.

Charlevoix won their home opener by a 39-14 score. This Friday night Charlevoix is at home again, hosting Sault Ste. Marie.

Football team wins home opener

Charlevoix clobbered Grayling in a big way Friday night in the Rayders first home game of 1988.

Five interceptions stifled Grayling's offense while four touchdown passes helped Charlevoix to a 39-14 win.

Charlevoix is now 1-1 in Michigan Huron Shores League play and 2-2 overall.

Charlevoix scored twice in the first quarter and never looked back. Jason Whitley got the Rayders first score on a seven-yard run. Brian Livingston kicked the extra point and a few minutes later scored the team's second touchdown on a 41-yard pass play from Greg Lewis.

In the second quarter, Lewis scored from the one to make the score 19-0, then passed to James Corwin for a six-yard touchdown to make it 25-0, later passed to Shawn Putman on a 35-yard play making it 31-0 and Dave Miller scored a two-point conversion making the score 33-0. Late in the second quarter, one of the referees said in jest, "If they get ahead by 50, I think we should go home."

In the third quarter, Charlevoix pushed the lead to 39-0 on a 13-yard pass from Lewis to Miller.

Miller accounted for 170 yards of offense as he rushed from scrimmage for 83 and added 87 on kick returns. Putman had four receptions for 83 yards.

Defensively, Jason and James Corwin each had two interceptions while Miller had one. Matt Cunningham had six solo tackles and three assists, Bill Sherman six solos and Mike Stoneham five solos and three assists.

Offensive linemen Tony Warhol, Jim Marquardt and Tracy Simpson were credited for their blocking.

Rayder grad leads CMU

Charlevoix alumni Bill Taylor won the 1988 Michigan Collegiate Championship cross country race in leading Central Michigan University to victory over five other Michigan Division I collegiate cross country teams.

The race was run this past Saturday at the University of Michigan. Taylor completed the five-mile course in 24:41, running alone much of the way.

Another Charlevoix graduate, Matt Peterson, also ran for Central Michigan in the race. Peterson finished 24th with a time of 26:55. A third Charlevoix grad, Douglas Bergmann, was injured and did not compete in the race. CMU is coached by Walt Drenth, also of Charlevoix.

Central Michigan University won the race with a team total of 45 points. Other teams competing and their point totals were: Western Michigan University 52; University of Michigan 70; Eastern Michigan University 72; Michigan State University 101; and University of Detroit 165.

Golfers split

Charlevoix's golf team split a pair of matches last week, beating Harbor Springs by a stroke Wednesday, but losing to Sault Ste. Marie by six strokes Thursday.

In hosting Harbor Springs at the Belvedere Golf Club, Charlevoix won with a team total of 188 compared to Harbor Springs' 189. Dan Bickerteth led the Rayder golfers with a 43 while Randy Wurst shot a 46, Matt Gibbons a 47, Tom Herriman a 52 and Jordan Spencer at 53.

In Thursday's meet at Sault Ste. Marie, Charlevoix lost 180 to 174. Spencer led the team with a 42 while Herriman had a 44, Wurst, Gibbons and Chris Pembler each shot 47.

Cross Country team continues to win

Charlevoix's cross country team traveled to Rogers City Sept. 20 for a triangular meet with Rogers City and Cheboygan.

For the Charlevoix boys' team, the word for the day was domination...flat, plain domination.

In cross country the team score is calculated by adding the places of the top five finishers on the team. The first place finisher gets a one, the second place finisher a two and so on.

The object is to get a low score. A perfect score would be a 15. In other words, your fifth runner would have to be better than even the best runner on the other teams.

In the Rogers City race, Charlevoix had a team score of 16. Scott Miller, Gehry Wiesner, Paul Wakulat and Bill Crook swept the first four places. A Rogers City runner salvaged fifth place and Dylan Stewart took fifth.

Rogers City finished a distant second in the race with 57 points. Cheboygan only had four runners, therefore they did not have a team total.

Although Julie Bush and Leigh Richardson finished first and second, Charlevoix's girls team was beaten by Rogers City 29 to 26.

Following Tuesday's race, Charlevoix participated in the Petoskey MacDonald's - Optimist Cross-Country Invitational Saturday. In the class C-D division Charlevoix's boys won both the ninth and tenth and the eleventh and twelfth grade racers.

Wakulat won the ninth and tenth grade race with a time of 17:06 to lead the underclassmen to a 76 to 96 victory over class C rival Benzie Central. Chris Meier and Matt Stargardt also finished in the top 10.

Miller finished second in the upperclassmen's race behind East Jordan's Tim Brennan. Brennan ran a 16:15 and Miller ran a 16:30. Charlevoix again beat Benzie Central, this time by a score of 46 to 47.

In the girls' race, Bush finished third and Richardson finished seventh as Charlevoix was beaten by Benzie Central 78 to 88.

Runners from 12 class C and D schools competed in the invitational.

SPORTS

Basketball team loses a pair

Charlevoix's girls' basketball team lost twice last week. Tuesday they were beaten decisively by Grayling 50-26 and Thursday edged by Petoskey 33-37.

At Grayling, Charlevoix fell behind 12-5 at the end of the first quarter and never recovered. Melissa Boss led the Rayders with seven points.

At Petoskey, the Rayders gave the Petoskey team its first win of the season. Charlevoix led by as much as nine points early in the game, but Petoskey erased that lead and after that the game was tight to the end.

Petoskey hit a free throw which proved to be the game winner with 1:06 left. Charlevoix hit a basket, but just after the buzzer sounded.

Salmon are beginning to run

Local fishermen did well on smallmouth bass this summer and salmon fishing is beginning to pick up.

In recent weeks fishermen have been catching salmon off the north pier, in the Medusa slip and even from the shoreline near the boatlaunching ramp at the Medusa creek.

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) fishery biologist Myrl Keller from the Great Lakes Fishery Station in Charlevoix said of the salmon catch, "It's been a little slow. Some (fishermen) have done well. Others have not. It's been kind of hit or miss."

Keller said it's still quite early in the annual salmon run. The first harvest at the Medusa creek fish weir took place Tuesday afternoon.

Keller estimated that the DNR will about a dozen harvests at the weir this fall and take between 10,000 and 14,000 fish.

Most fishermen have been fishing early in the morning or late in the evening. A few fishermen have started fishing at night.

Although not all fishermen have done well, some aren't complaining. One fisherman at the Medusa slip last week said he'd caught 23 salmon so far this year, ranging in size from eight to 33 pounds.

Even though it's still early in the run, some salmon have made their way through Lake Charlevoix to East Jordan and Boyne City.

At East Jordan, this will be the first year where a blocking weir at the mouth of the Jordan River will be in place for the entire salmon run. The city has constructed a large fishing pier in conjunction with the city marina at the mouth of the river.

In past years, there have been temporary weirs which didn't always work that well. The success of the permanent weir remains to be seen.

Keller said fishing from boats has been a little slow, but as the run improves, fishing will improve for both shore and boat fishermen. Keller estimated peak salmon fishing will come in about two or three weeks.

McBride award

Jeff Novotny has been chosen as the recipient of the 1988 Larry McBride Sportsmanship Award for the Charlevoix Recreation Men's Softball Leagues.

The award is given each year in memory of McBride, a superb Charlevoix High School athlete who graduated in 1964 and died in 1967 as a result of a auto accident.

The award, which is decided by umpires and scorekeepers, is given to a person demonstrating athletic ability and sportsmanship.

Torch Lake run Oct. 9

The sixth annual Torch Run benefit footrages are scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 9 at 11 a.m. at the State YMCA of Michigan's Camp Hayo-Went-Ha.

The 5 and 15 kilometer races (3.1 and 9.3 miles) start and end at the camp, located four miles south of Eastport on East Torch Lake Drive on the shores of beautiful Torch Lake. Proceeds from the event benefit the Hayo-Went-Ha Campership Fund which helps provide summer camp experiences for children from all social and economic backgrounds.

Registration for the races, as well as a non-competitive mile fun run, is now open and will continue up to race time. Registration forms are available at area sporting goods stores and physical fitness centers and can also be obtained from Camp Hayo-Went-Ha or from Race Director Dan Ulrich by calling 616-544-5915.

The race courses are run on county roads with modest to challenging hills. Course records for the 5K are 15:26 (men), 18:48 (women), and 49:39 (men), and 57:24 (women) for the 15K.

The event features age division awards, T-shirts for all entrants, a complementary chili lunch and a random drawing for a large number of prizes following the awards ceremony.

Major sponsors of the Torch Run include Republic Bank North, The Antrim County News and WLDR Radio as well as many contributors of prizes and services.

BUSINESS

Car costs per mile

How much does it cost to drive a car? AAA Michigan reports expenses stretch beyond sticker price with this year's national average cost-per-mile figure accelerating to 23 cents, up 2.3 cents since last year.

The figure includes such factors as finance charges, depreciation, insurance and license-registration fees. Adding fuel to that are gasoline, oil, maintenance and tire expenses.

Operating costs are based on a six-cylinder 1988 Chevrolet Celebrity 4-door with such options as AM-FM stereo, cruise control and rear window defogger. The expenses are computed for a car driven 15,000 miles annually and financed over four years.

Since the beginning of the decade, the cost per mile has jumped 7.2 cents.

Farm power program

Consumers Power Company is alerting farm customers stricken by the severe drought this summer that they may be eligible for special credit arrangements when it comes to paying their electricity or natural gas bills.

The drought this summer afflicted approximately 37,000 Michigan farmers according to estimates by the Federal government. The Lansing-based National Weather Service reports that this summer set a record for the number of 90-degree days and overall was the seventh warmest summer on the books, dating from 1865.

"We encourage farm customers who anticipate bill payment problems to contact us as soon as possible. Each case will be handled according to individual need," said Gene McGraw, vice president of customer services and marketing for Consumers Power. McGraw said that the utility's customer services representatives can work out bill payment extensions and recommend other avenues of credit for farm customers.

In a separate matter, Consumers Power has proposed the establishment of a statewide, private-sector-led commission to promote advanced agricultural technology, address food production problems and increase food processing. Several leading state agricultural experts will be asked to serve on the commission which will recommend specific actions to bolster the state's agriculture industry. Presently, Consumers Power is reviewing its electric rate for irrigators and power-line extension costs in an effort to further minimize irrigation energy costs.

The special commission, to be coordinated with assistance from Michigan State University, will include representatives from food processing, education, state officials and farmers. The commission is expected to begin meeting in November this year.

Consumers Power Company, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation, is Michigan's largest utility serving almost six million of the state's nine million residents in 67 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

Cystic fibrosis fundraising drive beginning

In late 1984, the Courier ran a story and photo concerning three-year-old R.J. Flowers, who was dying of cystic fibrosis. Doctors didn't think R.J. would live to see Christmas that year so family, friends and the hospital staff joined together to give R.J. an early Christmas.

It was R.J.'s last Christmas. Cystic fibrosis took his life a short time later.

Cystic fibrosis, an incurable genetic disease which affects the lungs and digestive system, is the number one genetic killer of this country's children and young adults. Each year cystic fibrosis kills more children than diabetes and muscular dystrophy combined.

Cystic fibrosis causes the body to produce too much mucus which clogs the child's lungs and intestines, resulting in severe breathing and digestive problems.

Although research and new treatment techniques have helped prolong the lives of people with cystic fibrosis, there is still no test to identify the approximately 10 million Americans who are carriers of the gene.

However, according to state cystic fibrosis campaign chairman Gene Riley, there has been a breakthrough in that scientists have isolated the chromosome which carries the cystic fibrosis gene. "We are now within one-tenth of one percent of being able to pinpoint the gene location on the chromosome," Riley said.

Vickie Flowers is the mother of R.J. Flowers. She is the chairperson for cystic fibrosis fundraising in Charlevoix. In September and October, volunteers will be soliciting door to door asking for donations to fight cystic fibrosis.

"It may be too late for my son, but there are 30,000 children and young adults still suffering and waiting for a cure," she said.

If you would like to volunteer to help with cystic fibrosis or make a donation, you may contact Flowers at 547-5445. For additional information on cystic fibrosis, write the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation of Greater Michigan, 104 N. Washington Avenue, Saginaw MI 48607.

Michigan library temporarily closed

All Library of Michigan public service activities will be halted temporarily from Friday, Sept. 30 to mid October, as the state's version of the Library of Congress completes its move into the new Michigan Library and Historical Center building in Lansing.

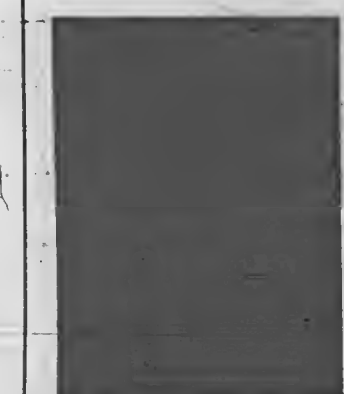

Over 5.2 million books, microfilms, tapes and related items are being relocated into the new 312,000 square foot center at 717 Allegan Street, two blocks southwest of the Capitol.

Some 27 miles of shelving has been installed to store Library materials, which go back as far as 1805. Final closing of the present Library at 735 East Michigan Avenue takes place at 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 29. The Library has been located there for 26 years.

Although the move has been underway since Sept. 8, staff members will not relocate until after the Sept. 29 closing. Reopening to the public at the new building is planned for the middle of October.

The new five-story building will not have a traditional paper card catalog. Instead authors, titles and subjects will be listed on 100 computer terminals located on all levels. Glass atria at each end of the building are 93 feet tall, permitting natural lighting through much of the climate-controlled environment.

Formal dedication ceremonies are planned for Tuesday, March 7, at noon, with a variety of dedication week activities from March 6-9. The Library's main telephone number of 517-373-1593 will change to 517-373-1580 when it reopens. Not affected by the move is the Library's mailing address of P.O. Box 30007, Lansing, MI 48909.

Roloff to run as third ward write-in

Incumbent third ward council member Shirley Roloff has decided to run a write-in campaign to retain her council seat.

In the August primary, Roloff ran for mayor, but finished third behind incumbent Ralph McRae and Gary Probert.

Roloff, who has been on the council for 10 years, announced her third ward council candidacy Monday evening. She will be opposing John Yaroch and Jim Potter who received the most third ward votes in the primary.

"I'm not ready to give up," she said. "I believe I have a lot to offer the city."

She said phone calls from people encouraging her to run were a critical factor in her decision to seek reelection.

Roloff also criticized her opponents for not attending council meetings prior to the November election.

"I don't see Jim or John at the meetings," she said. "If you want to represent the city, you should be down here learning what's happening."

Asked how she felt about the uphill struggle faced by any write-in candidate, she replied, "I feel good or I wouldn't be doing it. It is a difficult task, but I really want my seat back and I'm going to work hard for it. I hope people still have confidence and faith in me."

Three current issues Roloff sees as important are the Ferry Beach project, infrastructure repairs and upgrading the city electric system.

She favors a scaled back version of changes at Ferry Beach and says the infrastructure repairs are needed and that Charlevoix has an excellent electric system and is doing a "super job" in upgrading it to keep it that way.

Roloff noted that while Charlevoix has made several improvements in the past 10 years, "there's a lot of stuff still out ahead of us."

Roloff is 52 and married to William Roloff Sr. She and her husband have lived in Charlevoix for 14 years. They have five children. Roloff works with her husband who owns and operates Charlevoix Canvas.

Shirley Roloff

Community pool grant sought

A group of Charlevoix service clubs is attempting to take the first step toward building a $600,000 community swimming pool and indoor recreational complex.

Late last week, a group headed by the local Kiwanis Club, but also having the support of the Lions and Rotary clubs, sent in a pre-application to the state seeking a $100,000 Neighborhood Builders Alliance Neighborhood Grant.

According to the application, the remaining $500,000 would come from the tax increment financing authority ($200,000) and from a community fund raising campaign ($300,000).

Courier wins press award

The Charlevoix Courier has received a first place award for General Excellence in the Michigan Press Association 1988 Better Newspaper Contest.

Of 81 weekly and 46 daily Michigan newspapers, only six were chosen for first place General Excellence awards.

According to a Michigan Press Association news release, "General Excellence ratings, the highest professional honor for Michigan weekly and daily newspapers, were presented to Woodhaven News-Herald, South Lyon Herald, Charlevoix Courier, Detroit News, Holland Sentinel, Cadillac Evening News. These six newspapers took first place in each of their respective circulation classes."

Members of the Georgia Press Association judged the Michigan contest. Three 1988 issues of the Courier were submitted for judging.

Contest judges commended the Courier's use of graphics, photos and headlines and said the paper serves all segments of the community.

Don Dibley was Courier editor for the editions which were judged in the competition.

Charlevoix High School's 1988 homecoming king and queen will be crowned during halftime of Friday night's game against St. Ignace. ## Ahead-lines

Grandparents invited to visit school

Smiles are never cheap, but this Friday they will be plentiful at the Charlevoix Elementary School's annual Grandparents' Luncheon which will take place between 11 a.m. and 1:15 p.m.

The Grandparents' Luncheon is something which has become a popular tradition at the elementary school. Grandparents are encouraged to come into the school and visit their grandchildren during the event. At last month's school board meeting, elementary principal Vane Smith pointed out that the event has become so popular that some grandparents who don't live in Charlevoix plan their vacations so they'll be in town that day.

The question is who enjoys it more, the children or the grandparents? Comparing a child's and a grandparent's face when they find each other in the crowd offers no answer to the question. Both faces usually light up about the same.

Due to the popularity of the event and limited lunchroom serving capacity, the school requests that only the child's grandparents and not other family members attend. If grandparents are unable to attend, substitute grandparents are welcome to fill in.

Cost of the luncheon for adults is $2 and tickets may be purchased at the elementary school office. Lunch is being served only to first through fifth graders and their grandparents.

Grandparents who haven't been through a school lunch line in a few years need not worry. Your grandkid will take you by the hand and gladly show you the ropes.

Lunch menu consists of sliced roast turkey, au gratin potatoes, mixed vegetables, and fresh homemade roll with butter or pizza. Salad bar, Grandparent's welcome cake and beverages will be served with both entrees.

Grandparents should follow the assigned time according to the child's homeroom teacher. First lunch hour, 11-11:45 a.m., Mrs. Bentley, Mrs. Britton, Mrs. Hoffmann, Mrs. Mellon, Mrs. Austin, Mr. Martin, Mrs. Tillotson and Mrs. Miller (HIP). Second lunch hour, 11:45 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Mrs. Carland, Mr. Lundteigen, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Silberhorn, Mrs. Chew, Mr. Glynn, and Mrs. May. Third lunch hour, 12:30-1:15 p.m., Mr. Evans, Mrs. Smith, Mr. Cox, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Tallberg.

Kindergarten will also celebrate this special day with a visitation hour for grandparents. The morning period will be from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., and the afternoon from 1 to 2 p.m. Grandparents may stay all or part of this one hour time period.

have fresh apple pies and other baked goods for sale.

The Chamber of Commerce has arranged to have an apple cider press in operation for people to see at the festival.

Chamber of Commerce executive director Jacquie Merta said the Applefest was initiated in 1980 to bring attention to the agricultural businesses of Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet Counties. It has grown in popularity each year.

The festival takes place on the second weekend of October when the harvest is in and the fall colors are near the peak of their beauty.

People wishing to see the fall colors may take an old fashioned hayride at Lake Charlevoix Farms on the Boyne City Road or view them from Lake Charlevoix by taking a cruise on The Star of Charlevoix. Another option is a tour around Lake Charlevoix on the Charlevoix County Transit mini-bus.

Booths in the park will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

German woman visits Charlevoix

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

"I am from the German Democratic Republic. Do not say 'East Germany'." That was a plea from a recent visitor to Charlevoix.

She had just returned to her hosts' bustling kitchen after an early morning walk along Lake Michigan followed by a visit to the Charlevoix Montessori School. She had agreed to an interview with the understanding that her name, the name of her community, and the name of her hosts would not be printed. She was also not interested in an interview critical of the GDR.

"The GDR is my home. It has been my state for 50 years and I want to go on living there. It is my country, not only because I was born there, but because I am needed. Things will change, but not if everyone runs off." Her eyes sparkled with enthusiasm and amusement.

Dorothea (an assumed name) came to Charlevoix as part of a "sister church relationship" between the church in her community and the United Northern Association of the United Church of Christ, a group including Charlevoix's First Congregational Church.

Dorothea came illegally. She left her community of some 80,000 on the Baltic on the pretext of visiting West Germany. She could have arranged to travel through Warsaw Pact countries; but it would have been difficult and she would have had financial problems. When she returns after her three month trip, there will be only a few people, all within her church, who will know she visited America.

But, Dorothea is anxious to tell Americans her view of the post World War II evolution of her country into a Marxist-Leninist state. While hopeful of the promised reforms of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's "perestroika" will come to the GDR, she was extremely careful not to criticize the communist regime.

Dorothea's hosts in Charlevoix corresponded directly with her in the GDR and through the friends in the west. Her West German friends helped her obtain western currency and the church organization in northern Michigan also contributed. These contributions were significant. Her monthly pension is approximately $36. Phil Schairbaum, pastor of the First Congregational Church, explained the goal of Dorothea's visit is to help break down mutual stereotypes. To this end she is meeting with small groups of people throughout this region, discussing her life and the role of the church in the GDR.

"Ten percent of our community is Christian," Dorothea stated, explaining that although the state is officially atheistic, "They turn their back and let us function. Ten percent go to church regularly, but at Christmas all the churches are crowded," she laughed.

"Christians live in a diaspora in my state," she continued, saying that as a school teacher she could not ever speak of the church or religion in schools. "But I begin every morning in prayer that God will be merciful and I will not be afraid. And I have found my way."

"As Christians we want to

WATCH enters Dow boathouse appeal

WATCH is asking to intervene as an interested party in an appeal filed by Herbert Dow with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) administrative hearing office.

The appeal concerns a private boathouse located on the north shore of Round Lake, near the end of Burns Street. Dow has expressed a desire to renovate the boathouse and build a residential area on the second floor, over the water.

Earlier this year, the DNR Land and Water Management Division out of Gaylord denied permission to build a residence over the water. The DNR cited provisions of the inland lakes and streams act in denying the request.

"That's not a legitimate exercise of his (Dow's) riparian rights...a residential structure is not a legitimate use of a public water area," Chris Shaeffer of the DNR responded when asked, during a phone conversation with the Courier late last week, what the rationale was for denying the request. Shaeffer is chief of the DNR's Great Lakes Shoreline Section.

Under DNR administrative procedures, Dow has a right to appeal the decision. That appeal has been filed with DNR administrative hearing officer William Fulkerson.

The entire issue of appeal may end up being a moot point. Dow's attorney, Scott Beatty, said that following denial of the original plans, Dow came up with revised plans which don't call for a residence over the lake.

"We have revised plans to eliminate that as an issue because of the public concern," he said.

Beatty said the appeal is still in place, but he and Dow will have to determine if they still wish to pursue it.

No date has been set for a hearing on the appeal. In a telephone conversation with the Courier Friday, Fulkerson said he has a large backlog of cases and at this time, most appeals aren't being heard until approximately a year after they're filed.

WATCH is a local environmental group. The attorney representing them is

From 8 a.m. to noon Sunday, the American Legion will sponsor a pancake breakfast at the Legion Hall. Breakfast includes pancakes, eggs, sausage, orange juice, milk and coffee.

Linda Zietler (left) and Carol Madison are two of ten local crafts people who will participate in the 10th Annual Christmas Bazaar Saturday at the Market Mall.

Mall craft show Saturday

The Tenth Annual Christmas Bazaar will take place from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday in the Market Mall in downtown Charlevoix.

Ten exhibitors will display and have for sale craftwork suitable for Christmas gifts.

The bazaar was initiated in 1978 by local crafts people who needed a place to market their creations. The number of exhibitors is limited, but the number of talents displayed is quite broad. Stoneware, soft dolls, hand-made baskets, personalized bibs, Christmas stockings and ornaments, English sewing kits and handpainted sweatshirts are among the items offered at the bazaar.

Swimming pool proposed

The proposal calls for the city electric building on Ferry Avenue to be converted into a building which would house a 30 foot by 75 foot swimming pool and some other recreational rooms.

Backers of the proposal say it is very preliminary and subject to modification. The pre-application is only a two-page form. One page briefly explains the project while a second page deals with the organization behind the project.

If the short pre-application interests the people awarding grants, then a more detailed and lengthy grant application will be filled out later.

The Kiwanis Club will get word on the results of the pre-application by Oct. 15.

Chamber of Commerce president Suzi Reis wrote a cover letter which was included with the application. In the letter she wrote, "Our weather in northern Michigan permits only two months to use the lakes for swimming. Two months is not enough time to expose all the children to the skills and safety of living around all this water! The only winter physical activity available for the elderly is the program of walking in the elementary school after school hours. The benefit to the school children goes without saying."

The concept of a community swimming pool is one which has come up several times in Charlevoix over the years. Each time, it has failed to get off the ground.

Backers of the latest move say they are simply trying to get the ball rolling. If grant money is available, they will quickly begin fine tuning their proposal.

October's finest day

"Seize the opportunity," Clyde told himself as he looked out of his bedroom window and discovered a beautiful October morning.

October weather is a thing of contrast.

Some October days are terrible. Huge gray clouds, ugly, dark and ominous, roll in from Lake Michigan. They ride vile, cold winds which fog the earth with wolf raindrops; a wolf raindrop is a raindrop which in appearance is no more threatening than a little lamb, but when it hits your face and slush runs down your cheek, you see the wolf raindrop for the evil, nasty thing it truly is.

Other October days are magnificent; they are the finest weather the world has to offer. On magnificent October days, the air is crisp and pure. Although there is a hint of coolness in the breeze, the warm sun takes the edge off of it. These October days are something to treasure.

"Best make good use of this day," Clyde told himself. "Won't be many more before winter sets in. And I've got a million things to get done before then."

The lawn could stand another mowing before winter. If he mowed the lawn, the leaves would be easier to rake later in the fall.

He'd wanted to paint the window frames on the garage. If that wasn't done soon, it would have to wait 'til spring. Paint doesn't spread worth beans when the temperature's down around 20 degrees.

And the cars, yes the cars. Changing sparkplugs, cleaning battery terminals, greasing a few hinges would be no problem on a day like today. Not like trying to do them in the winter, be it in a cold garage or right out in the frigid outdoors. No fun being a home mechanic in winter; in the winter when working on a car involves a choice of trying to do delicate work while wearing clumsy gloves or going without gloves and trying to accomplish the task with numb fingers.

By 9 a.m. Oliver was dressed, had finished breakfast and was out in the yard chasing the lawnmower. For three hours, he pushed that thing around. And by noon, that yard was beginning to look better.

When he came in for lunch, Clyde had a feeling of accomplishment in his heart and stiffness in his back.

After lunch, his wife Carol asked him to go for a short walk with her to see the fall colors. He consented, but promised himself he'd get back to work as soon as they got back home.

It was 1:45 when they got home. Clyde decided he'd read the paper for 15 minutes and start back to work at exactly 2 p.m.

The papers were full of preview stories of the big football game which was going to be on TV at...2 p.m. Now what do you know about that.

Clyde decided to watch the first quarter. It was a great game, a game decided by a field goal in the closing seconds. Clyde saw the whole thing.

It was about 5 p.m. when the game got over. Clyde still had a little time before dark. He could do at least one, maybe two things on his chore list. Or he could go bow hunting. Nice evening, the deer would be out.

It was dark when Clyde returned from hunting. He walked out on the grass and retrieved the lawnmower from the yard which was almost, but not quite completely, mowed. He put it in the garage with the window frames which might get painted next spring. It was the same garage that would be deathly cold when he worked on cars there this winter.

It had been a nice October day.

of facility it badly needs and in a location which is ideal on the edge of the city park and the harbor. It will be visually attractive, enhance the surrounding structures and provide a place for all sorts of activities, not just weekly band concerts. You will be surprised at the number and variety of performances that will take place when you have a well designed facility for them. These will include not only local organizations but visiting groups as well, who have been denied performance opportunities in Charlevoix up until now because of no suitable venue. With comfortable facilities, good lighting and excellent acoustics, this will be a favorite outdoor performance spot in the county and will draw many people into town.

I know the project will require additional fund raising, but I predict that if this is launched energetically and enthusiastically, some of the untapped resources in the area will come through. Once the plan is officially endorsed, this challenge can be raised. I hope

Don't feed the gulls

Charlevoix Courier,

I can't understand why there are no signs in our parks to say: Please Don't Feed the Gulls!

Sea gulls make messes on the boats, rafts, and the lawns making it difficult to enjoy the grass in the parks.

Sea gull excretion adds hundreds of pounds of phosphorus per year to Lake Charlevoix; and causes unnatural weed and algae growth. Let's not add to the problem.

Let's get some signs up to inform people of the problem and keep our parks cleaner.

Take leaf of your senses

Before you take rake in hand to get rid of this year's accumulation of leaves, you might consider offering up a little prayer of thanks that you don't live in Florida.

United Press International reported last week that falling palm fronds — unlike colorful maple leaves or crisp brown oak foliage — are a danger to life and limb, not to mention any personal property that happens to be in the line of fire.

Julia Morton, an economic botanist with the University of Miami, says a dehydrated palm frond from a 20-foot-tall tree weighs about 30 pounds.

"Every month, one new leaf protrudes from the top of a palm and concurrently one old leaf turns brown and falls off," she said.

She thinks Miami is making a serious mistake by planting 248 royal palms along a two-mile stretch of South Dixie Highway. She says they will be unmanageable and dangerous.

Miami City Attorney Robert Zahner says the city probably will have to pay if someone is clunked on the head by a falling frond from one of the new trees. But he and Mike Barger, the city's public services director, think the beauty of the palms far outweighs their potential liability.

Barger says the city presently maintains 27,000 trees and is no stranger to their care and maintenance. He says the new planting will be carefully monitored.

But Morton believes the new planting poses a serious problem, particularly for night people. She explains that the fronds usually plummet earthward at night when the "plant is at a relaxed state."

I never realized that plants sleep, much like you and I, but I guess they do.

Furthermore she says the trees are being planted in the median of a busy highway.

"They have that narrow strip," she explains. "If they are going to be responsible, they are going to have to keep a big truck with a cherry picker going down the lanes constantly. That would be obstructing traffic."

Morton is particularly sensitive to the problem of falling fronds. Twice she has been called to court to testify on behalf of plaintiffs who were injured in such accidents. She said one man suffered "serious injuries" and a woman had her collarbone broken.

Complicating the problem is Miami is the fact that folks have developed a rather cavalier attitude toward falling fronds in recent years.

Up until the 1970s, residents used to keep an eye peeled for falling coconuts, which also could knock you into the middle of next week. But then a lethal yellowing disease wiped out the coconut palm "and people don't watch the palm fronds as carefully as they should," Morton complained. "There's no longer this consciousness. People are no longer aware."

For my money, the royal palm with its smooth, clean trunk, is a beautiful tree. The first time I saw one I thought it was made of poured concrete with plastic foliage. Shorter palms also puzzled me, because they appeared to be wrapped in burlap. I had to examine one up close to discover the burlap wrapper is part of the tree.

But I never realized until now that palm fronds weighed so much or that they could be so hazardous. It's something you don't read about in Florida's chamber of commerce brochures, which are pretty much confined to pictures of retired Northerners lapping up booze next to swimming pools. You never see them actually swimming, probably because of the alligators.

All of which reinforces my decision to spend another winter in the Frozen North. What with hurricanes, tornadoes, monsoon rains, water moccasins, alligators and falling palm fronds, you have to be a swashbuckling daredevil to venture south of the Mason-Dixon Line.

No wonder Ponce de Leon looked for the fountain of youth in Florida. No one down there lives long enough to grow old.

An excursion into northeast Canada

by PEG OHLE

Notes from a trip:

The Atlantic time zone, distances in kilometers, temperatures in celsius, two native tongues, and high prices and sales taxes.

That's what Bill and I found on our recent trip to the Maritime Provinces of New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Nova Scotia in Eastern Canada.

Atlantic time is one hour ahead of Eastern time, which is understandable when we look at the map and see how far The Maritimes extend into the Atlantic; quite a distance east of the eastern shoreline of the United States.

Traveling along the highways, it is difficult to remember that distances between points are measured in kilometers (.6 of a mile), so it isn't as far from here to there as we first think.

Weather readings seem colder than they really are because in celsius calculations, the freezing point is zero and the boiling point is 100.

Everything costs more than it does in the United States and the sales tax on most items other than food runs up to 10 percent.

When we begin to wonder how the average worker can feed and clothe a family, we learn that there is a "family allowance" of $25.65 a month per child, and free medical and dental care. The minimum wage is $4 an hour.

We entered the Maritime Province of New Brunswick from Calais, Maine, traveled to the city of Saint John and marveled at the Reversing Falls, where the low tides of the Bay of Fundy collide with the incoming high tides to create higher incoming waves and cause the highest make other people curious. Make them wonder about our happiness."

She lived through the World War II with bitter memories of fascism. She spoke frequently of the shame she bears for what she calls "German chauvinism." She was adamant that Germany should never be reunified, attributing the success of Hitler's expansionism to "German chauvinism."

Educated in several universities, she studied to be an English, Swedish and German translator and later studied to teach. She has taught for most of her adult life, at the high school and university levels.

"Now we have enough to eat, a flat, a job." She described post war GDR.

"The whole educational system improved, after the war, because teachers are responsible for successes of their pupils. The medical system improved because there are no doctor's fees, no hospital fees."

She said that there are only 2 private physicians in her town and admitted that the waiting rooms for state doctors are over crowded. "But you get a ticket and you know when to come back," she added.

All enterprises, businesses and schools are run on the basis of "socialist competition," she continued.

"I will give you an example. In any enterprise we have a brigade. If a worker at a machine has an idea, if he is an innovator, he must share his idea with everyone. There is no idea of making a patent and trying to make more money. If you are a good teacher you must share your ideas. There are no secrets of success," she stated.

Arguing that the medals and recognition given for good ideas were reward enough, Dorothea criticized the western emphasis on monetary and material rewards.

She enumerated what she saw as benefits of the "socialist system." "There's maternity leave for all working women, there are kindergartens, there are low rents for students, everyone can go into any restaurant, there are no sections of the cities just for the rich or the poor or the intelligentsia. In my apartment house there are professors, workers, teachers, everyone is all mixed."

Responding to questions about the economy of the GDR, she said, "We are the second economic best among the socialist states. We are second only to Hungary," she said, then dismissed Hungary as not truly socialist.

Asked how Soviet leader Gorbachev's ideas of "perestroika" or "restructuring" might apply to the GDR she began by indicating her government may be somewhat hesitant about accepting Gorbachev's ideas.

Then she listed ways she hoped Gorbachev's reforms might be applied.

"We need to have many philosophies taught in our educational system. Now pupils are only taught Marxism-Leninism."

"There is a percentage of our population that is afraid to speak out in criticism."

"Private initiative could be enlarged."

"Our economy has problems," she said describing the barker economy that undermines the government. "For example, a carpenter may do work for an electrician in trade for his work."

"Our state needs to take little steps to give private initiative back."

Dorothea's list of areas for reform were the closest she would come to direct criticism. She concluded with the admonition, "Never forget, the GDR is a Marxist-Leninist state."

Travel to the west has brought pleasure and shock she said. She was shocked by the modern art she saw in West Germany, calling it decadent. An avant garde performance of "Romeo and Juliet" with nudity and homosexuality appalled her.

"We lead more natural lives."

Trends toward "materialism" even in her own country disturb Dorothea. "Too many people adore West Germany because of its materialism," she said describing the flourishing economy of the west. "In West Germany so much food is thrown away."

As for Charlevoix, "I love the people I have met. I love the scenery. I have met mostly church people and I feel there is a large family of Christians here."

Asked what she would take back as souvenirs of her visit, she said the only things she could not take back were newspapers or magazines that might have any articles critical of her government.

...traveling through Canada

tides of any place in the world.

To make things more complicated, we were told this was brought about by tidal action originating in the South Indian Ocean sweeping around the Cape of Good Hope and then northwest into the Bay of Fundy.

A drive through the Fundy Provincial Park provided beautiful hilly scenery along with a carefully manicured golf course where wild deer were quietly "picking" apples from the trees. Along the shoreline, water-worn rocks form huge "flower pots" for grass and shrubs and trees.

We weren't far into our trip before we heard the first account of how the French-speaking Acadians were driven from their Maritime homes by the British, who questioned their loyalty. These were the people Longfellow wrote about in his "Evangeline", tracing their journey south to Louisiana, where their descendants are now called "Cajuns".

Prince Edward Island is as flat as any Midwestern plains state, but it is as neat as the people who live there. Although it is an agricultural country, the only time farm equipment is visible is when it is at work. At other times, it is put away in sheds and barns, the better to protect it from salt air damage. To help keep the island neat, there is a "Cleanup Day" on the last Saturday in May, when residents are given bags and go out to pick up the winter's accumulation of trash. Those collecting the most trash are given prizes.

Potatoes are the main crop of Prince Edward Island, and a discussion of seed potatoes and testing and marketing indicated a lot of know-how by the growers. The large market provided by potato chip manufacturers was also brought to light.

On Prince Edward Island we had our first lobster dinner—served in a church basement. Members of this Roman Catholic parish serve lobster dinners seven days a week for 14 weeks during the tourist season each year and have done so for 25 years. They have made enough money to completely renovate the church building and eating area which is now complete with a bar and organ. The organist complied with requests for many musical selections popular in the United States, including "America the Beautiful".

In the capital city of Charlottetown, we were treated to a performance by the Canadian National Ballet in a large, modern opera hall. During an intermission, we inquired of a Charlottetown resident sitting next to us how a small town could afford such a lavish building. His answer was, "It's spelled g-o-v-e-r-n-m-e-n-t."

This same man, whose name was Vesey, turned out to be the retired head of one of the largest seed companies in Canada. In his active days he traveled to the United States on business regularly and always attended the ballet in New York City while there. We could not help but wonder how many business men from Charlevoix County would attend the ballet while on business in New York.

Near the Prince Edward Island National Park, in the community of Cavendish, is the house where Lucy Maud Montgomery wrote "Anne of Green Gables", a book much loved by children, especially girls, for several generations. While the book is fiction, many of its characters are based on those who lived in the area, including her aunt and uncle with whom she lived and whose house is now open to the public.

Cape Breton Island is the most Scottish part of Nova Scotia, which is Latin for "New Scotland". It is here that the Cabot Trail winds for many miles through beautiful mountain country and seashore fishing villages and small harbors. This was one of the highlights of our trip. Once again we realized that it is the church buildings, many over 100 years old and most painted white, that do most to create a picturesque atmosphere.

Along the Beddeck River on Cape Breton, a breeding refuge for bald eagles has been established. They are kept in a sanctuary there until they are old enough to be shipped to other parts of the world, including the United States.

We walked around the town of Sydney on Cape Breton Island, a two-street town with small shops and stores and a "mall" which has a long way to go to live up to its name. The town looked like many Upper Peninsula towns, but the public buildings were large and new, again thanks to the g-o-v-e-r-n-m-e-n-t.

Halifax is the capital city of Nova Scotia, a bustling, modern seaport city. One of its three universities, St. Mary's, is a small school of 3,500 students, where some students can live on the upper floors of a tall campus building and take elevators to their classrooms on the lower floors, making it unnecessary to go out-of-doors.

Rail travelers in and out of Halifax can check into the Hotel Halifax, where the lobby houses the train station. No need to go out-of-doors here, either.

Halifax has a city park that would do justice to a world metropolis, with grass and flowers and shrubs and trees of all varieties meticulously cared for. The famous Kew Gardens in London cannot compare with it.

To make it easier for the pedestrian, names of Halifax streets are etched into the concrete at street corners—no need to search for overhead signs.

Much can be said about Halifax, its fine dining and shopping and access by ferry from Portland, Maine, but the traveler must find out for himself.

Another highlight of our trip was to visit Peggy's Cove, a small fishing village south of Halifax on St. Margaret's Bay (thus the name "Peggy"). It is a place where nature deposited boulders of all sizes and shapes but forgot to lay the top soil. The rocks stand like sentinels, some at attention, some tipsy, some feet-on-shoulders, and even some hand-to-hand. One wonders how they could have remained in these positions for centuries through storm and gale.

The village of Peggy's Cove has a population of less than 100, which never changes up or down more than a birth here or a death there. It has a lighthouse which is also the post office and a restaurant which dispenses food and souvenirs to thousands of tourists each year, and of course, a white church with steeple.

Throughout the Maritimes, and all of Eastern Canada as well, masses of fall flowers surrounded homes and public buildings and business establishments. One of the prettiest highlighted a McDonald's Restaurant.

We took note of two unusual ways of making a living in the Maritimes. At a New Brunswick seaport, fishermen were catching herring which are scaled and the scales sold for an ingredient in perfume. The roe of the same fish are sent to Japan for consumption. Along the coast of Prince Edward Island, local men "mined" for Irish Moss, which is washed on shore during storms. This variety of seaweed is used for food and is said to have medicinal qualities.

Bill and I saw all this and much more on our first bus tour—with a group of "recycled teenagers" from the Friendship Center in Petoskey. Among those aboard were Charlevoixans Clayton and Kay Smith, Ella Ingalls, Esther Miles, Lil Left, Anne Racignol, Wilma Stabnick, Maurine Loop, and sisters Helen VerMet and Edith Ladi. Judy Cockfield was the tour guide.

It was a good trip, taken at the right time of year. The food was excellent, lodgings comfortable, and scenery great. Leaving the planning of a trip and the driving to someone else just about makes up for the independence lost by not being able to stop and start when one pleases. But it does take some adjustment.

Mayor requests city attorney's resignation

Mayor Ralph McRae has asked city attorney Jeff VanTreese to resign due to a grand jury indictment brought against VanTreese earlier this year.

VanTreese intends to ignore the request and says McRae is only making it for publicity reasons.

McRae is up for reelection in November. He is opposed by Gary Probert. In the August nonpartisan primary, McRae beat Probert, but only by a narrow margin.

Responding to the charge that his request was politically motivated, McRae said he has already been hurt politically by the indictment of VanTreese and wouldn't benefit politically no matter what stand he took.

"One of those (things where I'm) damned if I do and damned if I don't," McRae said.

In June, VanTreese was indicted by a grand jury on two counts of conspiracy to possess less than 50 grams of cocaine.

Following the indictment, the city council discussed Van-

Treese's status as city attorney, but chose not to suspend or discontinue his status as city attorney.

VanTreese says no response is needed to McRae's request because it is the city council, not McRae, which retains and discharges the city attorney and all others on the city administrative staff.

In a letter regarding his request for VanTreese's resignation, McRae wrote, "What is most disturbing and ironic is that our city attorney was arrested by our own chief of police."

"These unfortunate circumstances have cast a shadow over our community. It has been an extreme burden to me personally. I have been very proud to be the mayor of Charlevoix, but this distressful situation has made me less proud."

VanTreese's arrest involved turning himself in at the sheriff's department and posting bond. Police chief Dennis Halerson was the officer who did the paperwork.

VanTreese waived arraignment following the indictment and had a not guilty plea entered for him by the court. He says that currently his attorney is gathering transcripts of grand jury proceedings and he is scheduled for a preliminary examination Nov. 7. The purpose of a preliminary examination is to determine if there is enough evidence to indicate a crime may have been committed and if there is enough evidence to indicate the person charged may have been involved.

Although McRae made his request for VanTreese's resignation public last week, not a word was said about it at Monday night's council meeting earlier this week.

THE MAYOR'S CORNER

There are five main communities or areas within Charlevoix county. These main communities include the school districts that they are in. The five communities or area centers have 93% of the total assessed values of the county. And 93% of county tax dollars paid. All parts of the county pay the same county tax millage of 4.7.

| AREA          | SEV.          | TAXES       | PERCENTAGE |
|---------------|---------------|-------------|------------|
| Charlevoix    | $188,720,450 | $886,986   | 40.77      |
| Boyne City    | 120,543,034   | 566,986     | 26.04      |
| East Jordan   | 72,276,497    | 339,699     | 15.61      |
| Boyne Falls   | 27,526,987    | 129,376     | 5.95       |
| Beaver Island | 22,208,955    | 104,382     | 4.80       |
| Others        | 31,652,232    | 148,765     | 6.84       |
| Totals        | $462,928,410 | $2,175,762 | 100.00     |

The concern is, do the communities receive county services in the same ratio of taxes paid? Very unlikely. In some services the Charlevoix area does not.

Now what about the three cities in Charlevoix County??? East Jordan has 1443 taxable parcels, valued at $23,400 ea. Boyne City has 2667 taxable parcels, valued at $31,200 ea. Charlevoix has 2664 taxable parcels, valued at $51,600 ea.

The City of Charlevoix pays 16% of the County Taxes, or $352,500.00. The City of Boyne City pays 10% of the County Taxes, or $198,644.00. The City of East Jordan pays 5% of the County Taxes, or $100,000.00.

So, there is the same question, does the city of Charlevoix get it's fair share of the money???

Dave Coey. Coey is a member of a Lansing law firm, but has a residence in Charlevoix and has kept a sail boat in the area for about 20 years.

Coey said WATCH's purpose in the case is to protect the Round Lake environment and see that Dow's construction is limited to the onshore site rather than being allowed out over the lake.

Friday, Coey said he planned to file for intervention status early this week. He said he feels WATCH will be allowed to be heard during the appeal.

WATCH president Jerry Puhl said the group wants to keep homes from being built over the north side of Round Lake.

Big Rock might be fined

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is proposing to levy a $187,500 fine against Consumers Power Company for failing, in 1985, to adequately test some electrical components at the Big Rock Point plant.

Big Rock officials say the safety of the plant was never in question and feel the proposed fine is excessive. No official decision has been made, but the power company is considering appealing the fine.

Electrical components cited by the NRC were some electrical cables and a device used to operate a valve in the containment spray system. The NRC says the components were not adequately tested. The wires and valve device were both replaced in 1987.

Charles MacInnis, Big Rock Point public affairs director, said the violations occurred in 1985 as a result of a rule interpretation by the company's previous management. The NRC ruled that interpretation was in error.

MacInnis said cables similar to those used at Big Rock had been tested and passed. The valve device had also been tested, but before, rather than after, the NRC ordered it tested.

Saying Big Rock operated for 25 years with the old cables without any difficulty, MacInnis noted, "It was not a question of function. The NRC questioned testing."

Regarding the tests, he said, "It's simply a matter of a deadline that the NRC says we missed."

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Benton R. Heisler
United Methodist Church

The transition days of autumn with their periods of warm sun and light breezes that accentuate the beautiful color around us, and the cold rainy-weather which sends us scurrying to the thermostat or wood pile, seem to trigger an inner message. Prepare.

Windows are caulked. Wood is stockpiled. Summer "toys" are put away. Visions of glistening snow and crisp cold mornings creep into our thoughts.

Other preparations are also underway. Through faithful worship, prayer and study, Christians continually prepare themselves for service. As servants of God we pour ourselves out upon the lives of others. But such "emptying" requires regular moments of "refueling."

These moments of refueling are the moments we spend alone in prayer, study and meditation and our celebrations together in corporate worship. Psalm 46 tells us that "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble (vs. 1).

We don't always know when the "trouble" will be present or what form it will take. But, we have been assured that God's grace and love will be sufficient for whatever challenge we face. The life and teachings of God's son Jesus Christ are the evidence for such confidence.

Psalm 46 closes by saying, "Be still, and know that I am God" (vs. 10). In our stillness our preparations will be made complete.

In our stillness we can be profoundly aware of the presence of God. This presence gives strength where we are weak, comfort when we are sad, and hope in the midst of despair.

As we prepare for the passing of mild temperatures and the arrival of winter's icy blasts, let us also prepare our hearts and lives for the love of Christ and be ready to share it with others.

Barbara Timms

On Oct. 5, 1957, she married Robert N. Timms in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Timms had worked as a waitress at several Charlevoix area restaurants and for the past 8 years she was an Avon representative for the Charlevoix area. She was also Charlevoix County chairperson for the Republican party.

Mrs. Timms is survived by her husband; one son, Robert N. of East Jordan; two daughters, Tammy Timms of Charlevoix and Marjorie Walker of Charlevoix; one granddaughter, Stacey Timms; longtime friend Esme Crandall Beals, who came from Wind Ridge, Pa. to be with her.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society or the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

SPORTS

Football team loses in last quarter

Although they played tough and led for most of the game, the Rayder football team ended up with a painful 19-12 loss to visiting Sault Ste. Marie last Friday night.

Charlevoix scored with five seconds left in the first half on a two-yard run by Brian Livingston. That 6-0 lead held up until Sault Ste. Marie tied the game with three and a half minutes left in the third quarter.

Two Sault Ste. Marie touchdowns in the fourth quarter were the Rayders' demise. The Sault scored on a four-yard touchdown run with 10 minutes left and added a touchdown on a three-yard run and kicked an extra point with four minutes left.

Two Sault Ste. Marie interceptions stifled Rayder drives in the fourth quarter. Turnovers hurt the Rayders. Sault Ste. Marie defenders picked off three Rayder passes and recovered one fumble on the night.

For Charlevoix, the highlight of the game was a long kickoff return for a touchdown by David Miller midway through the final quarter. Going north and south, the return measured 90 yards. But Miller took the scenic route, weaving across the field through the Sault Ste. Marie defense until he found a path to the endzone.

This Friday evening is homecoming for Charlevoix. They host undefeated St. Ignace which handed Cheboygan their only loss last Friday.

Charlevoix defensive back Brian Livingston (31) bumped the receiver before the ball arrived on this play last Friday night. Livingston quickly pulled his arms back, but still was called for pass interference. It didn't make any difference as the receiver caught the ball.

Brian Livingston (31) looks for a means of escape from two Sault Ste. Marie defenders as Jason Whitley (35) attempts to block for his teammate.

Boys cross country team still winning

Charlevoix's boys' cross country team beat visiting Sault Ste. Marie, but the Rayder girls' team lost last Tuesday.

In the boys' race, Scott Miller finished first and Gehry Wiesner second in leading the team to a 21 to 37 victory. Miller ran the three mile course in 15:24 while Wiesner finished in 15:56. Other runners in Charlevoix's top five were: Paul Wakulat, fifth in 16:38; Bill Burns, sixth in 16:46 and Dylan Stewart, seventh in 16:48.

Jennifer Bush won the girls' race in a time of 20:30, but the team lost 23 to 32. Leigh Richardson finished fourth in 21:13 while Inga Messiner, Tracee Smith and Barb Haggard finished eighth, ninth and tenth with times of 21:43, 21:49 and 23:07.

Bush and Richardson have run well all year. Injuries have hurt the depth of the Rayder girls' team.

A bright spot in last week's race is the decreased time gap between the team's second and third place runners. A few weeks ago, approximately two minutes separated Richardson and the next Charlevoix runner. Last week, only a minute and a half separated Richardson and Messiner with Smith only six seconds behind Messiner.

This Saturday, Charlevoix will host the Claire Martin Invitational at the Belvedere Golf Course.

Girls basketball wins close game, but then loses big

Charlevoix's girls basketball team squeaked out a victory over Boyne City last Tuesday night, but got trashed by Cheboygan Thursday night.

At Boyne City, Billie Jean Habel only scored one basket in the entire game, but she picked her spot well. She got the game winner in the 34-32 win with four seconds left.

The win was Charlevoix's third of the season, but it was costly. Starting point guard Stacy Gebott, who led the team with 13 points, injured her knee late in the game and is expected to miss several games.

Thursday, Charlevoix hosted Cheboygan and had a game like a roller coaster ride. Things were looking up at the beginning, but then came down with a terrible whoosh as the Rayders ended up losing 52-22.

Charlevoix jumped out to an 11-1 lead, but then folded under Cheboygan's full-court press defense.

Charlevoix will travel to Rogers City Thursday night.

Melissa Boss led Charlevoix's

Grandvue recognizes work of auxiliary group

A luncheon recognizing the efforts of the Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary during its 19 years of operation was hosted at the facility by the Charlevoix County Board of Social Services recently.

Highlight of the meeting was the presentation of a plaque of appreciation to the Auxiliary to Ruth Ann Knysz, Auxiliary president, by Richard Tillen, representing the Charlevoix County Board of Social Services, which governs the facility.

In making the presentation, Tillen commended the Auxiliary for its efforts in raising funds to better the atmosphere for the patients. "You have given of your time and your labors through the years, but more importantly, you have given of yourselves, because you care. It is this 'humanness' that makes your Auxiliary," Tillen told the gathering.

Tillen then mentioned the larger of these projects financed by the Auxiliary through its Tag Days, card parties, and other events. Among them have been the renovation of the beauty parlor three Century tubs at a minimum of $2000 each, physical therapy equipment, refurbishing the day rooms, wheelchairs, television sets, card tables and chairs, and many other items. The Auxiliary's most recent contribution went toward the new furniture in the dayroom and entryway.

Mrs. Regina Shafer, Administrator of Grandvue, welcomes guests and expressed her appreciation to the Auxiliary for its continued work in behalf of the facility and the patients.

Helen Deming, social worker, gave a brief history of the Auxiliary, which was organized in 1969 under the guidance of Bonnie Starback and Lola Steinbrecher of Boyne City.

Jane Mayhew of the Board of Social Services presented corsages to past and present presidents. Forty members and guests were present for the luncheon.

Flowers for the event were contributed by the Jordan Valley Greenhouse.

Ellen K. Zienert has been named human resources director, succeeding Timothy P. Hagan who was recently promoted to director of nuclear training in the utility's Jackson, Michigan, general office. Zienert is responsible for managing all personnel and safety activities at the plant.

Zienert, 36, is a Battle Creek native and a graduate of Albion College. She earned her MBA from the University of Michigan in 1977. She joined Consumers Power Company in May 1977 as a personnel advisor in Jackson and served for five years as human resources administrator in Lansing and Adrian. In her most recent assignment, Zienert worked as employee issues and information administrator in the general office.

Welcome new surgeon

Marc E. Lame, M.D., general surgeon, has joined the practice of Merle Plagge, M.D., general surgeon, in Charlevoix.

Lame has recently completed a six-year residency in general surgery at Pontiac General Hospital in Pontiac, MI. He has a special interest in vascular surgery and is certified in laser surgery.

He will fill a need in the area for surgical specialists. Dr. Plagge has been serving the Charlevoix and surrounding area since 1974. Both surgeons are on the staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

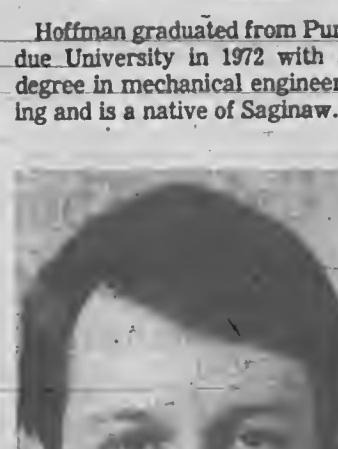

Lame and his wife and two children will reside in Charlevoix. His office is at 723 Park Avenue, phone 547-2812.

Henry M. Hoffman, 41, has been named maintenance superintendent. He has overall management responsibility for mechanical, electrical, and instrument and control maintenance activities at the plant.

He left the company in 1985 to work for Florida Power & Light Company as an electrical maintenance supervisor at the Turkey Point nuclear plant in Florida City, Florida. He returned to Consumers Power in August of this year, one month prior to accepting the promotion and transfer to Big Rock Point.

Council members criticize McRae for comments on city attorney

At the end of Monday evening's council meeting, mayor Ralph McRae maintained that he plans to call a special council meeting at 7 p.m., Thursday Oct. 13 to discuss the status of city attorney Jeff VanTreese. Earlier Monday evening, some members of the council indicated they might not show up for the special meeting.

Earlier this summer, VanTreese was indicted by a grand jury on charges of conspiring to possess cocaine. Shortly after the indictment, the council discussed VanTreese's status as city attorney. At that time, the majority of the council members felt that like anyone else, VanTreese should be considered innocent until proven guilty and that no council action should be taken until after the case is resolved one way or another in court.

That decision held until approximately two weeks ago. While council members were downstate at a convention, McRae issued a letter asking for VanTreese's resignation.

VanTreese has said he plans to ignore McRae's letter and resignation request. VanTreese has waived arraignment on the charges. He is scheduled for preliminary examination in district court Nov. 7.

Although McRae's request was made prior to the council's Oct. 3 meeting, nothing was said of it at the meeting.

Councilman Norm Probert asked for copies of the city attorney's contract with the city to be given to council members so the matter could be discussed at this past Monday evening's work session.

However, prior to Monday evening's work session VanTreese sent a letter to the city saying that he could not attend

Monday's work session and asking the council not to discuss the matter until the Oct. 17 council meeting when he could be present.

Probert noted which sections of the contract he wanted to discuss, but said he felt the council should honor VanTreese's request not to discuss the matter until next Monday evening when he can be present.

Although the rest of the council concurred with Probert, McRae attempted to read a prepared statement on the matter.

He was about two sentences into his statement when Probert interrupted and pointed out that council members had just indicated they didn't feel the matter should be discussed until next Monday when VanTreese could be present.

Inaccurate figures used in bandshell discussion

Although it was a work session and they could take no formal action Monday evening, council members, at the request of mayor Ralph McRae, said they would consent to the old bandshell in East Park being demolished this fall.

They made the decision based on lists of costs and fundraising figures passed out by mayor Ralph McRae and information from McRae indicating funds for the new bandshell are within $9,000 of the amount needed to finance the $126,000 project.

However, when the figures McRae presented were added up by the Courier following the meeting, they didn't add up to the same figures discussed by the council.

McRae's list had an estimated bandshell cost of $115,200 plus $11,500 for cost overruns for a total estimated cost of $126,700. By Courier calculations, using McRae's list of figures, the total cost would be $126,500.

McRae had the total amount of contributions currently pledged to the bandshell totaled at $103,324. Adding the same figures, the Courier got a total of $93,324.

McRae called for the Downtown Development Authority to contribute $32,079 to the project. Adding that to his figure of $103,324, he came up with $135,403 in funds available. Under a separate category titled "further contributions" McRae listed $7,000 in cash and $8,000 in labor.

When that $15,000 was totaled with the rest, his final total came out at $150,403. The Courier total there was $140,403.

Council members said DDA money is already committed to other projects such as sidewalks and added that they don't want to see DDA money involved in the bandshell.

McRae contended that public bathrooms and other benefits of a new bandshell make it suitable for DDA funding.

Councilman Norm Probert was the only council member who said demolition of the old bandshell should not begin this fall. He said the bandshell committee should have all funds and finances ready for a new bandshell before any demolition takes place on the old bandshell.

Earlier in the discussion, other council members expressed sentiments similar to Probert's, but McRae persuaded them that according to his figures, even without the $32,000 from the DDA, the bandshell fund has all except $9,000 of the money needed for the project.

According to Courier calculations, the project is at least $19,000 short of $126,000.

Ahead-lines

Pool grant may trigger discussion

Proponents of a community swimming pool are anxiously awaiting word on the status of a state grant they have applied for. An answer to a preliminary application, filed at the end of last month, is expected by the end of the week.

The pre-application was made to the Neighborhood Builders Alliance Neighborhood Grants program. A pre-application is simply a brief summary of the proposed project which according to the proposal is a community swimming pool which would be built in a building near Ferry Beach. The building currently houses the city electric department.

Along with the project summary, a certain amount of money is requested. The swimming pool pre-application requests a grant of $100,000. In this grant program, $100,000 is the maximum possible award on any single project. The typical grant award in the program is expected to be between $20,000 and $50,000.

By Oct. 15, the state grant committee will respond to Charlevoix's pool proposal. They will either say, no the project isn't eligible. Or, yes the project may be eligible and the proposal should proceed to the next step in the application process.

The next step would be for a complete and detailed application to be submitted.

The pre-application dealt in general concepts. It proposed a community pool with an estimated cost of $600,000. To fund the project, the proposal called for a $100,000 grant, $200,000 from the city's tax increment financing authority and a $300,000 fundraising campaign.

The next application will have to supply details. To supply that information, people in the community are going to have to seriously discuss how they feel about a community pool, who should run it and how it should be funded.

There are many questions which will have to be answered. Some of those questions are addressed by pool proponents in a letter to the editor on page 5.

One of the primary questions will be where will funds to operate the pool come from. Pool proponents suggest the possibility of a one-third mill property tax increase. While that increase would only cost the owner of a $40,000 home another $5 or $7 annually, that $5 or $7 would be on top of $1,022 in annual property taxes that homeowner is already paying. Whether the pool is worth the increase is something people will have to debate and decide.

The grant preapplication had to be made by a service organization. The Kiwanis Club consented to being the organization which applied for the grant. The Lions and Rotary clubs also endorsed seeking the grant.

At this time, the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation is serving as a depository for funds donated toward a community pool. Foundation officials say that although a community pool isn't one of the group's definite goals at the moment, it could end up being a long range goal or is some other group initiates a drive, money deposited toward a pool would be turned over to that drive.

... council & McRae differ

Roloff told McRae, "If you have something to say about him (VanTreese), say it directly to his face.

McRae said he didn't want to wait until next Monday and was going to call a special meeting for Thursday night.

Roloff said she can't be there Thursday night as she has another commitment. Other councilmembers also indicated they might have other commitments.

Council members and audience members were critical of McRae for his continued attempts to discuss the matter.

Councilman Earl Muma accused McRae of attempting to go behind the backs of the council members with his recent letter. Muma also said he didn't want McRae to read the prepared statement and suggested that if McRae wanted to release the statement, he give it to the press after the meeting, but as Ralph McRae, not as the mayor of Charlevoix.

Audience member Chris Papineau accused McRae of circumventing rules.

"Where do you get off sitting there and thinking you're the king of this city?" Papineau asked.

"I'm not," McRae said. He then added that he'd had meetings with VanTreese prior to drafting the letter requesting the resignation, but local newspapers had not written of the meetings.

Audience member Billie Smith questioned if McRae was bringing up the VanTreese issue because of the coming election in November.

"If you're using the city attorney as a political platform, that is terrible," Smith said.

Shortly after issuing the letter, McRae denied that it was politically motivated.

Kids visit pumpkin patch

by PEG OHLE

October is the best month of the year for Clayton and Kay Smith of Smith's Little Acres, just south of town on U. S. 31.

It's pumpkin time for the Smiths, whose fields this year yielded more than 1,300 pumpkins which they will sell for holiday ples and decorations, but mostly for Jack-o-Lanterns to delight little boys and girls.

"I like growing pumpkins," Clayton says, "not only because they seem to thrive in any weather, but because it's fun to watch the kids pick theirs out."

The field in front of the Smith's house is filled with pumpkins which are watched over by a cantankerous wooden horse and rickety wagon and sentinel shocks of corn.

A few of the pumpkins have been engraved with the names of the Smiths' grandchildren and other close small friends. The names were engraved by Clayton about a month ago, using an electric screw driver to scar the skin of the pumpkins along the lines of the previously sketched-in names. The pumpkins were left on the vines to grow some more, with the result that the names also grew and became an integral part of the pumpkins.

Smith's Little Acres was also visited last week by first graders from the Charlevoix Elementary School, who had a nature lesson in Smith's little museum and learned about old-time farm tools on display in his big barn. The farm is an interesting place to visit any time, but right now it's at its best.

Why wood it be that way?

"The lumber industry is run by men and men are fools," Beverly Grobel fumed.

Beverly's latest hobby was woodworking. A list inspired her to take up this hobby. She had a list of things she wanted built for the house and her husband Floyd had been slow to build things on her list. Her patience at an end, Beverly decided she'd just learn how to use all those noisy tools in the basement so she could build things herself. That'd show him.

Beverly was a fine seamstress and she felt that if a person could sew, they could also learn woodwork. There's not much difference between sewing and woodwork. In sewing, you put pieces of fabric together with needle and thread. In woodwork, you put pieces of wood together with hammer and nails.

So after finding a book with instructions explaining how to make a little step stool, Beverly went out and bought some wood.

Right away, she saw a chance to apply her sewing background. In sewing, you always have a paper pattern for what you're making. It just made sense that having a paper pattern would also make a wood project go smoother. She dug out a big piece of drawing paper, a measuring tape and a pencil. While reviewing instructions which called for this cut on a 2 by 4 and that cut on a 1 by 6, she carefully drew and cut out a paper pattern.

After completing the pattern, she put a board on the table and laid a piece of the pattern over it so she could trace lines for cuts. At that moment, she made an infuriating discovery. The paper didn't fit on the board.

Floyd wandered into the kitchen and stumbled into trouble. "How's it going?" he asked. "These boards aren't the right size," Beverly grumbled.

"They look like regular boards to me," Floyd said.

"No they aren't," Beverly replied sharply. "See this board here," she said, waving a 2 by 4 menacingly. "It's supposed to be a 2 by 4. That's 2 inches by 4 inches, right?"

"Kind of," he muttered. "I measured my paper at four inches and it's too big. This board isn't even 3 and a-half inches wide," she sputtered. "I'm taking it back to the lumber company. They're not going to shortchange me and get away with it."

Floyd offered a feeble explanation about how modern day lumber is usually a little smaller than the dimensions used for reference purposes. That's why a 2 inch board is only about 1 and a-half inches thick."

"Why do they do that?" she demanded to know.

"I'm really not sure," Floyd said, stepping back to keep some space between himself and his wife's 2 by 4.

"I'll tell you why they do it," Beverly hissed. "It's because the lumber industry is run by men. If women ran it, things would be different."

As she spoke, she shook the board and kept moving forward until she had Floyd backed into a corner of the kitchen.

"If women ran the lumber industry," she stated, "a 2 by 4 would be a 2 by 4, not a 1 and a-half by a 3 and a-half."

"I'm sure it would," Floyd graciously conceded, keeping an eye on the lumber hovering near his head.

"You're just lucky, sewing material isn't measured that way," Beverly seethed. "If I sewed you clothes with fabric measured like lumber, you'd freeze off exposed body parts in the dead of winter."

The ugly tale of the tape

What are we going to do about supermarkets which insist on totting up our grocery bills on those newfangled gadgets built into their checkout counters?

You know what I mean. There is a star-shaped opening in the counter with a little red light inside. When the clerk draws an item across the star, a Universal Product Code (UPC) on the package automatically records the price and identifies the item, flashing the information on a screen above the cash register.

You are supposed to hear a beep everytime an item passes over the star.

At least half the time, however, the system doesn't work and the checkout clerk has to draw the package over the star several times before the price is recorded. If she can't get a beep, she has to punch the price into the cash register by hand.

Frozen foods, seem particularly troublesome, probably because frost blurs the code.

But sometimes the system works too well and you hear two beeps.

Several times in recent weeks these little robots have tried to rip me off. Once I bought a grocery item that was on sale, which was the only reason I bought it. But the equipment hadn't been programmed for the change and I was charged the regular price.

At another store, I bought paint on sale and was dismayed when the machine asked for more money than I had in my billfold. When I protested, the clerk angrily summoned a stock boy who hurried to the back of the store to check the shelf price. He returned to report that that particular brand of paint was indeed on sale, but no one had told the computer.

On two other occasions, the device charged me twice for a single item.

Sunday night, for example, Judy dispatched to a grocery store equipped with UPC scanners to purchase a few items which we had neglected to buy during our regular Saturday shopping expedition. Needless to say, our regular store still has friendly checkout clerks who add up our bill the old-fashioned way.

As I proceeded down the checkout lane I noticed two beeps instead of one when the clerk dragged a bag of kitty litter over the magic star. I was puzzled, but the girl didn't say anything so I held my peace. I hate to make a nuisance of myself in public.

But when I checked the cash register receipt, sure enough, I had been billed for two bags of kitty litter instead of one.

When I brought the error to the clerk's attention, she seemed a little miffed, particularly when I told her I had heard two distinct beeps when she rang up the kitty litter.

"You should have said something at the time," she responded wearily. "Now you'll just have to go back and get another bag of kitty litter."

"But I don't want two bags of kitty litter," I objected. "I just want one. I'd like my money back."

The girl sighed and sent me to another counter where my $2.29 was refunded.

I had the impression that I wasn't the first person to run afoul of the Universal Product Code at this particular store and I shudder when I think of the dozens of times I have gone through checkout lanes equipped with UPC scanners without double-checking my cash register receipt.

But I won't do it again. If you must shop at a UPC market, it might be a good idea to take along a hand-held calculator and enter the price of each item as you put it in the grocery cart.

If you come within a couple of bucks of what they ask you for at the checkout counter, consider yourself lucky.

Don't get me wrong. Progress is great. But in the case of price codes and scanners, technology has gone too far.

Let's close the patent office.

Letters to the editor:

Pool support

Dear Editor:

I hope the entire community of Charlevoix will support the service clubs, led by Kiwanis, in their 40-year quest for an indoor pool for Charlevoix the Beautiful. Several interested citizens have prepared the following questions and answers regarding an application to the State of Michigan for $100,000 to convert the City Electrical Plant at Ferry Avenue to an indoor pool.

If the pre-application is accepted, we will be notified October 15, 1988 with application forms for the next phase which must be submitted by Nov. 15, 1988.

We are in competition with other communities and on Jan. 15, 1989, we will receive notice about the results of the applications.

Anyone who wishes to assist with the project, please call 547-2101 and leave your name and telephone number.

Suzi Reis, President
Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

1. Why now?

Neighborhood Builders Alliance grant pre-application deadline of 9-30-88 for non-governmental organizations dictated immediate action.

Educational Enrichment Foundation long-term goal of swimming pool (and theatre) has received support recently, as follows, for pool:

- Recent Kiwanis contribution of $500 for pool
- $5,000 from Waterfront Art Fair for indoor pool

- Michigan Equity Program grants ($6.2 million is available) must be submitted by governmental agencies by Nov. 1, 1988 for possibly another $100,000.

- Latest Charlevoix School District survey shows strong voter support for an indoor pool, stronger than track mileage which passed recently. Two things happened since straw vote failed several years ago - East Jordan and Harbor Springs have successful pools.

- By the time fund raising campaign is ready to kick off, North Point should be preserved and band shell should be funded.

2. Why electric plant at Ferry Beach?

NBA grand pre-application used the description, "...creative use of existing buildings" as an important criteria Ferry Avenue is part of Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) where increased taxes are captured as result of development of Foster Boat Works and Northwest Marina. If these funds are made available, it will be views by many as returning this money to the community to enhance the safety and health of young and old.

Several years ago a site selection committee, after reviewing 14 criteria, chose Ferry Avenue as the best location for a community pool.

The light plant has a south-east exposure which, according to pool architects, is important to indoor pools

Once Ferry Avenue is relocated, the light plant will be on the edge of the city's largest parking lot which is used little those months of the year when indoor pool use is heaviest.

Ferry Avenue beach is the Charlevoix area "swimming hole" - our most popular beach. Swimmers who are greeted by cold water or inclement weather when planning an outing at the beach can find warm water in the pool and shelter from the prevailing winds on the sun deck.

A sketch showing conversion of light plant was available to submit with application. It was drawn several years ago when community was looking at site for pool-teen center.

Finally, energy conservation is an important factor when considering pool location and locations - near water - offer advantages because of recent heat pump developments.

3. Why not at high school like East Jordan and Harbor Springs?

See answer 2 - plus greatest benefit an indoor pool can provide for our community "surrounded by water is teaching of water safety and this should be done at an early age (e.g., drown proofing is recommended for the fourth grade). Therefore, even if the pool is located at the high school, middle school and elementary school students would still have to be bussed. Light plant is within biking or jogging distance of the high school (about the same distance as the town library)

4. If pool funding for construction is successful, how will operating expenses be funded?

A survey of nearby pools indicates an operating millage, renewable every five years, is most likely method of funding. If a one-third mill is voted, the owner of a $40,000 home would pay $7 a year; one-third mill on an $80,000 home would cost $14 a year.

5. How can the voters be convinced to support such a millage?

See question 7 - "What will indoor pool do for me?" We should provide more to do for the young and elderly during winter months.

Because of the Homestead Act, most of any tax increase would be rebated to Senior Citizens.

6. Why have the service clubs, led by Kiwanis, made this application with NBA?

An indoor pool for Charlevoix area has been a goal of Kiwanis for 40 years. In 1936, $15,000 was offered to the school board for the purpose of assisting in the construction of a swimming pool for the youth of our community.

Service clubs are dedicated to make their communities better places in which to live. In fact, "they perform community service beyond the capability of government." (Quoted from the definition of a Kiwanian).

Service clubs exist to serve. That's why they're called 'service clubs' and that's why Lions and Rotary agreed to help Kiwanis with their long time goal.

7. What will an indoor pool do for me?

If you're an ordinary citizen, you must be aware of the growing emphasis on physical exercise. Swimming is by far the most beneficial with the least side effects of all forms of exercise.

If you're a student, learning to swim is essential if you're to enjoy the many water sports in the Charlevoix area. While safety and health are the main reasons for a pool, recreation is certainly important. In fact, competitive swimming may be possible inter-city and even intra-city now that East Jordan and Harbor Springs both have indoor pools.

If handicapped or recovering from an injury or illness, swimming may be the best form of exercise for you.

Pre-schoolers develop confidence and physical coordination in addition to being protected against drowning accidents.

If a senior citizen, swimming or water exercises can give you a great sense of well-being.

Lola Koontz brushed up on math with her second grade granddaughter Jessica Koontz during the annual elementary school grandparents' luncheon last Friday.

Grand parents get good attendance marks

Hundreds of grandparents converged on Charlevoix's elementary school last Friday for the annual grandparents luncheon. School principal Vane Smith estimated that the cafeteria served in excess of 700 lunches Friday.

The grandparents luncheon started several years ago and provides grandparents an opportunity to visit the school and gives the children a chance to show their grandparents around the school. In recent years, the luncheon has been held on Friday so grandparents living out of town can coordinated it with a weekend visit.

Smith said the lunch periods last about 45 minutes, but after lunch most of the children tow their grandparents around to show them other parts of the

Firemen to host Halloween party

Charlevoix's city firemen will be hosting a Halloween Party at Staffords Weathervane Restaurant from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23 to raise funds toward a new rescue truck.

Costumes are optional, but there will be a prize for the best costume and there will also be a door prize.

There are 300 tickets for the event selling for $15 each or $25 for a couple. Tickets can be purchased from local firemen or at the fire hall.

Good food and entertainment are the event's main drawing cards.

Technically speaking, Staffords is providing an hors d'oeuvres table, but realistically when you look at what they're planning to serve it's more like a full-bore buffet for the person who views eating as no small nor casual matter. The menu includes smoked whitefish, sliced tenderloin, a round of beef, smoked ham with biscuits, stuffed mushrooms, bratwurst and bourbon sauce, fresh vegetables, a variety of cheese and spreads, fresh fruit kabobs, complimentary coffee all evening and desserts added to the table at 8:30. There will also be a cash bar.

Larry Wojcik and his 17 piece band will provide entertainment for the evening.

"We think we're putting on quite a party," said Jim Elliot, one of the event's organizers. Proceeds from the Halloween Party will go toward purchasing a fire department rescue truck. Fundraising for the $70,000 truck began earlier this summer and the fire department is within $9,000 of their goal.

The truck will be a first response unit for major accidents. It will carry 200 gallons of water, cutting equipment, various jacks, airbags, lights and a generator.

Right now, the fire department has the equipment for the truck, but the equipment is spread out on several different vehicles. The rescue truck will consolidate the equipment on a single vehicle and improve emergency service and response time.

Firemen hope to complete fundraising soon and order the truck in time to have it in Charlevoix by some time next spring.

County continues to discuss solid waste

by PEG OHLE

"Decision on Antrim County Proposal" is one of the items on the agenda of the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Committee which will meet this Thursday evening, October 13, in the Commissioner's Room of the County Building.

This will be the first time that accepting waste from Antrim County into the Charlevoix County Landfill has been formally considered by the committee. Waste Management, Inc., which operates the Charlevoix landfill, requested some time ago that such permission be granted, and some Antrim County officials would like to see an agreement reached.

The Solid Waste Committee has been working for almost two years on a solid waste disposal plan for Charlevoix County, which includes use of the landfill in Eveline Township. To date, the committee has been in favor of depositing waste from only Charlevoix and Emmet Counties into the landfill.

However, at a recent meeting between County Planner Larry Sullivan and Solid Waste Committee Chairman Tom Wieland and several Antrim County representatives, some arrangement for Antrim County to be included also was discussed.

According to Sullivan, Antrim County has three immediate possibilities for waste disposal: Use the Crawford-Otsego Landfill, send part of its waste to Charlevoix (three or four northernmost townships as has been done in the past), or send all of its waste to Charlevoix.

In order for any part or all of Antrim County to send its waste to the Charlevoix County Landfill, such provision must be written into the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Plan. If Antrim County makes the request as anticipated, it will be up to the Solid Waste Committee to decide whether or not to grant it.

There are only four licensed landfills in northern Michigan - in Charlevoix County, Crawford-Otsego Counties, Leelanau County, and in Manistee County. Sullivan calls this situation a "house of cards" which could fall into a calamitous situation if any one of the landfills should cease to operate for any reason.

It is only prudent, he points out, that Charlevoix County prevent its landfill from over-use by others.

Another item on tomorrow night's agenda is "Review and Approval of Charlevoix County Solid Waste Plan", which has appeared on the agenda for the last several months.

Park City, the move was a smooth one.

Finding a house was another story. It was a fruitless hunt until one day the Smiths stumbled on a 3200 sq. ft. building under construction. Some of you may wonder why Steve was wearing a Charlevoix t-shirt? Because his wife, Sue Broder, summers with her parents on Evergreen Point!

"Never say anything like it, and I've been fishing all over the country!" one sportsman enthused. Not only is the station spotlessly clean, it's efficiently designed and convenient. ## SPORTS

Charlevoix's defense spent Friday evening pursuing St. Ignace running backs who proved too quick to be easily tackled. In this photo James Corwin (22) and an unidentified Rayder tackler pull down a Saints ball carrier as David Miller (21) and Jason Parrish close in to assist.

Paul Wakulat and Gehry Wiesner lead a pack of runners up a Belvedere Golf Course hill during this past weekend's Claire Martin Cross Country Invitational Race. Wakulat finished third and Wiesner sixth overall in the race.

Football loss

Charlevoix's homecoming queen candidates were cute. The football game was ugly.

Charlevoix's varsity football team got clobbered by St. Ignace 49-8 Friday night.

Offensively, Charlevoix's team was easy to find all night long, as they never went anywhere. They had but one first down in the game and that came courtesy of a St. Ignace penalty.

Defensively, the Rayders spent the evening chasing St. Ignace quarterback Gallagher and running back Jimbo Brown. They didn't have a lot of luck catching either of them, particularly Brown. He scored four times and rushed for 171 yards.

Rayder kick returner Dave Miller provided a brief reprieve when he returned one of too many St. Ignace kickoffs 80 yards for a touchdown. Greg Lewis passed to Shawn Putman for the two-point conversion.

Matt Cunningham and Jason Corwin each recovered a fumble.

This Friday, Charlevoix travels to Cheboygan.

Scott Miller takes the popstick with the number one on it as he records a comfortable victory in Saturday's cross country race. Miller finished 40 seconds ahead of his nearest competitor as he led Charlevoix's team to a first place finish.

Bickersteth qualifies for state finals golf

Although Charlevoix will not be going as a team to this Saturday's state golf finals in Lansing, Dan Bickersteth shot well enough in regional competition to go to state and compete as an individual.

At this past weekend's regional match Bickersteth shot a 76 to lead Charlevoix to a fourth place finish among 11 teams. Clare's Chad Skop was regional medalist with a 75.

The top three teams will advance to the state finals. Charlevoix's team total of 356 left them trailing Houghton Lake with 343, Clare with 345 and Benzie Central with 353.

Scores of Charlevoix's other golfers were: Matt Gibbons 83; Randy Wurst, 93; Jordan

Spencer 99 and Tom Herriman 106.

Earlier last week, Charlevoix took fourth place in the conference finishing behind Petoskey, Gaylord and Sault Ste. Marie.

For Charlevoix, Gibbons shot an 86, Bickersteth an 89, Herriman a 97 and Wurst and Spencer 99s.

Girls basketball team loses twice

Charlevoix's girls basketball team lost two games this past week. Tuesday, Oct. 4 they lost to league leading Sault Ste. Marie 62-23. Thursday, Oct. 6 they lost to Rogers City 60-32.

Charlevoix has been hit hard by injuries in recent weeks and suited up only seven players against Rogers City. Stacy Gebott, normally the team's starting point guard, is out with a knee injury. Becky Largent is sidelined with an elbow injury.

Billie Jean Habel led the Rayder scoring attack against Sault Ste. Marie with 10 points. Against Rogers City, Dana Haney contributed 14 points while Habel had 11.

This Thursday, Oct. 13 Charlevoix plays at Gaylord.

Yachting Notes

With only one race remaining for the 1988 racing season, contests remain in three fleets. In Fleet A, Dave Strawbridge holds a relatively commanding lead of 2½ points over Mint Julip with Gotcha close behind. It's conceivable that either of the latter could move up if mishaps befall Dr. Dave in the last effort of the year.

It's even closer in Fleet C with Flash and Mi-Joy tied only 1¼ points behind Cabaret.

Vermonters in D needs to nearly sink Sandpiper to prevent her from capturing another Blue Flag for the fall.

Fleet A: 1-Pygmalion, 4.25; 2-Mintie, 6.75; 3-Gotcha 8.75; 4-Columbine, 17.; 5-Blue Sky, 17.; 6-Tigger, 18.; 7-Nite Moves, 23.

Fleet B: 1-Bandit, 3.00; 2-Blazen, 6.75; 3-Tireless, 10; 4-Foxy Lady, 15; 5-Cygnus, 20; 6-SanSueShe, 26; 7-Kittiwake, 26; 8-Nulli, 29; 9-Mud Duck, 33.

Fleet C: 1-Cabaret, 6.5; 2-Flash, 7.75; 3-Mi-Joy, 7.75;

4-No Chute, 16.75; 5-Baldie, 17; 6-Canusa, 19.

Fleet D: 1-Sandpiper, 5.25; 2-Lost Vermonter, 6.75; 3-Maureen, 12; 4-Hot Mustard, 12.75; 5-Apothecary, 19; 6-Sunrise, 25; 7-Stalworth, 25.

Fleet E: 1-Babel, 3; 2-Irish, 10; 3-Sizzle, 13; 4-Minors, 15; 5-Koucky, 16; 6-HS Molst, 19; 7-Allons-Y, 22; 8-Babe, 26.

Finishing positions of the October 5 race were as follows:

Fleet A: Pygie, Mintie and Blue Sky.

Fleet B: Bandit, Blazen, Foxy, Tireless, Cygnus, Mud Duck, SanSueShe and Nulli.

Fleet C: Mi-Joy, Flash, Cabaret and Canusa.

Fleet D: Sandpiper, Lost Vert, Maureen, Hot Mustard, Apothecary, Stalworth, Sunrise.

Fleet E: Babel, Irish, Koucky, Allons-Y.

That's all until the wrap-up next week. Good luck and good sailing.

EPA seeks to fine Medusa $32,250

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is seeking a $32,250 fine against the Medusa Corporation for violating federal regulations pertaining to polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs).

PCBs are toxic chemicals which formerly were widely used in hydraulic systems, heat transfer systems and as insulating fluid in electric equipment.

PCBs at the cement plant are inside 13 electric transformers installed in the 1960s. Additional transformers which were installed in 1979 when the plant expanded do not contain PCBs.

Medusa was cited for failing to: develop and maintain certain EPA required records on PCB items at the plant; meet a deadline for registering the PCB transformers with local fire departments; remove combustible materials from five PCB transformer enclosures; mark the means of access to one PCB transformer.

Medusa plant manager Elbert Kaiser pointed out that there have been no spills or anything of that nature and that all of the PCBs are in enclosed vessels.

He said Medusa officials initially weren't aware of EPA regulations requiring local fire departments to be notified of the location of PCB transformers; therefore the company missed a Dec. 1, 1985 deadline. However, in early 1986, the company became aware of the regulation and prior to the EPA inspection in 1987 both the township and city fire departments were properly notified. The company is also now keeping proper records on the transformers.

Regarding the combustible materials, Kaiser said that some cardboard boxes were within five meters of the PCB transformers. That isn't allowed by EPA regulations and the boxes have been removed.

Concerning the proposed fine, Kaiser said that at this time he personally thinks it's a little excessive given the violations.

Medusa has until Oct. 17 to file a formal response to the violations alleged by the EPA. Kaiser said the company will probably request a conference with EPA officials.

The EPA banned the manufacture of PCBs in 1979 because of their toxicity and because they stay in the environment for extended periods of time instead of deteriorating.

Kaiser noted that Medusa is attempting to phase out PCBs at the Charlevoix plant and other company plants.

"At all of our plants, we're looking at ways to remove all some cardboard boxes were within five meters of the PCB," he said.

New Kiwanis Club officers were recently installed for the coming year. Pictured (from left) are: Gordy Meyers, president elect; Ken Brill, outgoing president; Don Dannecker, incoming president; Herb Dishong, secretary treasurer; Bob Rajewski, lieutenant governor.

Win-some women sponsor retreat

"Relating in Love" will be the theme for the 17th Annual Win-Some Women's Retreat to be held at the Boyne Mt. Convention Center, Boyne Falls on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 4 and 5. The retreat gives women from many communities an opportunity to join in a time of fellowship, encouragement, and inspiration. This years featured speakers will be Ann Kiemel Anderson of Idaho Falls, Idaho and her twin sister Jan Kiemel Ream of Cleveland, Ohio.

Jan Kiemel Ream is a professional counselor specializing in individual, marriage, and family therapy. She also serves as executive vice president of New Source Counseling Centers in Cleveland, Ohio. # SHOPTALK

JACQUE MERTA

Jacque Merta is executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Approximately every other month the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce hosts a "Business After Hours." If you're unfamiliar with Business After Hours you're probably wondering what it is.

Business After Hours is a general membership function for members and their employees. The purpose is to create business contacts among Chamber members. It is purely a social event with no formal program, although new businesses and guests are introduced. A sponsor provides hors d'oeuvres and it is held from 5 to 7 p.m.

The next Business After Hours is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 18 at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant. Our sponsor, Stafford's Weathervane, invites Charlevoix Chamber members to come and say hello to a new friend that you've known for a long time. Bring plenty of your business cards to hand out while you mix and mingle with business associates.

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Floyd R. Henderson
 East Upright Church of God

Many people today have eye problems both physically and spiritually. When you can not see correctly something is wrong with your vision.

Some look back and see the church of yesterday. A lot of people who have this problem always look in the past and the pleasures of the past. Some talk about the good old days of the church and say "I remember when God used to do great and mighty things in the church! God used to heal, fill and save people in our church. God does not move within the church like He used to."

What is the problem? Spiritual eye trouble.

God said, in Isaiah 43:18 "Remember ye not the former things." Hebrews 13:8 says "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today and forever."

What is the church? Not the building but the people.

So if God is not moving in the church as He once did, then what we are saying is that God is not moving in us like He use to. We need to take our eyes off the past and place them back upon Jesus Christ our Redeemer.

Some look back and see the world's glitter and the things they left behind. Many are attached to this world's material things. God said, in Isaiah 43:18 "Neither consider the things of old."

Many have become comfortable in this world. There is a song we sing: "This world is not my home, I'm just a passing through. My treasures are laid up somewhere beyond the blue... and I can't feel at home in this world anymore."

Do you need an eye examination, maybe new glasses? God said, in Isaiah 43:19 "Behold, I will do a new thing; now it shall spring forth; shall ye not know it? I will even make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert."

God has promised His people more than we claim. Will you claim what is yours today?

By a 4-2 vote, council retains Van Treese

By a 4-2 vote of the Charlevoix City Council, the American justice system will be allowed to run its course before any council action is taken regarding indicted city attorney Jeff VanTreese.

At Monday evening's council meeting, councilman Norm Probert moved to give VanTreese seven days notice that his service with the city was to be terminated. Councilman Butch Russell seconded Probert's motion.

Probert said he made the motion because VanTreese's contract with the city should be up for review and because a clause in VanTreese's contract says council may terminate the city attorney's services either for cause or convenience.

Mayor Ralph McRae said very little during the discussion. He said the matter is in the council's hands. However McRae triggered the discussion approximately two weeks ago when he issued a letter requesting VanTreese's resignation.

The issue of VanTreese's contract was on the city council's

Oct. 10 work session agenda, but VanTreese could not be there and sent a letter requesting council wait until this week to discuss the matter.

McRae attempted to read a statement at the Oct. 10 meeting, but was stifled by council and audience members who said the issue shouldn't be discussed until VanTreese could be present.

McRae then called a special meeting for last Thursday evening to discuss VanTreese's status as city attorney. McRae showed up for the special meeting, but no council members did and the meeting had to be called for lack of a quorum.

This Monday's regular council meeting had a full council and an audience of between 30 and 40 people. Following Probert's motion, several audience and council members posed questions and comments.

Audience member Chris Papineau questioned Probert's reference to council removing VanTreese for convenience. He asked what was the convenience and if the motion had anything to do with VanTreese's June indictment by a grand jury on possession of cocaine charges.

Probert argued that he hadn't said anything about the indictment and had voted against renewing VanTreese's contract in May of 1987, prior to the indictment.

VanTreese said the question the council should consider is the quality of his legal services to the city over the past six years.

"It seems to me that this is just a very thinly veiled and transparent attempt to terminate me at this time, prior to an election," he said.

Papineau told the council, "It smells real bad of a cut and run situation." He said he wanted to remind the council that according to the Constitution a person is considered innocent until proven guilty.

Former mayor Ken Staley concurred with Papineau. He told the council he thinks VanTreese has represented the city well in court cases and that other attorneys would charge much more for similar representation.

"There are three branches of government," Staley said. "One of them is the judicial system. Let the thing function. Don't try to second guess the legal system. That isn't your job...Handle the thing in a professional manner. Don't make a lot of dirty laundry for the news media."

Several other people in the audience held a different opinion. They said that whether VanTreese is guilty or not, his indictment harms the image of the community and he should voluntarily step down at least until his case is resolved.

Audience member Tori Fisher said she sees no reason for the city attorney to step down simply because of an accusation he feels he's not guilty of.

Audience member Tom LaBlance said he feels the city council should act. He said the issue before the council was the renewal of a contract and that right now there is "a cloud" over VanTreese's head.

Petoskey attorney Greg

Justice spoke against Probert's motion. He said Probert had interpreted the clause in the contract, but from a legal standpoint there is a difference between serving at the council's "convenience" and serving at the council's "pleasure."

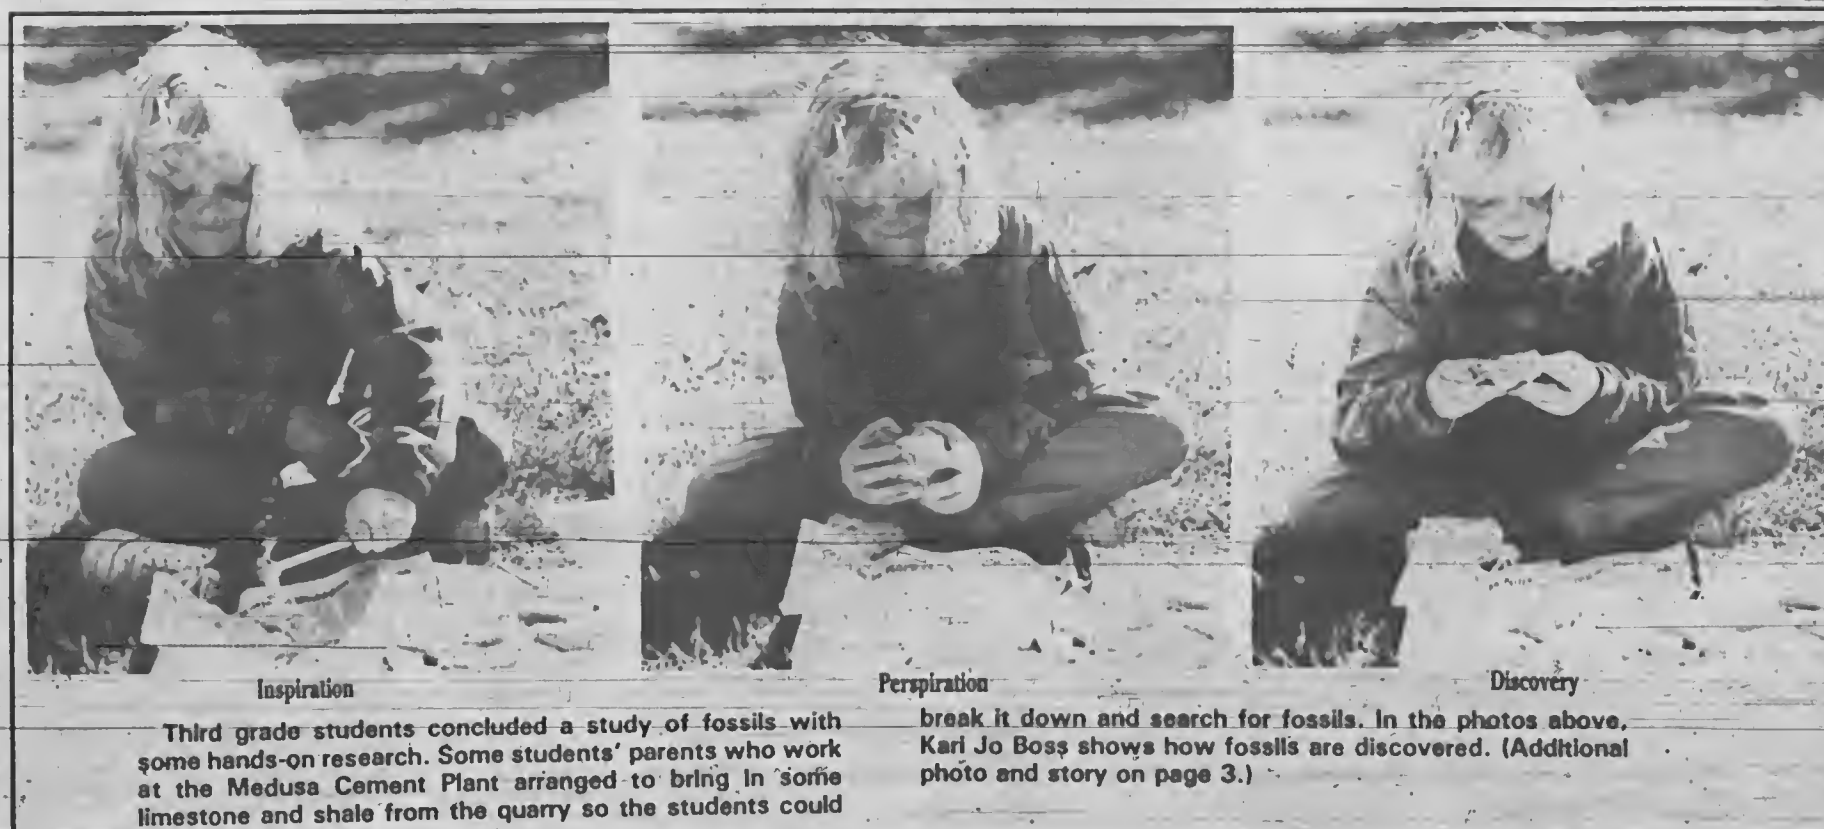

Justice said there is a long-standing feud between Probert and VanTreese and accused McRae of electioneering. Justice claimed other area attorneys have spoken with him and indicated they feel VanTreese is being "railroaded" and they would be willing to represent him in court.

"Does the city want to spend $50,000 to keep the mayor in office or promote a long-standing feud?" Justice asked.

McRae said the council does not need to give a specific reason to terminate VanTreese and to protect itself from future litigation, should not give a reason.

VanTreese described as "reprehensible" the suggestion that he should step away from his employment or even leave

Finale concert for marching band

The 1988 Charlevoix High School Marching Band will offer a concert at 8 p.m., Monday, Oct. 24 in the high school gym.

Band director Terry Isenbarger says the concert will be offered at no charge as a thank you to the people of the community for their support of the recent sausage and cheese sale band fundraising drive. He also noted that the annual concert provides an opportunity for people who don't usually attend football games to come and listen to the band.

Charlevoix High School has a 76 piece marching band this year. Although the group normally has at least one number which features a fairly intricate marching routine, the band places more emphasis on music than marching.

"We emphasize playing," Isenbarger said. "We want a good, solid sounding group."

The band director characterized marching band as a fairly demanding activity. He said that although he and the bandmembers try to do most of their work within the framework of the one hour band class, there are Monday evening practices and marching band begins one week before regular classes start.

Almost half of this year's marching band members are freshmen. Isenbarger says that causes some problems as the younger members adapt, but also indicates the band will grow in coming years. He said this year's band has been a good group.

Complimenting the marching band is a flag corps under the direction of Becky Resch. Flag corps routines will be featured at Monday evening's concert.

Another featured event Monday evening will be the percussion section performing an arrangement of the "William Tell" overture written for marching percussion.

Other marching band arrangements on Monday's menu include: Alexander's Ragtime Band; Rock Around The Clock; Moscow Nights; If I Loved You; and America The Beautiful.

Awards will be presented to band seniors and outstanding marching band students.

Isenbarger said the annual concert normally draws a good crowd. He said as far as the students are concerned about crowd size, they feel the more the merrier. They've been working hard and the concert is an opportunity to demonstrate the fruits of their labors.

Swimming pool proposal passes first hurdle

A proposal to build a community swimming pool has passed its first hurdle, but that hurdle was just a small one. They get bigger from here.

Late last month, proponents of building a community swimming pool submitted a preapplication to a state grant program asking for a $100,000 grant.

The preapplication was simply a brief synopsis of a pool proposal. It suggested a pool be built in a building which currently houses the city electric department near Ferry Beach.

The estimated cost of the project was $600,000 with the $100,000 grant to be supplemented by $200,000 from the city's tax increment financing authority and a $300,000 fundraising drive.

Late last week the state grant agency, known as the Neighborhood Builders Alliance Neighborhood Grants program, sent pool proponents a letter saying the project may be a suitable grant recipient and therefore a full and detailed grant application should be filled out and submitted.

Bruce MacArthur, who has been involved with a group called SPLASH (Swimming Pool Lovers Advocating Safety and Health) spoke to the city council Monday evening about the pool proposal.

He said swimming pool advocates understand that the electrical building is presently fully in use either for offices or storing trucks and equipment. However, parks and recreation is currently drawing up a master plan which may call to vacate the building sometime in the future.

MacArthur said what swimming pool proponents are suggesting is that if the city is planning to vacate the building sometime down the road, that building would have better use as an indoor pool.

He said swimming pool proponents are asking the parks and recreation commission to include some indication in the 5 year master plan that a pool is needed.

Swimming pool advocates are also trying to arrange a meeting between representatives of the council, school board and parks and recreation to determine the feasibility of an indoor community pool and how best to go about getting one.

Ryan Coon studies a fossil from a piece of stone. Ryan and his third grade classmates concluded a five-week study of fossils last Thursday.

Third grades break into fossils

In the interest of learning, Charlevoix third graders spent a portion of last Thursday breaking things and that was just fine with their teachers. The students were breaking pieces of limestone and shale so they could take a look at the fossils inside.

For the past five weeks, the students have been studying fossils. The subject provided an opportunity for some hands on learning experiences which the students received with enthusiasm. "They loved it," teacher Pat Carland said. "There were no groans when the fossil books came out."

Among the facets of fossil study were different eras of fossil formation, what a fossil is and how it is formed. Fossil study tied in with some other areas of study such as vocabulary and geology.

So they could see processes involved in fossilization, students did experiments which included putting a dead fly in clear nail polish and dried a flower in baking soda to illustrate mummification.

Some of the children's parents who work at Medusa arranged to bring in some limestone and shale from the cement plant's quarry. There was enough so that each student could have their own chunk of rock to check for fossils.

town because of an accusation. He repeated that the focal point of the council's decision should be the quality of his legal work.

Probert raised the issue of the cost of VanTreese's work for the city. He said that in 1986, the city attorney budget was approximately $29,000, but last year was in excess of $39,000.

That remark drew a quick reply from councilman Earl Muma. He said the cost increased because the council, of which Probert is a part, assigned VanTreese more work to do.

"We're the ones who tell the man what to do," Muma said. He added, "I think there's been a vendetta all along with two people on this council."

As the discussion drew to a close, McRae commented that he doesn't like the city attorney representing people involved in drug cases.

"Thankfully, I don't work for you Mr. Mayor," VanTreese responded. He went on to say that he is only employed by the city on a part time basis and may do whatever work he wants beyond that.

"Even people you call drug dealers have a right to (legal) representation," he told McRae.

When a vote was taken, only Probert and Russell voted to terminate VanTreese. Council members Muma, Bill Haggard, Shirley Roloff and Bill Bellows voted against Probert's motion. Under Charlevoix's city charter, the mayor, McRae, votes only to break ties.

VanTreese is scheduled for a preliminary examination Nov. 7 in district court on the charges from the grand jury indictment.

Kirby's forbidden fruit

The apple he'd been eating at the time was an adequate apple as apples go. Granted, there were a couple of worms in it, but they hadn't eaten much.

As Kirby munched the apple, a bird fluttered in a branch above him. Kirby lifted his head, his big broad antlers glistening in the sun.

While Kirby looked up into the tree, an autumn breeze came by and rustled the leaves. Kirby was watching the leaves dance when something caught his eye. Near the top of the apple tree, on the very end of a bouncing branch was the biggest, sweetest, juiciest apple he'd ever set eyes on.

Any deer would have been happy to discover such a fine apple, but Kirby wasn't just any deer. He was a connoisseur among deer. He made it a point to feed on only the finest of the wild world's offerings.

When other deer came to the old, abandoned orchard, they would simply gobble down the first apple they came to. Not Kirby. He would go from tree to tree, eating only the tastiest apples which had fallen that day.

Kirby's mouth watered as he watched the big apple bobbing high above him in the tree. It looked as though it would fall at any second. His mouth watered. Kirby quivered with anticipation as he was sure the perfect apple would fall at any second.

But the apple did not fall. The perfect apple stayed in the tree. A deer can stand stone still and stare at something for what seems like an eternity to a human being. That's because a deer never feels the urge to look at his watch, never thinks about getting out of the woods before it gets too dark and never wonders what he will have for dinner when he gets home.

Deer have all the time they want to stand around and stare at things, but Kirby stared at the big apple a long time even by deer standards. His neck got tired and his vision began to blur.

"Maybe I'll finish the apple I was eating while I wait for that apple to fall," he thought.

But when tried to eat the other apple, he found his heart and stomach just weren't in it. They craved the perfect apple and wouldn't be satisfied with anything less.

A rustling sound startled Kirby.

"Who's there?" Kirby snorted, stomping his front hooves and demanding an answer.

"Relax Kirby," a voice answered. "It's just me, Orville the raccoon."

Suddenly, Kirby got an idea. "Come here Orville, I've got a proposal for you."

The fat raccoon waddled over. "Do you see that big apple up there," Kirby asked, pointing with his antlers.

"Yeah, I see it," Orville said. "It's a beauty."

"I want it," Kirby said. "But who knows when it will fall? Will

Letters to the editor:

Cody's epilogue

Dear Charlevoix,

This letter will probably be the most difficult one I've ever had to write, but it's been a month since Cody passed away, and I feel there's a chapter to his story that I need to finish.

Cody died September 16 about ten minutes after I arrived at the hospital. His condition had worsened to a point where everybody had run out of remedies. I had never seen anyone die before, and I guess I was amazed at the simplicity of it all. It must have been all of the hospital paraphernalia that surrounded him that clouded my vision to the very simple intervention of death.

Nobody can fully understand how you feel when you lose a child, unless they've lost one themselves. Even then, you would have to lose a child after fighting as hard as we have to fully understand how I feel after losing Cody.

There is an undeniable feeling of relief. Relief in knowing that our baby will no longer have to live a life of hospital, transfusions, tests, bone biopsies and blindness: all with the unknown factor of whether or not he would survive.

Of course I'm not denying the feeling of loss. That will always be there. However, I have no regrets about anything we've done over the past year. We loved Cody and were there for him every hour of every day and he felt our love constantly. We knew that there was a chance that he might not live a full life, and we based everything upon that fact.

A point to ponder here is that none of you parents know any differently about your children than we did — so please love them accordingly. You just never know.

During Cody's last few days, I had a few people say things to me that I feel I must defend. When I explained to people that Cody was in the Charlevoix Hospital, the initial reaction was "What are you doing in that place?"

Granted, it's not the Mayo Clinic, but Charlevoix Hospital

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

The town's still hopping

The news media has been plagued since Day One by the problem of trying to estimate the size of crowds attending public events.

A former Charlevoix police chief, the late Joe Smith, had a stock answer when asked how many people attended the Venetian Festival. "There were 25,000 people on Bridge Street Saturday night," he would say, as confidently as if he had counted each one himself.

The problem was he gave the same figure every year, regardless of the size of the crowd. But no one every doubted his word.

The late Pat "The Truth" LaFreniere of Beaver Island also had a stock answer when asked how many people lived on the island.

"One hundred and seventy-five," he would answer unequivocally, "and that includes a couple dozen cats and dogs."

One of the characters in the play "You Can't Take It With You" also had a cavalier attitude toward the business of estimating crowds. Asked how many graduates attended commencement exercises at Columbia University, he replied, "Oh, there must have been a couple acres of them."

All of which brings us to Charlevoix's 1988 Apple Festival. No body kept a body count, but the crowds downtown on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8 and 9, certainly rivaled those of the Venetian Festival and the Waterfront Art Fair.

Of course, the weather was perfect and there were plenty of leaf-watchers in the area. As a result, farmers, snack merchants and handicraft exhibitors had a field day.

Who would have thought Charlevoix could attract so many people during the so-called "off-season?"

And the visitors weren't reluctant to spend — both at the booths in East Park and in downtown shops. I think it's safe to say that at noon Saturday every other person on Bridge Street was clutching a newly purchased bouquet of German statice.

"It has become sort of a status symbol," I told Judy just before she took a swing at me.

In any event, the fair was a success by any definition:

And the income it generated for Charlevoix area residents will help take the financial sting from the long, cold winter ahead.

OF COURSE, our merchants are reluctant to call it quits for another year. Most of the shops on Bridge Street were open the Sunday after the Apple Festival. Many appeared to be doing a brisk business as visitors ducked inside to shop between cloudbursts.

WAS LAST Thursday's four-minute council meeting the shortest on record?

You'll remember, only Mayor Ralph McRae showed up at a special session he called to discuss the tenure of City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese. Council member Shirley Roloff had to work, Bill Bellows was in the hospital and the other four council members had committed themselves to attend a banquet of the Michigan Electrical Association at Edgewater Inn.

When a quorum failed to show, McRae adjourned the meeting.

I recall one other meeting many years ago that was almost as short. That night, Mayor Andy Essenburg stomped into the council chamber, banged down the gavel and said he was making a motion to appoint Steve Graham of Harbor Springs as Charlevoix city attorney.

The council sat in stunned silence because the mayor is not empowered to make motions, only ask for them.

When no one spoke, Andy banged down the gavel again. "Meeting adjourned," he belted and stomped out of the room.

Actually, Andy also should have asked for a motion to the close the meeting but in the heat of the moment no one remembered that little formality.

Instead, the council adjourned and a special meeting was called later in the week to pay bills and take care of other routine business.

Although Charlevoix's city government has had its ups and downs over the years, I can't recall another occasion — until Oct. 13 — when a quorum of council members failed to show up. But it must have happened a few times before in our long history.

... Cody

is one of the most wonderful places to be if you happen to be sick. Professionalism and compassion walk hand in hand in "that place", and I've seen my share of hospitals to know the difference.

This is a place where the nurses are like sisters to me, and the doctors are more like friends who respect you for what you know and never remind you that they are the doctors and you are the patient.

I believe that everyone who works there from administration to housekeeping knows me by name, as compared to some hospitals where the doctor walks in, looks straight at you and says, "Have you seen Mr. and Mrs. Louise?"

As far as treatment goes,

Charlevoix Hospital is medically equipped to treat just about anything, and if they don't have the capability to help you, they don't hesitate to get you someplace that can.

Many thanks to all of you who have tried to make our road a little smoother at Charlevoix Hospital. From the recipe exchanges with the nurses to the time that I asked for the wooden rocking chair and the maintenance guys hauled the Lazy Boy all the way down the hill just so I could be more comfortable while I rocked Cody.

That place is something else. I feel better knowing that Cody died among friends, not just doctors and nurses. You truly are wonderful, real people.

To all of you who have been behind us from the beginning and are still hugging me every sending military aid to the contras during the period when the Boland Amendment made such activity clearly illegal. Vice President Bush either knew what was going on in his own office, or he should have!

2nd Example: Candidate Bush recognized that the flow of drugs into the United States is a major issue which he places high on his agenda and as President, will deal with firmly and effectively.

But while Vice President George Bush was Chairman of the National Narcotics Border Interdiction System, a "drugs for guns" operation in support of the contras was routinely smuggling narcotics by air and sea into the U.S. Columbian drug traffickers used U.S. supported base camps from which to fly drugs to Miami. Pilots have testified that they flew guns to the contras and returned with drugs. A key figure in setting up these operations was Felix Rodriguez, a former C.I.A. operative with close connections to George Bush's National Security Advisor Donald Gregg. Rodriguez is known to have visited the Vice President's office on more than one occasion. A memo prepared by Gregg's deputy for a meeting in May 1986 said the purpose of the meeting was for Rodriguez to brief Bush on the status of the war in El Salvador and the resupply of the contras. No one has been able to explain away that memo.

Like Mike Dukakis, we have difficulty knowing which is the real George Bush. But we could never really trust a man whose past record does not support his "new image" words.

Michael Dukakis, on the other hand, is just what he appears to be: an intelligent, thoughtful "serious kind of guy." We like that in a presidential candidate.

Margaret Duerr

Bashing Bush

Dear Editor:

Twice during the last presidential debate, Michael Dukakis said he was having difficulty knowing which George Bush was his opponent; - the one who had just voiced a popular position; - or the one whose past record says something quite different.

We have the same problem. For example: Candidate George Bush has wrapped himself in the flag and presented himself as the defender of the law and the Constitution, who would never be "soft on crime." But the Tower Commission Report, the Joint Congressional Committee hearings, the Senate Subcommittee hearings chaired by Senator Kerry, and Special Prosecutor Walsh's indictments all produced testimony showing that the Vice President's office was aware of and involved in

Say no to radioactive waste ... nuclear waste

To the Editor:

The Michigan Legislature and the Governor should withdraw this state from the Midwest Compact immediately because they do not control how much nuclear waste can come into this state. Instead, the Midwest Compact Commissioners can make that decision.

Originally, Michigan was chosen to be the host state for the Midwest Compact because it was determined that it was the state where the most nuclear waste was generated and had good transportation access. In reality, 60 percent of the waste attributed to Michigan comes from the Donald C. Plants nuclear plants in Bridgman, Michigan. Yet 91 percent of the power from those plants is shipped out of state.

The people of Michigan do not get the benefit, only the liability of being chosen host state for the wastes of 6 other states, and having tons of high level wastes from those plants stored indefinitely in pools on the shores of Lake Michigan.

Another 20 percent of the waste charged to Michigan is expected to come from the Fermi 2 n-plant, even though Detroit Edison was shipping more power out of state before the plant went on line than they expected to get from the operation of that plant.

Now the Compact Commissioners have found that if they build the very elaborate facility that would have to be built in the humid climate of Michigan to try to contain these highly toxic and long-lived wastes even for a limited time, that they will have to have more wastes than are generated within the 7 states

Compact to make the facility cost effective. (Revenues are generated according to the volume of waste that is stored.)

Therefore, the Compact Commissioners directed the staff to find out requirements for bringing in more nuclear wastes to the Michigan facility from outside the region at their meeting in Indianapolis last February. In other words, the Commissioners of the six other states in the Compact are seeking to reduce what their generators will pay for nuclear waste disposal in the Michigan facility at the expense of the public safety and environment of Michigan without our having any recourse to this decision.

One of the serious objections that has been raised against the Federal 1980 Nuclear Waste Policy Act which established the Compact or regional idea for the disposal of these so-called "low-level" wastes, is that it has created a quasi-legal governing body, the Company Commissioners, which are not accountable at the ballot box to anyone, and yet can make profoundly important decisions that can affect a state.

Another critical weakness of this 1980 law is that a greater volume of waste was anticipated at that time than will be generated in the foreseeable future. It is now known that two, or perhaps three, storage sites would be adequate for the nation as a whole. But, because of the regional approach, 13 to 16 sites are now being planned in the country.

According to former Commissioner David Hales, this cost of needless facilities could exceed 2.5 billion dollars to the people of this country. This proliferation of waste sites is the opposite of what any waste disposal plan should be, and this is, devised to encourage the reduction of wastes, rather than encourage their generation.

Write or call the Governor and your State Representative and State Senator to get us out of the Compact now if Michigan is to retain some control of its destiny on this nuclear waste decision.

Hospice to meet on alcoholism

The Charlevoix County Hospice is participating in a workshop designed to explore alcoholism in the context of loss and bereavement.

The "Northern Michigan Hospice Conference" will be held November 11, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Traverse City. The workshop will be conducted by Mary Raymer, a psychotherapist who specializes in bereavement, aging, and addiction. Her topics will include "Family Roles, Rules, and Personality Traits", "When Our Own Emotions Get in the Way", "When to Intervene and What if it Doesn't Work", "The Grief Process and Alcoholism", and "Helping People Reclaim the Personal Losses Due to Alcoholism."

Anyone working or living with a person suffering from alcoholism is encouraged to attend the workshop. Reservations may be made by sending a check for $30 (which includes lunch cost), made payable to Northern Michigan Hospice Conference, to Margaret Lasater, Charlevoix County Hospice, P. O. Box 233, Boyne City, MI 49712. The deadline is November 7. Questions about the workshop will be answered by the Hospice office, phone 536-2842.

brought to light in the offices of Charlevoix County Juvenile Court with reference to its Child Care Fund.

Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell appeared before the County Board last week to announce happily that the Child Care Fund had operated within budget for the first nine months of this year. This was to be good news for County Board members who a few short weeks ago appropriated $337,618 from the general fund to clean up the deficit in the Child Care Fund that had accumulated over a period of years.

After Campbell had completed his report, Commissioner Don Smith, Juvenile Court liaison, asked, "Then why do the County Treasurer's books show a deficit of over $177,000 in the account?"

Campbell, obviously surprised, said he didn't know about the deficit and couldn't explain it. County Treasurer Joan Balch was summoned to the meeting along with her books and a conference ensued. It then was discovered that funds included in the budget that were supposed to come from the state had not been credited to the account, including one lump sum of $52,000. While Campbell kept track of the disbursement side of the budget, he did not keep track of income, relying solely on budget figures.

The County Board will now call for a study by the Treasurer, Clerk, Juvenile Officer, and probably the Auditor to determine if the expected moneys were sent to the County; if not, why not; and if sent, where they appear on the books.

What's the worst law you can imagine?

How about one that would multiply welfare costs to Michigan taxpayers by ten, and at the same time force a sixteen year-old rape victim to bear her attackers child.

That law is Proposal A on the November 8 ballot.

FACT: If passed, Proposal A would deny a rape victim the funds to end the pregnancy, even if her doctor felt it would gravely endanger her emotional health.

FACT: The price tag for Proposal A could exceed $50 million per year in additional costs to Michigan taxpayers, by forcing welfare mothers to bear children they don't want, at taxpayers' expense. That's a ten-fold increase over the annual cost of all state-funded abortions.

FACT: Proposal A would refuse exceptions even for incest, and for women whose babies would be born with AIDS or serious birth defects. Again, doctors would have no say whatsoever in the matter.

FACT: Proposal A won't end tax-funded abortions. It wasn't even intended to. Under Proposal A tax-paid abortions will still be available to state employees (approximately 60,000 in all), state legislators and aides, public school and university employees, and others -- plus their dependents.

FACT: Proposal A's sponsors have neglected to mention its price tag. Maybe they forgot. And they don't mention that it will penalize women devastated by rape and incest, or that it really won't eliminate tax-funded abortions in Michigan. They probably just forgot.

Whatever your personal beliefs about abortion, don't be misled. Proposal

A is bad public policy. Michigan doesn't need a law that penalizes victims of rape and incest. And we certainly don't need another $50 million in taxes.

Cast your vote for Justice on November 8. Vote No on Proposal A.

WELCOME GRANGERS

Charlevoix is host for state Grange meeting

Approximately 300 Grange members from across Michigan will be in Charlevoix Oct. 19 through 22 for the Michigan State Grange's 115th annual state convention. The Barnard Grange is hosting the convention.

Many of the convention activities will take place at the Assembly of God Church, however some events will be held at the Legion Hall, K-5 school and Holiday Inn in Petoskey.

During the three-day convention, state Grange members will: discuss legislative policy; present awards for several things including community service, talent contests, programming and Junior Grange work; be addressed by Robert Barrow, Master of the National Grange; attend a banquet where the featured speaker will be Gordon Guyer, former director of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service and also former director of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources; attend the Junior Grange 100th Birthday Luncheon.

Barnard Grange members say it's exciting for the state Grange convention to be hosted in Charlevoix. They explain that this is the first time the state convention has been hosted by a single Grange rather than a group of Granges.

Barnard Grange officials Norm Empey and Bill Stevens said the idea of bringing the state convention to Charlevoix was born about two years ago during a CB radio conversation between local Grange members as they returned from that year's state convention.

After they got home from the trip, Barnard Grange members firmed up plans and contacted members of the State Grange Board to offer Charlevoix as a convention site.

Local farmer and Grange member Clayton Smith welcomed people to the 115th Annual State Grange Convention with etched pumpkins.

Sleigh rides are popular social events with the local Grange chapter, the Barnard Grange.

Barnard Grange is growing rapidly

Although many Grange chapters in Michigan and across the nation have suffered from declining membership in recent years, the Barnard Grange hasn't had that problem.

Barnard Grange membership has grown by leaps and bounds in the past 12 years. In 1978, the Barnard Grange had only 28 members, but currently there are 131 regular members and 50 associate members.

"There's no secret potion," claims Norm Empey, Master of the Barnard Grange. "It's just being there for the people."

It is said that success breeds success. For the Barnard Grange, activity and community service have bred more activity and community service. Currently there seem to be but two modes of operation at the Grange; either something's happening or something's being planned.

In terms of community service, helping the deaf is a Grange priority. The Barnard Grange has provided extra hearing aids to the intermediate school district deaf education program. When a student breaks or misplaces their regular hearing aid, an extra hearing aid is loaned to them so they don't miss things while waiting for their hearing aid to be replaced or repaired. The Barnard Grange has also sponsored field trips for deaf students and hosted gatherings for deaf people at the Grange hall. Several Grange members have learned sign language so they can communicate with the deaf.

Grange community service projects have also branched into a number of other areas. In 1987, Barnard Grange ladies made 17 walker bags for the Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Walker bags are cloth bags which attach to a patient's walker or wheelchair to carry small items. Barnard Grange members also planted extra vegetables in 1987 and contributed 700 pounds of fresh vegetables to Grandvue.

Other Grange community service activities include: making stuffed toys which are placed in hospitals for children to play with or given as gifts for needy children at Christmas; contributing canned goods and supplies for the community pantry; and donating child safety seats which are loaned out at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

It is also not uncommon at the Barnard Grange for the line between community service work and fun to get a little blurry. A prime example is an annual barn dance hosted by the David Stolt activity. It's a good time which benefits deaf activities.

A recent Grange news release describes today's Grange as a grass roots farm, family, community organization working for the betterment of rural America.

While the Grange is not a religious organization, it has traditional values and there is a bible and flag at all Grange meetings.

The Grange is not a political organization, but does take stands and lobby on issues involving rural America. Robert Barrow, master of the National Grange, was recently invited to a White House luncheon with former Presidential Chief of Staff Howard Baker.

A multitude of social activities at the Barnard Grange include: square dances, card parties, hay rides, holiday programs and parties, a Fourth of July pig roast and many others.

Pollucks are a regular event. "When you go to a Grange meeting, you expect to eat," Empey points out.

The Barnard Grange is especially proud of its youth members. Grange officer Bill Stevens feels many Granges have problems with declining membership because they lack young people.

"Many Granges didn't have young people to replenish their membership," he said.

The Barnard Grange has a director of youth activities, but it's also not uncommon for young and old Grange members to enjoy activities together. At a Grange card party, it not uncommon to see someone in their 20's or younger playing cards with someone in their 70's or older.

Officers of the Barnard Grange feel the future is bright.

"I think it's go," Empey said. "With what we've got going and our youth coming up, I think we'll continue to grow."

Stevens said that even though many other Granges are suffering from declining membership, that should reverse itself and allow the Grange to endure.

"I think with the new membership program, it will reverse the decline in the number of Granges in the state," he said. "I'm sure I want to think positive because I think the Grange is good for so many people."

The Barnard Grange officers noted that leadership has been important in the growth of the local Grange, adding that leadership is something that involves all Grange members, not just the officers.

Dan Stolt and Sue Merten dance at one of the Grange's youth activities.

When electricity came to rural areas south of Charlevoix, one of the first Rural Electric Association membership meetings took place at the Barnard Grange Hall. The Grange Hall was expanded in 1983 and meetings, receptions and parties are still frequently held there.

Perhaps the area where the Grange has seen the least change is in social activities. Despite the advent of TV and other forms of entertainment, the fellowship found at square dances, box socials, hay rides and pig roasts has endured and is still important to the rural community.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Duane Nelson
Church of the Nazarene

If I can give any testimony at all, it comes from this scripture found in Matthew 5:6, "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they will be filled." This constantly drives me to my knees. It is a scripture that pushes me to spiritual growth in righteousness. Let's take a look at this hungering and thirsting for righteousness.

The hunger and thirst speak to the desire of our heart. To hunger and thirst means to have the same desire as a poor man desiring bread or the same longing as a man crawling across the desert looking for water. This desire and longing come from the very heart of a person. We would truly give up anything to fulfill that hunger and thirst. Anything!

We hunger and thirst for what? Righteousness, you say? But how many people do we know hungering and thirsting for righteousness? Can we count them on one hand, maybe two? To hunger and thirst for righteousness seems so contrary to our lifestyle. And to desire it from our heart would certainly change our lifestyle.

We know that our righteous acts, in comparison to God's, are like filthy rags (Isaiah 64:6), and that is because of our sins (Isaiah 64:4-5). We also know that unrighteous acts keep us out of Heaven (Galatians 5:19-21), and righteous acts won't get us into Heaven (Ephesians 2:8-9). It is most certainly found first with faith that we have asked God to forgive us of our sins and he forgave those sins and then with righteous acts to prove that faith (Acts 26:20). For righteousness to be longer for from the heart begins with the forgiveness of our sins and then proving our faith through the righteous acts God desires us to live out (Matthew 5:17-20).

We can only desire righteousness when we are righteous. And we can only be righteous through Christ; found in seeking forgiveness of our sins and completely yielding our entire lives to Him to do righteous acts. I make it a priority in my Christian life to hunger and thirst for righteousness. I want to be everything that God wants me to be, and that is to be righteous.

It is one thing to say we are a Christian; it is another to live it. It is a matter of not being blessed and being blessed; making Hell our eternal destiny and receiving Heaven as our eternal bliss. "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for the righteousness, for they will be filled!"

... a deer apple

you climb up and knock it down?"

"What's in it for me?" Orville asked.

"As I recall, you think pretty highly of corn," Kirby said. "If you get me that apple now, then next spring instead of eating the tassels off the young corn stalks at the edge of the farmers field, I'll let some of that corn grow so you can eat it later in the summer."

Orville was a fat raccoon, weighing almost 30 pounds, and as he neared the end of the branch where the apple was, the branch began swaying and drooping under his weight.

"Don't worry. You're doing fine," Kirby called. He sensed he was only seconds away from the finest apple he'd ever eaten.

As the branch dipped to new lows, Orville's priority changed from getting the apple to just hanging on.

"You're almost there," Kirby called, edging over beneath the apple.

Suddenly there was a snap. An hour later, when he came to and found a rabbit named Floyd looking down at him, Kirby wasn't sure what had happened.

"Well," said Floyd, "Orville came waddling up to me in the woods and said you'd been hit in the head by a branch and he thought you were dead. I came to check on you. You were dazed, but I figured you'd come around if I waited."

"You didn't see a big, fat apple around here did you Floyd?"

"Now that you mention it, I did," Floyd said. I ate it while I was waiting. I've never thought too highly of apples, but I have to admit, I did kind of enjoy that one."

SPORTS

Although he was running hard, Rayder junior varsity running back Brian Darrahm got swarmed upon by Cheboygan Chiefs last Thursday night. The Rayder j.v.s lost to the visiting Chiefs 58-6.

Cross country team wins showdown

Charlevoix is the defending state champion in Class C boys cross country. If they are to retain the title, one of the strongest challengers they will have to defeat at the state meet will be Beaverton.

This past Saturday at the Shepherd Invitational, Charlevoix utilized team depth to take care of Beaverton and eight other schools.

Scott Miller was once again Charlevoix's top runner, winning the race and completing the three mile course in 16:12. A Beaverton runner finished second at 16:27.

Paul Wakulat was the second Rayder across the line, finishing sixth overall. The second Beaverton runner finished seventh overall, two seconds behind Wakulat.

Bill Crook was the third

Rayder finisher. He finished ninth overall. The third Beaverton runner finished seven seconds behind him.

The places of the top five runners are tallied for a team score in high school cross country. After the first three runners for Charlevoix and Beaverton had finished, the score was still close with Charlevoix leading 18 to 19.

But down in the four and five spots, Charlevoix had more than Beaverton. Charlevoix's Bill Burns finished 11th, just a second behind Beaverton's third runner.

There were no Beaverton runners between Burns and teammate Dylan Stewart. Stewart finished 16th overall, one second ahead of Beaverton's fourth runner and six places ahead of Beaverton's fifth runner.

When the scores of each team's top five runners were tallied, Charlevoix had a 43 to 55 victory and Beaverton had second place and ugly memories of what the back of Rayder running jersey's look like.

While the boys team continued to assert itself among the Class C powers, the Rayder girls also had one of their better races this year. Charlevoix's girls finished second among six teams at the invitational. CC-Crystal won the race with 61 points, while Charlevoix finished with 71.

Leigh Richardson led the Rayders as she finished fifth overall with a time of 21:03. Julie Bush was the second Rayder across the line finishing seventh with a time of 21:09. Inga Meissner also had a strong race and completed the course in 22:20.

Slow start spells loss

Shades of the Lions, Charlevoix's varsity football team probably isn't as bad as its record indicates, but the team lost to perennial powerhouse Cheboygan Friday evening and slipped to 2-5 overall and 1-4 in league play.

Charlevoix got behind early in the team's latest defeat as the Chiefs jumped out to a 13-0 first quarter lead on their way to a 27-14 victory.

That score held throughout the second quarter and into the third quarter when Cheboygan scored on a 14-yard scoring pass.

Charlevoix found the endzone for the first time early in the fourth quarter as James Corwin shook loose on a 37-yard touchdown run.

Cheboygan answered that with a 90-yard scoring drive. Charlevoix's Jason Corwin scored the game's final touchdown on a 24-yard run and Jay Livingston ran in the two-point conversion, but it was too little too late.

This week, Charlevoix plays a nonconference game, hosting Manistique at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Bickersteth competes in state meet

Bickersteth's round of 95 placed him 84th among the 116 state qualifiers. State finals medalist was Chris Boquette of St. Charles who shot a 75.

Comstock Park won the Class C division while DeWitt finished second and Grandville Calvin Christian third.

Yachting Notes

Only twenty yachts showed for CYC's final outing of '88 in fairly blustery weather with a 20-knot northwestern. This was a far cry from the 40 boat outings of mid-July.

In Fleet A, Blue Sky, although they failed to capture the fleet flag from Pygmalion, did capture first in the final two races, possibly offering an omen of next year's aspirations.

In Fleet B, Cygnus won her only gun of the year, which was made easier by the absence of the four yachts that have spent the year beating her. Cyggy says she earned it though, and could have won anyway!

In Fleet C, Flash and Cabaret finished tied at 8½ points, but the Gordons earn the blue flag based on total race results.

Final standings for the Fall Series with one throwout:

Fleet A: Pygmalion 7.5, Mint Julip 10.75, Gotcha 11.75, Blue Sky 15.5, Columbine 20, Tiger 21, and Night Moves 26.

Fleet B: Bandit 6, Blazen 9.75, Tireless 14, Foxy Lady 19, Cygnus 20.75, SanSueShe 29, Kit-tiwake 30, Nulli Secundus 31, Mud Duck 37.

Fleet C: Flash 8.5, Cabaret 8.5, Mi-Joy 10.75, Bald Eagle 20, No Chute 22.75, Canusa 24.

Fleet D: Sandpiper 6, Lost Vermonter 8.75, Maureen 14, Hot Mustard 17.75, Apothecary 25, Stalworth 28, Sunrise 31 and Cheemaun 38.

Fleet E: Babel 3.75, Irish 10.75, Sizzle 17, Koucky 18, Minors 21, HS Moisture 22, Allons-Y 27, Babe 32.

The racers of CYC are indebted to Mr. Mike Miller of Nulli Secundus fame, the CYC Race Chairman and to Mr. Phil Ohmer, the race committee for the work that they have done to permit us to race this year. We are especially thankful to Phil for the many hats that he wears each year: weatherman, line judge, timer, starter, adjudicator, counsellor, engine repairman, and above all, good-natured friend to us all.

B-ball team drops pair

Charlevoix's girls basketball dropped a pair of games last week and saw their overall record for the season drop to 3-9. Charlevoix is 0-8 in league play. The Rayders travelled to St. Ignace Oct. 11 and lost 57-33 despite leading 10-8 after the first quarter. St. Ignace took over the game in the second quarter and Charlevoix never was able to turn the tide.

Melissa Boss led Charlevoix in scoring with 15 points. Billie Jean Habel added 10.

At Gaylord Oct. 13, Charlevoix lost 57-24. The Rayders were done in early by Gaylord's full court defensive pressure.

Boss and Habel again led the Rayder scoring as they each had eight points.

Charlevoix gets AAA agent

Jeanine Morse of Charlevoix is now selling AAA Michigan life, home and boat insurance products along with AAA memberships to Charlevoix-area residents.

The new Residential Sales Agent can be contacted at 547-0160.

Morse joined AAA Michigan in 1979 at the Traverse City office where she was most recently a customer service representative.

"The new network enables us to offer customers a convenient way to handle their insurance needs, as we can now work from home and be easily reached seven days a week," said Morse.

"I meet customers in their homes or at their places of business, offering a flexible program designed to accommodate their schedules," Morse added.

Realtors present safety through songs

Charlevoix first grade students participated in the "Safety Through Songs" program Friday afternoon.

"Safety Through Song" is a national award-winning educational program to safeguard the lives of children.

Local members of the Michigan Association of Realtors have purchased "Safety Through Songs" kits for an estimated 660 children enrolled in the first grade classes in the Antrim-Charlevoix areas. On a statewide basis, the Realtors will spend about $30,000 to bring the program to about 15,000 students.

The program which uses a coloring book with songs, a cassette tape and a filmstrip, has been endorsed and commended by the Michigan Department of Public Safety and Department of Education for helping provide much-needed health and safety education. "Each child receives a cassette tape and coloring book with the words and music to the safety songs," Steve Andrae, one of the local Realtors participating in the program, explained. "In areas where the program has already been introduced, teachers and parents said the children learned the safety songs by heart."

The ten songs in the "Safety Through Songs" book teach children to look both ways before crossing the street, never accept rides from strangers and always wear a seat belt. Lessons on bicycle and water safety also are included, along with an admonition not to play with poison containers.

National statistics show kindergarteners and first graders are the most vulnerable to accidents through unwitting ignorance of dangers.

City takes first step toward revising master plan

A joint meeting of the planning commission, Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and the city council Monday evening resulted in the following conclusions:

The city's master plan needs to be revised now and should be revised on an ongoing basis;

Rather than hire a consultant from outside of town to come and determine what should be in the revised master plan, local people will determine what should be in the master plan, then a consultant will be hired to incorporate those ideas into a revised master plan;

The first step in determining what revisions are needed will be for various groups in the community to determine what they would like to see a master plan encompass and then report those determinations to a master plan task force.

At Monday's joint meeting, planning commission Dave Novotny pointed out that it's been five or six years since the city's present master plan was adopted. He said there have been several changes in that time and the plan needs to be revised to take those changes into consideration. He said the DDA has ideas and projects and revising the master plan at this time would allow coordination with DDA plans.

DDA chairman Gene Steele agreed that an update is necessary.

"I think it's imperative that we bring that master plan along with appropriate zoning into line," he said.

Planning commission member Carol Sullivan asked if revising the master plan is a matter of updating a document or changing community planning goals.

Novotny said he views it as a little bit of both, updating the document and modifying goals to take advantage of opportunities which present themselves as time goes on.

Planning commission member Barb Fels expressed reservations about bringing in an outside consultant to determine what should be in a revised master plan. She said that leads to meetings where the public is asked what they want, but the average person doesn't show up. Instead, those meetings are attended by realtors and developers and interests reflecting those people's views end up being the ones in the plan.

Planning commission member Nancy Wood said that rather than having a consultant come in from a metropolitan area and determine how to make Charlevoix nice from a metropolitan standpoint, she favored using local people to determine how to keep "Charlevoix small and nice, like Charlevoix is."

Council vacillates on what to do at 108 Clinton

In the past, the city council has changed plans concerning what to do with a city-owned home at 108 Clinton Street. And from indications at a Monday evening committee of the whole work session, the council make again change plans for the house.

Initially, the city purchased the old grey two-story home between State and Bridge Streets with the intention of tearing it down and using the lot for public parking.

However, the Downtown Development Authority persuaded the council that it would be better to keep the front half of the house and use only the back half of the lot for parking. Under that plan, the front half of the house would be sold to someone for renovation into a business. It was stipulated that the renovation would maintain the historical integrity of the house.

Bids were requested and the city has a bid from Norman and Rosemary Lawson. The Lawson's propose to fix up the house and operate a card and gift shop there.

But in recent weeks, the council has started backing water on the proposal to sell the front half of the house.

At Monday evening's meeting, three possibilities surfaced: one, tear the whole house down and build 32 parking spaces on the lot; two, sell the front half of the house and build 14 parking spaces on the back half of the lot; three, tear down the house, sell the front 40 feet of the lot which would allow a smaller building and build 22 parking spaces on the back of the lot.

John Sharrow spoke in favor of using the whole lot for parking. He said the lot was originally purchased for parking and that in the future the downtown area is going to need additional parking. He said that if the city wanted to preserve the house for its historical value, they should move it to another lot.

Jeff Porter favored selling the front half of the house and using the back of the lot for parking. He said the continued practice of tearing down old buildings could leave the downtown area looking like a sea of asphalt.

Porter said selling the front half of the building would allow the property to go back on the tax role and also result in more parking spaces.

Councilman Bill Bellows favored selling the front 40 feet of the lot. He maintained that

Pier fishing rescued by act of Congress

The tradition of fishing from Charlevoix's south pier will continue.

Earlier this year, it appeared that pier renovation which is currently taking place would no longer allow fishing from the pier.

Despite arguments from the city, congressman Robert Davis, Department of Natural Resources and local fishermen that pier fishing should be retained, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers had said they could only fund structural renovation and could not fund the addition of a catwalk to allow fishing.

However, in a telephone press conference Monday morning Davis announced that the Water Resources Development Act awaiting President Reagan's signature requires the Army Corps of Engineers to pay for work necessary to retain fishing at the south pier.

"The Water Resources bill takes care of the Charlevoix pier problem," Davis said.

He explained that Charlevoix's pier is only a small part of the bill which is a major piece of legislation dealing with all water resources projects in the country.

The estimated cost of adding a catwalk to retain fishing on the pier is between $100,000 and $125,000.

Local officials and fishermen

It took an act of Congress, but a tradition of fishing from Charlevoix's south pier will continue. Currently, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is renovating the pier. Initial renovation plans did not include a catwalk to allow fishing. The Corps of Engineers said they were not allowed to spend funds for a recreational use such as fishing. Congressman Bob Davis R-Gaylord was able to get a provision placed in the Water Resources Act which will provide funds for a catwalk.

Ahead-lines

Keeping our little ghouls safe

It used to be ghosts and goblins, but these days it seems like more kids are inclined to dress up like punk rockers and strange cartoon characters. Frightening, isn't it?

Monday night, flocks of costumed little gnomes take to the streets for their annual candy haul. The police department says that trick or treating hours will be from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Once again, the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite will mysteriously turn into a haunted ghost ship. Children are invited to tour the ghost ship between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. There is no admission charge. Ghost ship expenses are paid for with donations from local businesses.

District Health Department No. 3 has issued several safety recommendations to trick or treaters.

Parents should warn children not to eat any of their treats before they get home. Parents should examine all treats carefully before allowing them to be eaten by children. (Parents should note that "examining carefully" does not mean eating half of the kids' candy.)

Costumes, masks, beards and wigs should be labeled "Flame Resistant." Although these items could still catch fire, such labeling indicates they will resist burning and should extinguish quickly when removed from the ignition source.

Filmsy materials with baggy sleeves or billowy skirts should be avoided to minimize the risk of contact with candles or other sources of ignition.

Costumes should be bright and easily visible to motorists. Costumes can be decorated with reflective tape which is usually available in hardware, bicycle and sporting goods stores. Children should also carry flashlights so they can see and be seen.

Children should be cautioned against running out from between parked cars. Children should use the sidewalk and walk, not run, from house to house.

Children should only go to homes where residents have outside lights on as a sign or welcome. Children should not enter homes or apartments unless they are accompanied by an adult.

People receiving trick or treaters should remove anything that could be an obstacle from steps, lawns and porches. Candlelit jack-o-lanterns should be kept away from landings and doorsteps where costumes could brush against the flame.

City Council Committee of the Whole, meets at city hall, 7 p.m.

Mesquite transformed to ghost ship

Charlevoix's Ghost Ship is back.

Ghost Ship? What's a Ghost Ship?

Those veterans of Charlevoix Halloweens know that every year around October 31 the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite has mysteriously turned into something haunted. Can't say too much or it'll spoil all the fun; however, it just might be the most frightful experience you'll have in at least a year.

Admission is free. All expenses are paid with donations from local businesses.

So if you're into ghosts, goblins, and "things that go bump in the night," the Ghost Ship will be open from 6 to 9 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 31, at the city dock.

You never know what may appear....

...a house of indecision

would allow more parking spaces at a lower construction cost per space.

Rosemary Lawson indicated that she was surprised that the council first indicated the property would be sold and now seems to be considering reversing itself.

"I'm a little confused," she said. "I thought some of those issues had been resolved before you advertised for bids."

She referred to the sign in the yard and advertisements indicating the property was for sale.

Councilman Norm Probert said the city retained the right of first refusal when it requested bids. However, he also noted the money the city has put into selling the house. He referred to attorney fees, engineering fees, the cost of having a sign painted and advertising for bids.

Lawson said, "It just doesn't make any sense that you can put advertisements in the paper and then not know if you're going to sell the property."

...fish tale's happy ending

hailed the news as an important victory for Charlevoix recreation and pier fishing.

"I think it's fantastic for the community," city manager Mike Wiesner told Davis in the phone conference.

"It's a milestone, not only for the Charlevoix area, but for the pier fishery throughout the state," said local charter fisherman Jim Withers.

Withers noted that fishermen weren't asking the government to add anything to the pier, they just didn't want something which has been there for years, taken away.

"We're not asking for anything more, but we don't want any less," Withers said.

Davis said this particular piece of legislation only addresses the situation in Charlevoix, but it indicates that congress "wants recreation facilities to remain the same as before, not be diminished."

The south pier is being renovated because it is structurally decaying. From the bridge, it is apparent that the lighthouse is tilting in toward the channel. The debate over the renovation project began early in the spring when fishermen discovered that the planned renovation would restrict fishing from the pier.

Withers said Monday's news was very important.

"I think the people that were in a position to consider this realized the importance of the pier fishery," he said.

Just a low-down gloater

Dust gathers on the crowns of kings and queens.

Day after day, week after week, month after month, little pawn soldiers stare across at the enemy. They wait to be sacrificed in battle, but no battle is fought.

A beautiful chess set rests atop an end table in the corner of Don and Carol Burferd's living room. No games have been played on it in more than a year.

Over time, two of the white pawns have become turned so that instead of facing the enemy across the board, they are facing each other. They are two little soldiers who, having grown bored with inactivity, broke formation and turned to ask one another, "So when do we get on with this anyway? No fun just standing here."

Why? Why has this chess set got unused for so long?

Carol Burferd offers a simple and direct answer to this question.

"Because Don's no fun to play chess with. I can't beat him very often and he gloats when he wins."

"Me, gloat when I win?" Don, just the picture of innocence, asks. "I find this indictment of my character beyond comprehension."

"Yeah, I'll bet he does" Carol says. "But just because he's too simple to comprehend something doesn't mean it's not true."

"And he's even worse when he wins at cards," Carol adds. "His mother will support on this. Last Thursday night, we were at his parents' house playing cards. He and his father were teamed up against his mother and I. Before the night was over, they got gloating so bad that his mother and I were ready to throttle them."

"Now wait a minute," Don breaks in. "I feel compelled to defend myself against this groundless character assassination. We were playing cards and the men's team just happened to have the good fortune of winning two or three games back to back. Then dad or I, I forget just which one of us it was, innocently noted how ironic it was that time after time things seemed to go our way in this game of chance."

"Don't give me this 'innocently noted' stuff," Carol fumed. "You were winning and you were rubbing it in you miserable, low-down..."

"Wait...wait...let's not start with the names again," Don says. "You and mother called us enough names and said enough bad things about us the other night to last a while. I'm still smarting from that comment about arrogance. I'm a sensitive guy, you know."

Arrogance?

"Yes, arrogance," Carol explains. "He was hauling in the cards after winning a hand and totalling up points out loud and being just so smug and cocky it'd make you want to puke. His mother told him he was arrogant and not only was he arrogant, he was lucky to be arrogant, because were it not for arrogance, he'd have no personality at all."

"Cut me to the heart with that comment," Don maintains. "Bowled me right off my chair, I was so shocked."

"Shocked nothing," Carol says. "You fell off your chair laughing because you'd succeeded in getting our goat. There you were, rolling around on the floor, laughing and braying like a jackass mule."

"OK, so maybe dad and I had been gloating a little," Don concedes. "But give us a little credit. Once it was pointed out to us, we took steps to reform."

"Reform," Carol yells. "You just got worse under the guise of reform. They'd win a hand, then one of them would say, 'Now that went pretty well, didn't it?' And the other would say, 'Careful. Careful now. You're getting awful close to gloating there. And we wouldn't want to do that.' To which the one who made the original comment would answer, 'No sir. No sir. It's a mighty small person who gloats when they win. That's poor sportsmanship and we like to think we're above it. Besides, some people...people who shall remain unnamed...are sensitive and we wouldn't want to offend any sensitivities.'"

"They were terrible," Carol says. "By the end of the night, mom and I were ready to feed them those cards."

"I don't know what else I can say to defend myself," Don concludes. "I guess it's probably good that we don't play chess anymore. Those chess players and nice ceramic ones. It'd be a pity to have one break when it got thrown at me."

Price laws and wildlife

"Ask and ye shall receive," she the Good Book says.

A couple weeks ago I wondered aloud what long-suffering consumers could do about being ripped off by the electronic gadgetry now in use at some super-market checkout counters and other retail stores.

According to Diane Barker of Troy, help is already available via Michigan's Item Pricing Law.

Ms. Barker, who is a summer resident of Charlevoix, sent along a copy of an article from the Oct. 22 Troy Eccentric listing some of the provisions of the law.

The law includes a penalty formula for consumers who are overcharged by a pricing scanner.

"The formula allows consumers to receive the difference between the scanner's price reading and the price stamped on the product, plus 10 times that difference, in an amount not less than $1 nor more than $5," the article claims.

The Eccentric offers the following example:

Say a box of raisins marked at $1.69 is read by the scanner as $1.99. Under a penalty formula, the consumer is entitled to the price difference of 30 cents, plus 10 times the difference — or $3.30 in all.

The article says that consumers who believe that they have been overcharged should save both the package and the cash register receipt and present both items to the store manager within 30 days of purchase. The store has two days to settle the matter using the penalty formula.

"If the store tries to give the consumer less than the penalty amount, the consumer may sue the store in District or Small Claims Court. Consumers who win their suits may receive $250 plus up to $300 in attorney's fees if an attorney was hired for the case," the article claims.

Free copies of a one-page Item Pricing Law tipsheet are available by writing or calling the Michigan Consumers Council, 441 Hollister Building, Lansing, Mich. 48933; telephone (517) 373-0947. I intend to send for one.

Mrs. Barker says she thinks it would be unfair if consumers abused the law.

"We just want what's fair," she writes. "It's a fair law — people just need to know about it."

A LOT OF STRANGE sounds emanate from the vicinity of our wood stove in the parlor. The roar of a freshly-laid fire. The gentle hissing of the teakettle. The snap and crackle of twigs as they ignite. Minor explosions as pockets of trapped air expand. The gentle hum of logs settling into new positions. The flutter of little wings.

The flutter of little wings?

Sunday morning when I went downstairs, Rotunda — my fat black cat — had positioned herself in front of our wood stove and was examining it carefully. Her head was tilted to one side, like a dog watching a Victrola.

Then I heard a chirp and a flutter of wings and I realized that a bird had somehow come down the chimney overnight and was sputtering around inside the stove.

My problem was how to get the bird out without turning it loose inside the house. A bird in the house, as the Irish well know, is a bad omen because it presages a death in the family.

I had almost decided to put Rotunda in the stove and let the bird be the harbinger of its own demise when Judy interfered. She thought I should try to capture the bird in the basket of a deep fryer, slip a pan lid underneath and carry the victim outside to freedom.

Her scheme was fool-proof, but it didn't work the way she had planned. When I opened the stove door, out stormed a very angry, full grown finch which headed straight for the living room window and became trapped behind the window curtain.

But from then on, Judy's makeshift live-trap worked to perfection. I clamped the fryer basket over the bird while Judy maneuvered the lid between the basket and the bird. Together we made our way to the front porch and released the bird, which took off immediately on a sooty flight to the nearest maple.

So if you ever hear a bird in your stove, don't hesitate to give me a call. I'll have Rotunda over there in a jiffy.

lessen the impact on this wild area.

Is it really necessary to build a 16 to 18 foot trail? I'm not against cross country skiing in that area. I grew up by the mountain (as we called it) and can remember 'cross country skiing' on my downhill 'skis through those very woods.

I wonder how many people they plan to have using the trail at one time. Too many people might take away from the pristine feeling of the area.

Maybe a 6 to 8 foot path would be more appropriate, that way almost no trees would have to be sacrificed. Too many beautiful birch and maples were lost already to improvements on the park, including the wider road, sled run, and parking lot.

Lets not crowd out all the remaining wildlife that inhabit this unique area and try to save something undeveloped and unspoiled for our children and their children to enjoy

Cashier defense

Dear Editor,

I would like to respond to Mr. Bob Clock, and his article, "the ugly tale of the tape," which appeared in your paper on October 12. It seems to me that Mr. Clock must be under a great deal of pressure to put out a few lines each week. Otherwise his sense of better judgement would have prevented him from writing such an unnecessary article.

I am sure there is not a consumer alive who has not felt some frustration with scanning devices in the check-out lane. But does Mr. Clock think that his article is somehow going to make the computers feel ashamed of themselves. I think not.

Mr. Clock's article has accomplished possibly two things. It has made some people aware that they should check their register receipts, although this is questionable. I tend to think that anyone who isn't intelligent enough to check receipts, probably spends very little time reading beyond the front page of your newspaper.

So, I take it back his article has accomplished only one thing. It has made life miserable for the vast majority of service clerks and cashiers who take their jobs seriously, who are friendly, and who perform their jobs as efficiently as possible.

Those people are not all stamped out by the same "new fangled" machine Mr. Clock. If you have a problem with one cashier, you need not lump them altogether, and say that anyone working behind a scanner is a robot. We are talking about human beings Mr. Clock. Loving, breathing, human beings who generally get very little credit for the work they do.

They are responsible for large amounts of money. They are angered by people who cash welfare checks, and then by beer and twinkies. They lift thousands of pounds of canned goods in a day. They work hard. They listen to everyone's gripes. They go home tired and sore. Do not equate them with the machines they work behind.

When was the last time you thanked a cashier, Mr. Clock? When was the last time you suggested they "have a nice day?"

Ours is not a perfect world Mr. Clock. If it were, your "regular store" with the "friendly" checkout clerks would have been open. If it were a perfect world you would not have forgotten your kitty litter. If it were a perfect world, you would have a golden retriever and there would be less men named Bob!

Fortunately for you, the store with the scanners was open on a Sunday, for your cat's convenience. Did you mention to the cashier that you were glad she was working on a Sunday night? Will you do so next time when the beeping is done?

Mr. Clock, you did not want to make a nuisance of yourself to the cashier who overcharged you. But now you are a nuisance to not one, but to all cashiers.

The next time you have a legitimate problem with a cashier, waiter, gas station attendant, shoe salesman, or any service related person, try writing to their manager. Believe me, something will get done.

You might also try writing a thank-you note the next time someone goes out of their way to make your life easier or more enjoyable. Do so, and you will have a friend for life.

In the mean time Mr. Clock, don't air your kitty litter in 'public.

Berating Bush

An open letter to the Dukakis campaign management team:

Why don't you argue as follows?

If George Bush is against the ACLU, the American Civil Liberties Union, he is against civil liberties and civil rights, which the ACLU is in business to protect.

If George Bush is against liberals, he's against liberal arts colleges such as Harvard and Yale, and hundreds of other liberal institutions in this great country of ours. For all we know, he may be against liberty, too, which is the same word with a different ending.

George Bush has tried to make the word "liberal" into a dirty word, and I think that's un-American.

New bandshell progresses

Three motions regarding the proposed new city bandshell were acted on by the city council in a special meeting Monday evening.

City council members formally transferred $52,578.85 to the bandshell. The money had previously been earmarked for the bandshell, but never formally allocated.

The council agreed to apply for a $50,000 state equity grant which if received would pay most of the cost of installing restrooms and a tile floor in the bandshell.

Council agreed to allow the existing bandshell to be demolished this fall.

Bandshell committee accountant Bob Hoffman explained the bandshell's current funding status. He said that the current funds available (a figure which includes cash receipts, pledged contributions and labor-in-kind contributions) is $106,033.71. He said he is confident another $15,000 will be raised from fund raising projects already in motion.

The total estimated cost of the project including bathrooms, a tile floor and $11,500 for cost over-run is $186,000.

If $50,000 of that is defrayed by the equity grant, the remaining amount bandshell proponents would have to raise to complete the project is $136,000.

Bandshell committee member John Hess told the council, "I think we are well enough along in our fundraising program so that we are not going to be stopped."

He said he is confident the bandshell can now be built. Local builder Ray Wood has agreed to oversee the demolition which will be done by Site Planning in conjunction with volunteer help from city workers.

A model of the proposed new bandshell is on display at the public library. At a special meeting Monday evening, the city council gave permission for demolition of the old bandshell to begin and formally transferred more than $50,000 to the bandshell effort.

Swimming pool discussed

A Monday evening meeting regarding a proposal to put an indoor swimming pool in the electric plant building near Ferry Beach brought more questions than answers.

First and foremost among the questions was, where will the electric department be moved to and how much will that cost?

Ken Weller, who chaired the meeting, said one of the primary purposes of the meeting was to address long term plans such as if the electric department is going to be moved.

Councilman Butch Russell said that although there's been talk of moving the quarters of the city electric and street departments, nothing has been done.

Council member Shirley Roloff said the council's biggest concern with the swimming pool proposal is that the council has no idea how they're going to move or fund moving the electric plant.

Dave Strawbridge, one of the people behind the swimming pool proposal, said it might be possible for the city to fund city street and electrical building through the sale of the current city street department building and property.

Roloff said the city doesn't have any ideas of doing anything with either the city garage or electric plant at this time. She added that she doesn't think any of the council members are against having an indoor community swimming pool, but some things are going to have to be worked out before that can be done.

County commissioner Don Smith questioned funding plans for the pool. According to the pool proposal, a significant share of the funds would come from the Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA). Smith said he questions if TIFA funds can legally be used to fund projects such as swimming pools.

Audience member John Sharrow asked who's going to be responsible for maintaining and operating the pool if it is built.

Weller said the purpose of Monday night's meeting was focused more on considering an appropriate site rather than costs.

Sharrow said that was fine, but that when the issue of operating costs is addressed he will want to comment on it. He said that he lived in a city downstate where there was an indoor public pool. He said first the city tried to run it and that didn't work out. Then the school tried to run it and that too failed. Finally a private enterprise took it over and they went bankrupt.

At the conclusion of the meeting, mayor Ralph McRae agreed to appoint a steering committee to continue looking into possible sites and funding alternatives for a community pool.

County discusses millage

Two members of the general public and Charlevoix Schools Superintendent Gordon VanWieren turned out for the county's millage rate hearing last week.

Lillian Cikalo and Florence White of Evangeline Township, both senior citizens, said they were interested in hearing what their taxes will be and expressed the hope they would not be increased. What they learned was:

Charlevoix County will levy 5.6846 mills for county operating costs for the coming year. This is an increase of .7878 mills over last year's levy and it will add $19.19 to tax bills on property with an assessed valuation of $25,000. The increase is due largely to the .75 mills voted for operation of Grandvue Medical Care Facility in the August Primary.

Tax bills received by County residents in December will also include millage assessments for their city or township government, their local school district, and the Intermediate School District.

Last year, the average total (including all these assessments) county-wide tax levy was 43.81 mills. This year's total county tax levy cannot be determined until after the November 14 millage election in the Boyne City school district, which includes the City of Boyne City and all or part of eight townships.

Hospital outlaws smoking

To emphasize the dangers of cigarette smoking and to ensure the good health of patients, visitors and employees, the Board of Directors and medical staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital voted to make the institution smokefree.

Effective January 1, 1989, smoking will not be permitted in any hospital building or in the vicinity of the front entrances and front parking lot.

"As a health care leader for our community, Charlevoix Area Hospital has a responsibility to point out the dangers of smoking. Smoking is the number one cause of preventable death in our country today. Therefore, it is incompatible with our mission of good health. Our smokefree policy enhances the well-being of our patients and employees and emphasizes the importance of clean air for all," said Richard Krueger, administrator.

The smokefree policy applies to everyone at the hospital—employees, physicians, patients, and visitors. Patients will be notified before admission that smoking will not be permitted and will be asked to inform friends and relatives who may visit them during their stay.

"Smoking is detrimental to the recovery of all patients, both smokers and nonsmokers," Krueger said. "We ask that visitors respect their needs so that our patients can recover as quickly and comfortably as possible."

Employees, physicians, and volunteers will not be allowed to smoke at the hospital. Employees will not be required to quit smoking, but must uphold the policy and not smoke on the job. Smoking cessation classes are being offered to assist those who wish to stop smoking. The next series of classes will be held in January.

The new policy will bring the hospital into compliance with recently passed state legislation which strictly regulates smoking in health care facilities. That law becomes effective April 1, 1989.

County participates in health program

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has endorsed a Health Department program by which County employees will be offered free medical tests.

The program of disease prevention, health education and health promotion (PEP) includes a health risk analysis in which each participant voluntarily completes a questionnaire outlining individual lifestyle choices (eating and drinking habits, smoking, use of seat belts, rest patterns, etc.). This data is then entered into a computer for analysis and a printout which provides suggested behavioral changes that will reduce risks commonly associated with heart diseases, cancer, stroke, and accidents.

Those participating in the program are also measured and weighed and tested for blood pressure and cholesterol. The results of the questionnaire and physical testing are then discussed in a counseling session with a health department nurse, and if any followup is called for, the participant is referred to his or her physician.

The PEP program will be offered by District Health Department No. 3 at a minimal cost to businesses and industries in Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, and Otsego Counties in the near future. It is made possible by a special grant to the Health Department and is being coordinated by Ann Smith.

Big Rock removes old train tracks crossing U.S. 31

School buses and other vehicles that are required to stop at railroad crossings now have a non-stop trip between Charlevoix and Petoskey. The one railroad crossing on US-31 between the two cities have been taken out.

Consumers Power Company is now in the process of removing the railroad spur that connects its Big Rock Point nuclear plant to the main rail line across US-31 four miles northeast of Charlevoix. The tracks and the highway crossing were installed during construction of the nuclear plant in the early 1960s.

to permit delivery of large and heavy components. The rail spur was later used for shipments off site. The tracks have remained idle since the mid 1970s. Several years ago, the main line was washed out so that use of the tracks for shipments became impossible.

Although the tracks were not used, state law required that crossing signs on US-31 remain in place and vehicles such as school buses and fuel tankers had to stop before crossing the idle spur. The crossing signs have now been removed.

After the tracks crossing the highway are taken up, the highway will be patched according to state standards with concrete and asphalt so that there will be no bumps or potholes where once there were rails.

The cost of removing the 6,000 feet of track will be covered by the salvage value of the rails themselves. The more than 300 rails, each weighing a half ton, will be sold for use on railroad lines elsewhere.

Recycling of railroad trackage does not appear to be anything new. Numbers of the rails suggest they were made in 1927. Apparently, Big Rock Point was not the first home for these tracks and it will not be the last.

Guild members receive awards

Eleven Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild members were honored by the hospital administration at a special luncheon October 13.

Sheriff offers winter watch

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is once again reminding residents of Charlevoix County that if they are to be absent from their homes for any period of time, this department has a program to check on these homes in their absence.

In order to participate in this program the home owner must contact this office in person and request the security check form or call the Sheriff's Office at 547-4461 and request that a form be sent to them. If a resident has applied for this program in the past the request must be resubmitted each year.

It should be noted that this program does not take the place of private security programs. It adds to the coverage and works along with these private organizations.

Three charter members of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild were among 11 people recently honored by the guild. The charter members have been with the guild since 1954. The three are: (seated) Edith Chamberlain, (standing from left) Eleanor Schultz and LaRue Gill.

Methodists have new minister

The Rev. Benton Heisler of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church says he thought long and hard before deciding to become a minister.

A graduate of Central Michigan University, Heisler taught math and science at the Gladwin Middle School for three years, and served as assistant basketball coach, before "receiving the call".

He and his wife, Linda, were active as lay persons in church affairs, but they felt a calling to something beyond this work. After talking to other pastors and continuing to hear the call, he entered the Methodist Theological School in Delaware, Ohio, from which he later graduated.

Heisler came to Charlevoix last August from St. Joseph, where he had served as associate pastor of the First United Methodist Church. He considers worship the focal point of his church and strives for a strong worship service which "touches, inspires, and challenges individuals to carry on the ministry of Christ in their homes and in the community".

Rev. Benton Heisler

Jackson. During his college years he spent seven months in Truro, Cornwall, England as a volunteer youth and community worker under the sponsorship of the United Methodist Church. He lived with five different families and made many close friends, with whom he has kept in touch. This past summer, he and Linda and one-year-old daughter Kelsey went back to Truro to renew the friendships. Living and knowing people in another part of the world may partially account for Heisler's concern for peace. As he explains it, "The issue central to my ministry is the preservation and encouragement of peace, both within the world and within ourselves, mentally, physically,

Halloween party deemed big success

The Charlevoix Firemen's Halloween Party at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant this past Sunday evening raised approximately $3,000 toward a new rescue truck.

The fund raising drive is now within $4,000 of the goal of $5,000. Firemen hope to complete fundraising and order the truck this fall so it will be in Charlevoix next spring. The estimated cost of the truck is $70,000. Firemen had $35,000 when the fund raising drive began.

Sunday's party was attended by more than 250 people. Those attending ate hors d'oeuvres from Stafford's and were entertained by Larry Wojcik and his 17 piece bands. Both were excellent according to party organizers.

Mrs. Biddick has a degree in environmental education from Michigan State University and Mrs. Sanderson has become knowledgeable about area recycling programs.

"Our town is looking and doing better. We are the envy of a very large number of communities. Charlevoix has a very good reputation to uphold and a mayor should be the most ardent of all persons."

"The mayor should be a leader in promoting civic pride and encouraging investments in our promising future. The mayor should be the best informed citizen of our city. To be that informed, he must attend scores of meetings both in town and out of town."

"He should always be available and ready to go anywhere at any time. And so doing, it should be a pleasure and not a boring chore. He should not complain of the time or the hours spent. It is just part of his job. I try to do all the above mentioned things — plus a little more."

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Duane Nelson
Church of the Nazarene

Have you ever thought about this Scripture in Matthew 5:8, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God"? Does it mean that those who don't have a pure heart won't see God? But what does purity of heart mean and how does one become pure in heart? Let's try to answer some of those questions.

I believe that it is more than safe to say that if one doesn't have a pure heart they won't see God. We are told in Galatians 5:19-21 that impure acts keep us out of Heaven; and how can we see God at the passing of our lives unless we make it to Heaven. Impure acts are born in an impure heart.

But what does this purity of heart mean? There are two words in the original language that mean pure. One lends itself to mean holy and the other to cleanse. The meaning in Matthew 5:8 is found in the latter. The scripture could be read something like this: "Blessed are those who have a clean heart" or "Blessed are those who have had their heart cleansed." It contains an allusion of a room which is spotless.

Now on a human level, we know that there is no such thing as a spotless room; but on a spiritual level with God as sole Creator, we know that there is nothing impossible for Him (Luke 1:37) including a spotless, clean, pure heart.

We know that we cannot get to Heaven just on acts alone, but faith attached with pure acts (James 2:20-26). And without a pure heart, we won't see God?

So how do we get a pure, clean heart? First we must realize that we cannot do this on our own; we have to rely on God and His grace and let Him do the heart-cleansing.

"If we confess our sins, he (Christ) is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9). Then live out the heart-cleansing that God did. This is where we tow the line and live out our purity of heart with pure acts.

With a pure heart and God in complete control, we have Him and His power to help us live it. "Do not be hasty in the laying on of hands, and do not share in the sins of others. Keep yourself pure (1 Timothy 5:22).

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God."

Boys' cross country continues league dominance

The Charlevoix boys' cross country team ran in the Michigan Huron Shores League Meet last week. Five other teams also showed up for the race, but a review of the results gives no indication of why they bothered.

To simply say Charlevoix won the race would be like saying the Pacific Ocean is a fairly large body of water.

In winning their ninth straight league championship, Charlevoix dominated. The Rayder team score of 19 points was 40 points better than second place Gaylord.

Charlevoix's Scott Miller, Gehry Wiesner and Paul Wakulat finished first, second and third. Bill Burns and Dylan

Stewart placed seventh and eighth.

The places of a team's top five finishers are added to tabulate the team score. Charlevoix's Bill Crook placed sixth among Charlevoix runners therefore his score wasn't included when tabulating Charlevoix's team score. However, Crook finished tenth overall and therefore was qualified for all league status along with his teammates.

Tim Henne was Charlevoix's seventh varsity runner. He placed 18th in the race. With the exception of Gaylord, Henne would have placed not lower than third among the runners from any other league team.

Miller won the race in a time of 16:05. The race was run Oct. 18 at Petoskey. The course record of 15:09 was set in 1983 by Charlevoix's Bill Taylor.

Charlevoix's girls' team finished fourth among five teams, behind Gaylord, Petoskey and Sault Ste. Marie. Leigh Richardson and Julie Bush were Charlevoix's top runners, finishing seventh and eighth. Tracee Smith, Inga Meissner and Barb Haggard finished 21st, 22nd and 25th.

Basketball team wins

Charlevoix's girls' basketball team squeezed past Petoskey 46-44 last week in a battle of the Michigan Huron Shores League cellar dwellers.

The win was Charlevoix's first league victory this season although they have also won three nonconference games.

Charlevoix held Petoskey scoreless for the last four minutes of the game and Becky Largent scored the winning basket with five seconds left.

Although Charlevoix briefly led by as many as seven points in the second quarter, the game was basically close throughout.

Petoskey led 36-35 entering the fourth quarter and led 44-38 before Charlevoix went into a zone defense and Petoskey went into their game-ending scoring drought.

Melissa Boss led the Rayder scoring attack with 17 points and Billie Jean Habel contributed 11.

The inn, one of Charlevoix's earliest resort hotels, had an expensive beginning. The building, which was located at the east end of Doxon Avenue on the bluff overlooking the depot, was started in 1896. As it neared completion in the spring of 1897 the building collapsed, supposedly because the upper floors had been plastered before the lower floors were completed. Both the north and south ends fell toward the center of the building, killing two persons and wounding several more. The wreckage was torn down and a new building was completed in 1898, in time for the summer season. (Photo and information courtesy of Ralph Hamilton)

School, council, county meet to debate DDA

It ain't over 'til it's over.

Officials from the school and county met with the city council and members of the Downtown Development Authority Monday evening. They asked when the capturing of tax revenue in Charlevoix's downtown business district for DDA projects will be completed and terminated.

City officials replied that the way things look at the moment, all of the projects on the DDA's list should be funded by the mid 1990's. At that time, the city council will have to decide whether to discontinue the DDA, or extend it for an additional 10 years.

The term DDA is interchangeable used to refer to both a tax funding program and the board which governs revenues from that program.

The DDA program was adopted in 1992. What the program did was freeze the state equalized value (SEV) of property in the downtown business area for general tax collection purposes. Although the SEV was frozen for general tax collection purposes, the SEV continued to increase. The taxes collected from the increased SEV are used to fund DDA projects which are projects to improve the district covered by the DDA program.

Although the school does not get as much money as it would from the increased SEV if there were no DDA, there is a formula in Charlevoix's DDA program to allow the school a percentage of the increase.

County commissioner Don Smith pointed out that since, 1982, when the DDA program was adopted, the SEV has increased much more than anticipated. Therefore the DDA has more money to work with at an earlier date than originally planned.

Smith and school budget director Vince Olach wanted to know what this unforeseen funding increase means. Does it

Four young people killed in traffic accident

Four young people were killed Friday evening when the car they were in left U.S. 31 near Bay Shore and struck a tree.

Killed in the accident were: the driver of the car Michael Scott Lent, 20, Monica Jean Havens, 19, Scott Allen Crandell, 20 and Michelle Lynn Brill, 18. Brill was from Troy while the other three were from Charlevoix.

The accident occurred at approximately 9:40 p.m. Police said that according to witnesses, the car was northbound at a high rate of speed when it went off the road and hit a tree.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is investigating the accident. They were assisted by the Emmet County Sheriff's Department, Charlevoix Fire Department and assistant county medical examiner Dr. John Lignell.

Charlevoix County sheriff George Lasater said that all four victims were thrown from the vehicle and it is not known if they were wearing seatbelts when the accident occurred.

Although there was evidence of intoxicants at the scene of the crash, police will not know for certain which, if any, of the occupants had been drinking until autopsies are completed.

Lasater said that complete autopsy results usually take between 30 and 90 days, however the results of drug and alcohol testing will be known much sooner.

The car involved in the accident was a 1979 Pontiac Firebird.

According to a sheriff's department news release, following the accident, police began looking for the driver of a second vehicle, a sports car which also was traveling at a high rate of speed on U.S. 31 near Bay Shore at the time of the accident.

As of Monday afternoon, Lasater said the sheriff's department had seized a car, but had not confirmed that it was the same car seen near the accident scene at the time of the accident. He said the investigation is still open and the sheriff's department would like to talk to anyone who was in the area at the time of accident and might have information pertinent to the investigation.

While police worked to determine the cause of the accident, friends, family and a stunned community faced the results of the tragedy.

Funeral services for Crandell took place Monday while funeral services for Havens and Lent were held Tuesday.

County tax revenue increases 10 percent

The 1988 tax bills of Charlevoix County residents, which they will receive just before Christmas will add up to 10 percent more than the 1987 tax bills.

In the Charlevoix area, increases range from approximately five percent to approximately 26 percent, as follows:

City of Charlevoix, seven percent; Charlevoix Township, 11 percent; Eveline Township, 10 percent; Hayes Township, five percent; Marion Township, eight percent; Norwood Township, seven percent; Peaine Township, 12 percent, and St. James Township, 26 percent.

The only large county-wide increase in millage is .75 mills voted to support Grandvue Medical Care Facility. All other increases are due mainly to added millage levied by the city or townships for local improvements.

The tax levy for the Charlevoix School District also increased by .1855 mills, but it still remains the lowest in the county.

In answer to the question, "Where does all our tax money go?" in Charlevoix County, it is distributed as follows:

Education, 71.79 percent, a total of $16.1 million for local and intermediate school districts.

County, 12.49 percent, a total of $2.8 million for county operations, Grandvue Medical Care Facility and the County Transit System.

Other, 15.73 percent, a total of $3.53 million for city, township, and village operations, extra voted millage, and the Jordan Valley District Library.

Welcome to

The first of three new signs welcoming people to Charlevoix was installed next to edges of town. M-66 last week. New signs are also scheduled to be placed at the northern and southern edges of town.

Ahead-lines

Cross Country advances to state

This Saturday, Charlevoix's High School Cross Country team will travel to Bath, Michigan for the state finals.

For the boys' team, it will be the twelfth straight trip to the state meet. This year's team will not only be looking to defend their class C state championship, but will attempt to win Charlevoix's fourth state cross country championship since 1983.

Although the girls program has not yet become as dominant as the boys' program, it has been growing and improving.

Not many years ago, it was difficult to get enough girls to participate so that Charlevoix could field an entire girls team. This year, even though two of the better runners among the girls were injured, there were enough girls so that not only could Charlevoix continue to field a team, but fielded a team talented enough to qualify for the state meet.

Not only have the athletes on Charlevoix's cross country team excelled on the race course, many have also excelled in the classroom. A recent National Honor Society activity couldn't take place right after school, but had to wait until 4:30 p.m. because several National Honor Society members were also members of the cross country team and had to practice.

This year's boys' team is definitely one of the favorites, along with Beaverton, for the class C title. Beaverton beat Charlevoix in an early season invitational meet, but later in the season Charlevoix beat Beaverton 43-55 even though the Rayder's number two runner, Gehry Wiesner did not compete in the meet.

Scott Miller, Wiesner and Paul Wakulat finished first, second, and third at the Michigan Huron Shores League meet as Charlevoix won the Michigan Huron Shores title for the ninth straight year.

Miller has been the team's top runner all year and has finished several races more than 20 seconds ahead of the next runner.

Along with Miller, Wiesner and Wakulat, Bill Crook, Bill Burns, Dylan Stewart and Tim Henne will be competing for Charlevoix at state.

Girls competing for Charlevoix at the state finals will be Julie Bush, Leigh Richardson, Inga Melssner, Michelle Jacobs, Barb Haggard, Karina Stockholm and Tracee Smith.

Narcotics Anonymous meets at Alano Club, 104 Mason, 8 p.m.

Evening Lions meet at Charlevoix Yacht Club, 7 p.m.
 Rebekahs meets at the American Legion hall, 8 p.m.

Story of wayward bull: he lived happily heifer after

For him, freedom meant an opportunity to take a harem of 34 females and roam across the countryside, living off the fat of the land.

When deer knocked down a fence early last week at the Themm farm on Ferry Road, a young bull in the pasture seized the moment. He rounded up 34 heifers and headed for Lake Michigan which is between two and three miles away.

It's hard to say what he had in mind. Maybe he was just taking his bovine babes out for a trip to the beach. Then again, maybe he was heading west toward Wisconsin. That's a big dairy state. He might have relatives there.

"I guess they just decided to take a walk," farmer Mike Themm surmised following the incident.

"That's the first time we've ever had any cattle get out and go that way," he noted. He explained that normally when the cattle escape from the pasture, they just wander up to the barn.

The Themms discovered the cattle missing, but since the county road commission had graded the road that day, the trail of the fugitive cattle had been obliterated. When there are tracks, a cattle search can be completed fairly quickly. But without tracks, searchers might have to look for-heifer and a day. Either way, the search wouldn't be over until the cows come home.

Tuesday, Oct. 25, around noon, Dr. Charles Hennesy, who lives near the Lake Michigan shore at Clipperview, was sitting in his home having coffee when he looked out his window and discovered a herd of Holsteins plodding up the trail from the beach, come to pay him a visit.

For people who've never been paid a visit by a herd of cattle, Hennesy notes, "They're very obvious when they come marching up."

The discovery of the cattle left Hennesy not only surprised, but utterly amazed. It's not every day he finds 35 head, 70 nostrils or 140 hoof of cattle out in the yard. Hennesy reported the cattle to the sheriff's department. Although local law enforcement agencies hadn't issued an A.B.B. (All Bovine Bulletin) on the cattle, undersheriff Dale Boehm was dispatched to the Hennesy home.

Asked what he did about the cattle while waiting for the officer to arrive, Hennesy said, "I watched them. They moseyed (or in this case moo...seyed) around the yard, eating grass and things, making themselves at home."

Hennesy and his wife, Mary Ellen, grew up in Iowa and had been around cattle in the past so they weren't too concerned, although Hennesy kept an eye on the bull.

"The bull had a ring in his nose," Hennesy said. "He was a mean the DDA will add projects? Or does it mean the DDA will expire at an earlier date?

...debate over DDA

City planner Gerry Harsch explained that to cover all of the projects planned by the DDA, the DDA program would have to generate revenue of approximately $2.2 million. City treasurer Rick Brandt said that over the first five years, the DDA generated $512,000 and that in 1988 it brought in $276,000.

Olach said the school board is not opposed to the concept or philosophy of the DDA, but they need to know when it will end so they can make budgetary plans for the school's future.

City manager Mike Wiesner said, "There are so many variables, that's hard to answer...My best estimate, looking at the projects, is the mid 1990s."

Several people in the audience offered comments on the DDA program and board.

School board member Doris Pearl indicated that she doesn't think most people in the community understand that some of the money they approve for schools ends up going to the DDA.

Former councilman Mike Greeley replied that he doesn't think most people in the community understand that under the agreement the school also gets funds back from the DDA.

Several businessmen from the area affected by the DDA spoke in favor of it. Chamber of Commerce executive director Jacqueline Merta said the chamber board of directors has formally gone on record as supporting the DDA and its policies and objectives.

Businessman Tom LaBlance questioned the make-up of the DDA board. He said it seems like realtors and developers have taken over the thing.

Businessman Bill Supernaw also questioned if the membership of the DDA board appropriately reflects the make-up of people in the DDA district. However, he said he strongly supports the DDA philosophy.

Olach reiterated that the school also supports the concept and philosophy of the DDA, they just want to know when it's going to come to an end.

Bent fork spurs nasty memories

Pork steak, rice, a cornbread muffin, a big glass of cold milk and a football game on TV. This beautiful Sunday afternoon scene was shattered by an ugly memory. The ugly memory was triggered by a bent prong on my fork, a prong that pointed northeast when the rest of the fork was on a north-south plane.

"Dorm food!"
"Dorm food!"
"Dorm food!"

The bent fork brought that hideous memory to mind. For six years of higher education, I ate dorm food. During the first four, I was a student. During the last two, I was a dormitory director. Either way the food was all the same.

It's not like the food was terrible. The food commons workers did what they could. But still, the food was just so institutionally mundane. After a while a person's taste buds cried but for something more, something different, something exciting.

It's been several years since I've eaten dorm food, but the bent fork brought back a sharp memory. All too often the food commons forks had bent prongs. That's because they were jammed in little round plastic canisters with a thousand other forks.

You had to be careful when you were eating with those bent-pronged forks. If you weren't paying attention, you could give yourself an orally-inflicted appendectomy.

I eventually got so I was selective in picking up my silverware at the beginning of the food line. I'd pick up a fork, inspect it and if it wasn't up to snuff, I'd throw it back and grab another.

Sometimes I'd go through three or four forks before coming up with a winner.

Given that it was dorm food, I probably didn't need to be so picky about eating utensils. It's not like I was eating food that I was in a big hurry to fork down.

Dorm food was culinary dullness. The most entertaining meal of the day was breakfast because it meant a choice of cold cereal. If you wanted a hot breakfast, there were those scrambled eggs made from a powdered mix laid by a dehydrated chicken.

Lunch on Tuesday afternoons tended to be ravioli. That was one of my favorites. One semester my class schedule worked out so that I could only eat lunch early. Ravioli in the a.m., just a short time after cold cereal, offered a challenge to my digestive system, but as I said, ravioli was one of the better meals so I ate it.

I remember too many dinners which featured those little pressed slices of boneless breast of chicken. There was also a similar looking stuff which I believe was called veal, but seemed more like a replacement sole for a worn shoe.

The chicken was tolerable, but the veal was despicable. Unfortunately, they looked so much alike that a couple of times I expected chicken and was unpleasantly surprised by veal.

Sometimes the monotony of the food got to be just too much to take.

One evening a student went over the edge when he discovered that once again the main option for dinner was chicken.

He was in the serving line when he spotted the chicken and began hollering, "Chicken! Chicken again? I'm sick and tired of chicken I don't want any more chicken. I've begun to cluck when I study. I worry that some day I'll be sitting in class and lay an egg during a lecture. I don't ever want to see chicken again."

And he threw a piece of chicken at a poor, defenseless serving lady. He got a disciplinary letter from housing for that. Can't have chicken parts flying around the food commons.

The worst time of the year was just before Christmas. As a student, you knew that soon you'd be going home to eat real food and that made the dorm food just more than you could bear.

I remember more than one evening when I walked into the food commons, looked over the possibilities and concluded, "No. No. I just can't eat this stuff tonight. I've got three bucks in my pocket. Burger King, I'm yours."

This past Sunday afternoon, I didn't even try bending the prong on the fork back into place. I just tossed it in the sink and got a new one. Only then could I enjoy my meal.

Name your political poison

I have a good friend who was born in the United Kingdom. In his middle years he moved to the United States and became an American citizen because — even as a foreign national — he loved American politics.

Years ago I might have shared his enthusiasm for the hoopla, the hollow rhetoric, the grandstanding, the superficiality that characterize the election process on these hallowed shores.

But time has taken its toll. Each presidential election I become more jaded by "the system" and this year's presidential campaigns have been a distinct turn-off.

I find it incredible that in less than a week I am going to have to go to the polls and cast my ballot for a candidate whom I consider is eminently unqualified for national leadership.

Why does it always have to come down to "the lesser of two evils?"

If I vote for George Bush, it will be because I am afraid Michael Dukakis will let the country go to the dogs, a la Jimmy Carter. If I vote for Michael Dukakis, it will mean I can't stomach the idea of George Bush (and Daniel Quayle) running the store for the next 48 months.

So how do I pick my candidate? Flip a coin? Look for a sign in the stars? Listen to more nonsense from TV news commentators?

Of course, I don't have to vote for president. I could leave that spot blank. But I don't like the idea of turning over my responsibility to someone else. In a "lesser of two evils" situation, one candidate has to be less evil than the other. But which one is it?

I BELIEVE the problem lies not so much with the candidates themselves, but with their campaign managers — hired nitwits whose job it is to submit their properties to the voters in attractive packages.

Cute is the name of the game this campaign season.

Whoever talked Michael Dukakis into putting on an army uniform and driving around in a tank isn't thinking clearly. He turned his package into a pet chimpanzee.

And what about George Bush visiting a flag factory? Can you think of a more blatantly self-serving campaign gimmick?

Furthermore, what's the point of campaign managers trotting their properties all over the country for "photo opportunities." Ten minutes here, 10 minutes there. Handshaking along the tarmac, silly campaign posters bobbing up and down in the background.

Do we really have to look at another second of TV footage devoted to the candidates' wives seated on the floor of a high-toned day care center telling fairy tales to well-scrubbedurchins?

C'mon! The American people deserve something better.

Next time around, I'd like one of the candidates to act as his own campaign manager. I'd like him to limit his exposure to a couple of public appearances for major policy statements, a couple of TV programs to discuss specific issues and a couple of press conferences to fill in the blanks.

I can tell you right now this guy has my vote.

I may not agree with his politics, but I'll know my candidate has a lot more respect for the presidency than one of the mari-onettes will have to pick next Tuesday.

SPEAKING OF flags, I love the out-sized specimens now showing up throughout the area.

The first appeared a couple of years ago at a used car agency on U.S. 31 just west of Petoskey city limits.

Now Charlevoix has one at the refurbished Imperial gasoline station on U.S. 31 south.

They are just ordinary American flags with 13 bars and 50 stars, but they are yards bigger than most flags.

The one at the Imperial station is lighted from the ground and makes a beautiful sight in the evening, billowing in the breeze.

The flags appear out of proportion to the height of their poles and they probably are.

But they certainly are eye-catching.

Addington support

To the Editor:
I am writing to urge voters to support Ellen Addington because of her ideas on keeping our fuel dollars in Michigan.

Michigan imports 87 percent of its fuel. As fuel prices go up, this is a real drain on our economy. Ellen would like to see programs such as other states have to help people save and help the states' economy at the same time.

When I shopped for a Gibson refrigerator, made in Greenville, Michigan, I was told that they make a super efficient one for California to meet California standards but could sell less efficient ones in Michigan. Ellen would like to see such standards in Michigan. It would mean more business for a Michigan manufacturer and less money going out of the state for the fuels that run refrigerators. Wisconsin, for instance, uses oil overcharge money to give $1300 to each day care center for new efficient boilers.

North Carolina has a program of giving $2000 worth of materials plus instruction to rural churches to insulate.

These programs help people. They help the states economy. This is what Ellen will push. They make sense.

...Clipperview cattle drive

quiet bull, not the vicious kind."

Other people familiar with the bull concur with that assessment of his disposition. They say he's a nice bull and has never bothered anyone.

Of course with 34 heifers at his disposal, why would he want to bother with anything else? And where would he find the energy?

When Boehm showed up, the cattle were still standing in the yard. Boehm said that within the past month, the sheriff's department has responded to about four reports of escaped livestock. Although Boehm grew up in the city of Chicago, he's worked with cattle before, so it's common for him to be the officer dispatched for livestock situations.

Boehm said he normally just watches the cattle until the owners show up, then helps get them home. This time, while waiting, he tried to herd the cattle out to the road and get them started in the right direction. But the cattle were having none of it. They went back toward the lake and stood in some cedar trees.

"I wish I'd have had my horse," Boehm said. He noted that herding cattle with a horse is a lot simpler than chasing them around on foot or with a patrol car.

When the Themms arrived, they got the cattle out to the road and headed for home. Boehm gave the cattle drive something of a police escort, stopping traffic on U.S. 31 so the cattle could safely cross.

Themms noted that although it may have been the bull that led the herd astray, it was a heifer that showed the way home once the adventure was over.

Hennessey, who chuckled as he recalled the incident, voiced one regret over the cattle's visit. Mentioning that he and his wife have a garden, he said, "I wish they'd have left something for garden fertilizer."

But that's the way life is. You have to let the chips fall where they may, but sometimes they may not fall.

Swimming pool committee formed

Although placing a community indoor swimming pool at the city electric plant building in the near future seems unlikely and therefore a grant application this year appears essentially doomed, there are those who feel strongly that a community pool should be built and therefore a pool steering committee has been formed.

At a special meeting of the city council Monday evening pool steering committee member Bruce MacArthur said the committee is in the "gathering information" stage.

Before a pool is built, there are two $64 dollar questions which must be answered. The first is where to build the thing? The second is how will pool operating costs be financed?

MacArthur said the committee is searching for creative solutions to those questions. He said the committee is looking at alternate locations. The are also studying funding alternatives that would not include any type of tax increase. One funding alternative being considered is an endowment fund. That would involve investing a large amount of money and operating the pool with revenues from that investment.

Several members of the pool committee visited the East Jordan pool Oct. 26. Bill Haggard, of Haggard Plumbing, explained how a special system related to the pool removes moisture from the air and recycles heat.

This past Tuesday, pool committee members visited the Harbor Springs swimming pool.

At Monday's council meeting, pool committee chairman Ken Weller said that an engineer and a grant specialist will soon be visiting Charlevoix from downstate to look at possible sites and discuss grant alternatives.

Grandvue hosts open house Sunday

by FRAN MARTIN

The Grandvue Medical Care Facility will host an Open House at the facility, located two miles northeast of East Jordan, from 1-5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 6, Mrs. Regina Shafer, facility administrator, has announced.

The purpose of the open house will be to celebrate the 30 year anniversary of the opening of the Medical Care Facility, and to introduce the public to the recent redecorating and refurbishing project, the first since the facility opened in 1958. The main entry and the corridors leading to the patient wings and the large all-purpose room utilized as a lounge and chapel-meeting room were included in the project. Folding doors separate the large rooms when necessary.

The renovation has been financed by a special fund set aside through the years from contributions by grateful families and friends of patients and from the 1983 Tag Day receipts contributed by the Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary. Mrs. Shafer explained, thus assuring the public that millage approved earlier this year for operation of the facility (and not levies at this time) is not being used for the present project.

In issuing the invitation to the public to attend the open house on Sunday, Mrs. Shafer urged attendance so the public may see how their contributions have been spent for the benefit of the patients at Grandvue.

The decorating and refurbishing was done under the supervision of Barbara E. Eschrich of Americana Design of Rochester Hills, who specializes in the design of nursing homes and facilities serving the infirm and the elderly. In giving an overview of her role in the renovation at Grandvue, Mrs. Eschrich said, "An interior designer's work can set the tone for an entire facility, influencing what people think of it and how they live and work there. Too often a designer is thought of as a mere decorator, brought in to pick out patterns for carpets, upholstery and colors for the walls. It is important that a designer ask questions, study the space, consider the traffic, and use each area under consideration. Only then can a program be developed."

"Designing for the elderly, and not so elderly, requires a knowledge of certain physical characteristics along with rules and regulations set by the State of Michigan," Eschrich continued. "All materials used must meet particular classificatons for the safety and well being of the residents."

"One's vision changes in several ways as one grows older. Not only does it weaken, but colors may appear darker and muddier. A light, bright palette of colors should be considered. Colors should not be faded; the rooms should look fashionable for years. Palettes of colors will change as we move on in the facility. Furniture must be stable, chairs should have arms, seats need to be a particular height for ease of maneuverability. At the same time, furniture should appear residential, not institutional."

"The programming, planning, design and execution of the project should be worked out with the client so the job can be carried out as quickly and economically as possible, without disrupting the operation of the facility more than is absolutely necessary," Eschrich went on to say. "Details are more important, such as covered switchplates and accessories, and also lighting, which are all items you would consider in your home. Grandvue is your home, and the highest compliment a designer can be paid is for a resident to feel the "home" atmosphere. I would hope to continue the concept of the lobby and dayroom throughout other areas of the facility, giving it a unity throughout."

The project has results in a more cheerful setting with comfortable grouping of furniture giving the facility a more homelike atmosphere.

The final decision regarding the choice of colors and design was made by the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services Committee, headed by Condit Drury, with Richard Tilden as secretary, and Mrs. Shafer, from suggestions made by Mrs. Eschrich. The committee oversees the operation of the facility for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. Serving on the committee with Drury and Tilden are Eliene Rouse of Boyne City and Jane Mayhew of East Jordan.

Grandvue Medical Care Facility was constructed in 1958, and at that time had facilities for 61 patients requiring nursing care. In 1968, 12 more beds were added, and in 1978, construction of a 27 bed Residential Wing was begun and completed in March of 1980 for patients needing less than skilled care, bringing the facility's capacity to 100 beds.

Grandvue welcomes everyone to visit on Sunday and help them celebrate 30 years of loving, caring service to the residents of Charlevoix County.

Kids color safely

Last week, Charlevoix Elementary School students learned safety tips for trick or treating through coloring books contributed by the local Kiwanis Club.

The coloring books were designed to be a fun way to communicate safety information to the children. The books offered some basic Halloween safety tips, including: children should be accompanied by family members or friends while trick or treating; costumes should include reflective tape or light colored clothing; trick or treaters should carry a small light or flashlight; children should trick or treat in a familiar neighborhood; before children eat their treats, the treats should be checked by parents.

Elementary school counselor Gayle Gannett is the Youth Activities Chairperson for the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and coordinated the coloring book donation.

City voters to choose mayor and three council members

City voters will choose a mayor, three council members and decide a single ballot proposal in voting this coming Tuesday.

In the mayoral race, incumbent Ralph McRae is being challenged by Gary Probert.

Charlevoix city elections are nonpartisan (i.e. candidates do not declare a party affiliation) therefore Probert and McRae were also pitted against each other in the August primary election. Council member Shirley Roloff also ran for mayor in the primary.

In the primary, McRae received 344 votes, Probert 339 and Roloff 231.

McRae and Probert will face each other on Tuesday's general election ballot. McRae is a retired building contractor. Probert is a builder and the son of first ward councilman Norm Probert.

Roloff was eliminated from the mayoral race in the primary election. Although she is no longer a candidate for mayor, she has launched a write-in campaign to retain her third ward council seat. To do that, she will have to beat James E. Potter and John A. Yaroch.

Potter, Yaroch and Janice Lynn McKay ran for the third ward seat in the primary. Potter received 168 votes, Yaroch 78 and McKay 42. Potter and Yaroch's names will appear on next Tuesday's ballot. Potter owns and operates Potter Appliance. Yaroch is a local realtor.

In the other two council races, incumbent Bill Bellows will be challenged by Ken Whitley in the second ward and incumbent Bill Haggard will be challenged by Jerry Left in the first ward.

Since there were only two candidates in each ward there were no primaries for these two races.

The ballot issue asks, "Shall a general charter commission be convened?"

The proposal was triggered by council debate over a provision in the current charter which does not allow the mayor to vote unless it is necessary to break a tie among the council members.

Although that was the issue that triggered the proposal, if voters choose to convene a charter commission, that commission could also recommend whatever revisions they deemed necessary beyond that one issue. It is also possible the commission would leave the charter the way it is.

If people vote to convene a charter commission, there will have to be another election within 60 days to elect people to serve on the commission.

Before a revised charter could go into effect, it would have to be approved by voters in a future election.

The ins and outs of voting

All city registered voters wishing to participate in next Tuesday's general election may cast ballots at the city hall between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m.

If for some reason a voter can't make it to the polls Tuesday, he or she may file an application for an absentee ballot with city clerk Arlene Staley. Staley said she will be at the city hall from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. this Saturday for people needing to pick up absentee ballots.

As of last Friday, several city voters had already cast absentee ballots. A total of 463 absentee ballots had been cast by the middle of Friday afternoon; 158 in the first ward, 158 in the second ward and 147 in the third ward.

Although voters could not split their ticket (i.e. vote for a Democrat in one race and a Republican in another) in the August primary election, they may split their ticket in the general election.

There is at least one candidate running a write-in candidacy and in some past elections last minute write-in candidacies have cropped up.

To vote for a write-in or sticker candidate, a voter must write in the candidate's name and office the candidate is seeking on the inside flap of the grey privacy envelope the ballot comes in. If a candidate provides a sticker, the sticker can be used instead of writing the name in.

There are presently 2,415 active registered voters in the city of Charlevoix. An active voter is a registered voter who has voted in a city election sometime within the past four years.

Staley said the number of absentee ballots turned in prior to the election is fairly high compared to many past elections although in one past election there were more than 600 absentee ballots cast.

When voting Tuesday, voters will receive a political party preference declaration form. There's no hurry to fill that out. You've got four years. Before voting in the Michigan presidential primary March 17, 1992, a voter must fill out a preference form.

WHERE MICHIGAN WOMEN WILL BE FINDING THEIR HEALTH CARE.

When the U.S. Supreme Court made abortion legal and safe way back in 1973, the decision directly affected two groups of people: back-alley abortionists, who were put out of business and low-income women, thousands of whom are alive today thanks to subsidized access to quality medical care.

Now, the backers of Proposal A are pushing for a return to the days when abortion was both dangerous and degrading. And if you think they'll be satisfied with punishing only poor women, you're wrong. Next, they'll be taking aim at your rights.

Election information

The Courier herewith presents thumbnail sketches of candidates for contested local, state and national office.

COUNTY CLERK

Republican, Jane Brannon, who lives in Hayes Township with her husband Gary, is completing her second term as Charlevoix County Clerk, and before that she served in other positions in city and county government. When asked about her job, Brannon replied, "An effective county clerk must be able to understand and manage the complete range of duties the office covers and be interested in and responsible to the needs of the taxpayers who fund the office."

Donna K. Smith, the Democrat candidate for Charlevoix County Clerk, has been a resident of the county for 25 years. She presently lives in Eveline Township with her husband, Harold. The candidate lists as her qualifications 15 years of accounting experiences, including payroll administration, employee benefits and pension administration, corporate budgeting and cost accounting. She also served on the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union for five years.

COUNTY TREASURER

Republican Joan Balch has been employed in the office of the Charlevoix County Treasurer since 1969 and was appointed treasurer in May, 1987, to fill a vacancy. She is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and lives in Charlevoix with her husband and two sons. When asked about her qualifications for the treasurer's job, she noted that during her years in the office she has filled every position from posting tax receipts to investing tax dollars. "I enjoy very much serving the public and being their county treasurer," she added.

David Manker is the Democrat candidate for county treasurer. He has been employed in the loan department of the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union since 1979, and is now in charge of collection and lending money. Manker moved to northern Michigan in 1973 from downstate, where he grew up and graduated from St. Johns High School. He lives in Hayes Township with his wife and two children. The candidate believes that his extensive financial background and knowledge of the community equip him well for the job of county treasurer.

COUNTY SHERIFF

Republican candidate, George T. Lasater, has been sheriff of Charlevoix County for almost 12 years and before that served in other criminal justice capacities in the county. He holds associate's, bachelor's, and master's degrees in law enforcement, which he says add up to 989 credit hours of study. Lasater has adopted the slogan "Protect and Serve" for the Sheriff's Department and explains it partly as follows, "It's a way of life unique only to law enforcement. It's committing yourself to be available day and night, seven days a week, to serve and respond to all types of needs and emergencies, from shootings, to drugs, to holding a hand." Lasater lives in Eveline Township.

James Waier, the Democrat candidate for sheriff, more recently moved to Charlevoix County from the Saginaw area. He lists as his qualifications 20 years of law enforcement including training in drugs, arson and fire fighting. He is a member of the Deputy Sheriffs and Process Servers Association of Michigan, and locally serves as a member of the Hayes Township Board of Appeals and Zoning Board. ### PROBATE JUDGE Seberon Litzenger of Petoskey is one of two candidates seeking the non-partisan Probate Court judgeship left open by the retirement of Judge John T. Murphy. Litzenger grew up in Boyne City and graduated from Boyne City High School. He later graduated from the University of Michigan and received his law degree from the Detroit College of Law. He has practiced general civil law in Petoskey for 25 years "with a strong emphasis on probate practice." Litzenger has been a member of, and headed, several local boards, including the Charlevoix-Emmet Bar Association, Northern Michigan Hospitals, and Little Traverse Regional Historical Society. Other community service projects include the American Cancer Society, Little Traverse Conservancy, Emmet County Planning Commission and Tax Allocation Board, and the American Arbitration Association.

In addition to several professional organizations, he has been a member of the Emmet County United Way, which he also served as president; and has served as coach for Little League flag football, soccer and T-ball teams. The later activities won him the Outstanding Coaches' Award from the Institute for the Study of Youth Sports.

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Republican State Representative Ralph Ostling of Roscommon is seeking re-election for his ninth term in office. Ostling was a township clerk and school teacher before he began representing the 103rd District, which is made up of Charlevoix, Antrim, Crawford, Oscoda, Otsego, and Roscommon counties. Among accomplishments cited by Ostling was a bill which discharged loans made to farmers who suffered heavy losses during the 1973 PBB (polybrominated biphenyl) disaster. Ostling also serves as the minority vice-chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, which decides budget levels for all state agencies and programs.

Ellen Addington, Ellsworth Democrat, is making her second try at unseating Ostling. In 1986 she garnered 44 percent of the vote in her first attempt at seeking public office. Addington is a former teacher of behavioral problem adolescents, is a member of the executive board of Charlevoix County Hospice, serve on the Ellsworth Economic Development Committee, and has been active in hunger and justice issues which have taken her to Africa, Nicaragua, and the Middle East. She has close Charlevoix ties since she is director of music at the Charlevoix Congregational Church and conductor of the Charlevoix Choral and Orchestra. Addington's literature calls her "the Common Sense Candidate Working for the Common Good."

UNITED STATES CONGRESSMAN

Incumbent Republican Bob Davis of Gaylord has served five terms in the United States House of Representatives, and before that represented Northern Michigan in both the Michigan House and Senate. His campaign has stressed the number of jobs he has been able to bring to Northern Michigan by securing government contracts and grants for area industry. Because of his seniority in the House of Representatives, he holds several high committee positions, notably on the Coast Guard and Fisheries committees.

Democrat candidate Mitch Irwin of Sault Ste. Marie succeeded to Bob Davis' Michigan Senate seat when Davis went to Washington, and has held it ever since. He points to the fact he has written 25 bills that have become law, including the Older Michiganians Act, the Medicare Supplemental Insurance Reform Act, the Great Lakes Conservation Act, the Community and Tourism Marketing Act, and the Clean Water Assistance Act. His campaign literature states, "He shares our values; he will fight our battles; he will put us first."

UNITED STATES SENATOR

Republican Jim Dunn, who formerly served as Congressman from the downstate 6th District (Lansing), is running against Democrat incumbent Don Riegle. With the slogan, "A Commitment to Building a Stronger Michigan," Dunn stresses, "Working cooperatively with business, labor, and individuals in both the private and public sectors to create more jobs for Michigan." He also believes "Creating more jobs goes hand-in-hand with improving education, because the educational challenges we face today will determine the future quality of our jobs."

Don Riegle takes credit for writing "legislation overwhelmingly passed by Congress to crack down on trade cheating by foreign countries and keep our best jobs here in America." He also mentions writing the law establishing "latchkey" programs for before and after school child care; fighting to keep education programs strong, and "Leading the fight to pass catastrophic health care in the Senate." Riegle has served in public office for 22 years.

The sale will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in the hospital lobby.

Children's toys, baby items, jewelry, and many novelty gifts for adults will be featured. Also available will be a wide assortment of baked goods including cookies, cakes, breads, candies and other goodies made by Guild volunteers.

"This sale has become a community tradition that everyone looks forward to," says Virginia Rountree, Guild President, "and, it is very gratifying to all of us to have such fine support."

Purchases at the Guild's Pre-Christmas Sale provide a double benefit: not only will they make somebody very happy on Christmas Day, but they generate valuable support for the hospital as well.

All Santas will be able to shop early for the entire family at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild Christmas sale on Friday, Nov. 4 and Saturday, Nov. 5. ## Time for annual fraternal dinner

The annual fraternal dinner of the Oddfellows, Masons and Knights of Columbus will take place Nov. 3 at the American Legion Hall. This year's dinner is hosted by the Oddfellows.

Early each November the three fraternal organizations get together for a dinner. Along with being a social event, the dinner is also the first step in organizing the annual spring fraternal field day for the area's handicapped children.

The field day is something the three groups have been funding and organizing for the past several years. The field day takes place at the high school and is a day of track and field events for area handicapped children who don't qualify for the Special Olympics program at Mount Pleasant. In the evening following the field day there is a dinner and a dance with music from Jasper and his Tag-A-Longs.

At Thursday's fraternal dinner the three fraternal organizations will review films from past field days and initiate plans for the 1989 field day.

Garbage, garbage everywhere...

by PEG OHLE

Some jobs just never seem to end.

Since early in 1987, a 14-person committee appointed by the County Board of Commissioners to update the County's Solid Waste Management Plan as required by state law, has been meeting monthly to complete its assignment.

The most controversial question among committee members has been how many counties should be permitted to haul their waste to the Charlevoix County Landfill, Inc., a privately operated facility in Eveline Township.

Two weeks ago, after its 18th meeting, the committee decided that six counties—Antrim, Emmet, Presque Isle, Otsego, Crawford, and Charlevoix—should be permitted to do so. Last April, the committee voted to include only Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. The April decision reversed an August, 1987 decision to permit seven counties to use the landfill.

The number was originally cut because most committee members did not want to hasten filling the landfill, did not want Charlevoix County to become the "dumping ground" of the north, and questioned the advisability of allowing such extensive use of a landfill so close to Lake Charlevoix.

Now, the reasons given for increasing the number of counties using the Charlevoix landfill mostly relate to using landfills in those counties as a backup in case the Charlevoix landfill becomes unusable. Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan, who has been coordinating the work of the Solid Waste Committee, points out, however, that among the counties being accepted for use of the Charlevoix landfill, only Crawford and Otsego Counties have a jointly operated landfill of their own.

There is no operating landfill in Emmet, Antrim, or Presque Isle Counties, although one is tentatively planned for Presque Isle.

The committee's decision puts it back to line one in planning for future use of the Charlevoix landfill and where Charlevoix County could take its waste in event of closing that landfill. There is a possibility that it could take another 18 meetings before committee members finally make up their minds.

Sullivan says he had suggested permitting Manistee County, which has a large operating landfill, be included in the plan for backup purposes instead of Otsego and Crawford Counties, but that county was turned down because it is "too far away". Sullivan pointed out that it would be better than including two nearer counties where the potential for waste being imported into Charlevoix County is much greater.

Otsego and Crawford Counties, he noted, generate considerable industrial waste as well as waste from many fast food operations in Gaylord and Grayling and still more waste from Camp Grayling.

State law requires that each county provide in its Solid Waste Management Plan for a backup arrangement to dispose of its solid waste elsewhere if something happens to its own facility, but it should be an equitable arrangement, Sullivan believes. He is still trying to come up with an arrangement he considers suitable that committee members will accept.

Sullivan's job as coordinator of the Solid Waste Management Committee has taken considerable time from other Planning Department duties. As he says, "It has taken more time than it should have, with the result we have not been able to complete other tasks assigned by the Planning Commission, including a countywide zoning ordinance, a county land use plan, and economic development planning.

The Solid Waste Management Committee, as provided by state law, consists of four persons representing the solid waste disposal or hauling industry, and 10 others representing the general public and various political units of government. In the former group are Dawson Way (former owner of the Charlevoix County Landfill), C. H. Smith, Jamie Hass, and Tad Malpass.

The others are David Willson, Dennis Jason, Randy Frykberg, Junior Hunt, County Commissioner Don Smith, Larry Levensgood, Phil Johnson, Tom Wieland (committee chairman), Nancy Ferguson, and Ralph Richardson.

The long drawn-out process of completing the County Solid Waste Plan has meant many hours of seemingly fruitless work for these people as well as a mounting per diem cost. At $40 a meeting, per diem paid to committee members has now run over $10,000, and to this must be added transportation costs, which from the eastern part of the county to Charlevoix, could run as much as $10.80 a round trip for each meeting.

As one discouraged committee member asks, "What have we gained between August of 1987 and October of 1988 except the wasteful expenditure of committee time and county dollars?"

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for Thursday evening, November 10.

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the
Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum
First Congregational Church

With so many different expressions of Christianity—evangelical, social gospel, historical, not to mention the many different denominational distinctions—one has to wonder what Jesus thought amounted to healthy religion. Having done some research and reflection on that question, let me suggest five qualities that Jesus would have affirmed which make for healthy religion regardless of our personal preference of expression.

First, healthy religion is energetic. It's clear from those whom Jesus befriended and those he first chose to serve him, that high energy was a quality Jesus very much admired. Not to the exclusion of the less-energetic, of course. But to those who have energy, Jesus is always challenging them to direct it toward the things of God's kingdom.

Second, healthy religion is elevating. Think of how often the words joy and good cheer are on Jesus' lips. Like a refreshing breeze, healthy religion comes with the unexpected gift of and unexpected lift. It puts a song in our heart and fills our life with gladness.

Which leads to the idea that healthy religion is also enlarging. It allows us to look beyond any given event or circumstance in our life, so we can view the wider panorama of God's greater purposes and plans. It helps us to put the littleness of our life into the larger perspective of God.

Fourth, then healthy religion is empowering. It builds life up and gives us strength to carry on. And not just for ourselves. It helps us carry on for others and for God, reaching out to one another in Jesus' name until God's kingdom comes on earth.

In that way, healthy religion is always ego-freeing. We are called to lose ourselves in Christ and thereby are saved from living unto ourselves alone, living instead for others and for the One who taught us to pray, "Not thy will, but thine be done."

And as we cultivate that kind of religion in ourselves and in one another, the kind of religion that Jesus would want us to have, so our personal lives and our life together will be happy and healthy. In the words of Isaiah: "We will mount up with wings like eagles, we shall run and not be weary, we shall walk and not faint."

Cross country team wins regionals, favored in state

Charlevoix's boys' and girls cross country teams both ran well enough at this past Saturday's regional competition to qualify for state finals.

The boys team finished first, beating their nearest competitor by 40 points while the girls team finished third.

In recent years Charlevoix and Benzle Central have battled for the regional and state Class C boys titles. This year there was no battle. Charlevoix dominated.

Scott Miller won the race, finishing more than 20 seconds ahead of his nearest competitor, Tim Brennan of East Jordan. Charlevoix's team score of 50 was 42 points better than second place Clare. Benzle Central finished seventh with 178 points.

Fifteen complete teams competed in the regionals. Four other schools sent runners, but not enough for a complete team.

Miller completed the three-mile course in 16:41. The next Rayder across the line was Chery Wiesner who finished fourth overall with a time of 18:57.

17:15.

Paul Wakulat, Bill Crook and Bill Burns were grouped at 16th, 17th and 18th with times of 17:57, 17:57 and 18:02. Dylan Stewart finished 22nd with a time of 18:18 and Time Henne finished 43rd with a time of 18:57.

A total of 110 runners competed in the boys race. Julie Bush led the Rayder girls as she finished third overall with a time of 21:00. Bush finished nine seconds behind race winner Gina Glover of Kingsley and one second behind second place finisher, Holly Johnson of East Jordan.

The Rayder team total of 84 placed them behind Benzle Central's 74 and Oakridge's 82.

Leigh Richardson was the second Rayder finisher, coming in seventh with a time of 21:54.

Charlevoix's other five runners finished as follows: Inga Meissner, 26th at 23:35; Michelle Jacobs, 32nd at 24:15; Barb Haggard, 34th at 24:37; Karina Stockholm 39th at 25:30;

Tracee Smith 40th at 25:38.

Having the girls' team qualify for state is particularly rewarding in that they've had to compete virtually all year without two girls who were expected to be among their best runners. Elka Thomas and Shelly Ferguson, both ran well last year as underclassmen, but missed virtually all of this season with injuries.

The state finals meet will take place this Saturday in Bath with races beginning at 10 a.m.

B-ball team twice bitten twice shy

A team total of 26 points wasn't good enough to beat either Cheboygan or Grayling last week as the girls' basketball team dropped two games.

Tuesday, Oct. 25, Charlevoix lost to Cheboygan 51-26. Although Charlevoix handled the ball and broke the press fairly effectively, the team had no luck getting the ball in the basket. The only player who scored with any degree of regularity was Melissa Boss. Her 13 points were half of the team's total.

Thursday, Oct. 27, Charlevoix again had trouble scoring and lost to Grayling 55-26. Charlevoix spotted Grayling a 12 point lead before they got on the board late in the first quarter.

An encouraging note in the game was the reappearance of Stacy Gebott. Gebott, one of the team's best ballhandlers and scorers, had not played for several weeks due to a knee injury. Against Grayling, she came off the bench and contributed six points which tied her for team scoring honors with Cindy Boydston.

From front to back, Charlevoix's Tricia Sutton, Marty Bragg, Becky Largent and Melissa Boss prepare to break for an inbounds pass against Grayling last Thursday evening.

Football team concludes season

Charlevoix's varsity football team closed out their season with a cold and dismal 45-8 loss to visiting Petoskey Friday night. Charlevoix finishes the season with a record of 1-5 in the Michigan Huron Shores League and 3-6 overall.

Although the final score was ugly, Charlevoix's defense played well early and allowed no points in the first quarter. However, in the second quarter Petoskey scored 19 unanswered points.

Charlevoix scored their only touchdown of the game in the third quarter on an 11-yard pass from Greg Lewis to Jason Parrish. Lewis passed to Shawn Putman for the two-point conversion.

Charlevoix's offensive production was limited as the Rayders tallied only 103 yards. Lewis hit five of 12 passes for 49 yards and running back Dave Miller carried the ball eight times for 47 yards.
